CREDIT TO ALLIES FOR $500,000,000

Likely to be Granted on Condition That It Be Used for Commercial Purposes Only.

CONCESSION WINS BANKERS

Proposition Also Gains Favor by Decision to Bar Russia from Participation.

WAR LOAN NOT YET SOLVED

Great Britain and France May Have to Send Gold or Securities to Pay for Their Munitions.

More progress toward an agreement on the proposed loan to the Allies was made yesterday than on any other day since the arrival of the Anglo-French Financial Commission. Events moved so smoothly toward a settlement of some of the difficult questions which the negotiators had had to face that rumor in the financial district late in the day had it that the terms of the loan had been agreed to. This was denied authoritatively, although the fact was emphasized by more than one of the bankers participating in the conferences with the British and French financial delegates that satisfactory progress was being made.

The day's developments included a statement by one of the bankers taking a leading part in the negotiations that the suggestion that the proposed credit be used exclusively for ordinary commercial purposes, leaving the purchase of munitions of war to be provided for in some other manner, probably by the shipment of gold and securities, had been definitely accepted.

It was established, moreover, that the loan as proposed is to be for Great Britain and France, Russia not being included as a participant in the credit now under negotiation. It was intimated that the fact that the credit would not be used by Russia would have an important bearing on the support which the loan would get in some financial quarters.

Gaining More Banking Support.

The response which is coming from interior bankers considerably increased the optimism of New York bankers yesterday regarding the success of the loan. Besides this, Wall Street heard that news would probably be had today indicative of the gaining of support for the proposed credit in very important banking quarters in which so far no active part has been taken in the preparation of the loan. This expectation also had a great deal to do with the feeling which gained ground during the day that the success of the loan was assured.

The details of the loan are still open, but, unless the negotiations should take a new and unexpected course, it is most probable that the amount will be $500,000,000 instead of $1,000,000,000. This $500,000,000 issue is likely to take the form of five-year bonds bearing 5 per cent. interest to be offered at 97½. At that price they would yield about 5½ per cent.

In addition, in all probability, the bonds will include other conditions which will make them attractive to investors. One probability is that they will be made convertible at the option of the holder into a longer time obligation of the British and French Governments, say fifteen-year bonds bearing 4½ per cent. interest. Such an option would give the holder the right to cash at the maturity of the loan, or, in lieu of cash, a fifteen-year bond, which, if conditions were favorable, might command a premium.

But all discussion of the terms of the loan must still be regarded as tentative. The terms have not yet been closed, nor will they be, according to bankers in a position to know the facts, until an opportunity has been had to obtain the views of other bankers than those who have already participated in the conferences.

Opposition Is Weakening.

Inasmuch as the proposed credit, as Wall Street now understands, is to be used exclusively for purely commercial purposes as distinguished from the trade in munitions, and because of the expectation that the most prominent of bankers with German sympathies will participate in the transaction as one designed to foster American trade, it is believed in the financial district that soon very little will be left of the pro-German opposition to the proposed credit.

Bankers continue to receive threats that deposits will be withdrawn if they participate in a loan to the Allies, but these threats are not numerous, and in some instances at least they are meeting with severe reprimand. One instance illustrative of others was cited. Two depositors in one institution carrying large balances informed the bank that they would feel compelled to withdraw their accounts should the bank decide to participate in the loan. The bank's response in each case was a prompt request that these depositors withdraw their money immediately. If it is not withdrawn promptly the bank itself will close the accounts and return the money to the threatening depositors. This course was commended in high banking quarters as the best possible rebuke to those who would bring this sort of pressure upon the banks to get them to refrain from participating in a transaction which is coming to be recognized all over the country as a step necessary to safeguard the trade interests of Americans.

Conferences on Morgan Yacht.

That it would not be wise to carry out the commission's original intention of floating a billion-dollar loan here is the opinion of influential bankers who have brought pressure to bear against making an initial issue of such huge amount. The commission, however, is still in favor of the larger figure.

The barrier of secrecy built around the progress of the discussions was raised still higher yesterday, with the result that few persons other than those invited to meet the commission learned where meetings were being held. It was plainly evident to any one canvassing the financial district in the early afternoon that practically every influential banker was inaccessible. When these men returned to their desks they refused to say where conferences had taken place. It is understood that to escape the heat and secure freedom from interruption J. P. Morgan's yacht Corsair has been used for some meetings. A number of men whose work it will be to find a market for the bonds when they are issued met on the Corsair to talk over the terms.

REQUEST FOR DUMBA RECALL DELIVERED

Penfield Cables He Received Message Sept. 10 and Sent It at Once to Foreign Office.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—Secretary of State Lansing announced tonight that a cablegram had just been received from Ambassador Penfield, at Vienna, informing the State Department that the communication from the United States requesting the Austrian Government to recall Dr. Dumba, the Austro-Hungarian Ambassador, had been received and had been delivered to the Austro-Hungarian Government.

Ambassador Penfield's dispatch stated that the communication was received in Vienna on Sept. 10 and was immediately delivered to the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Office.

Before the dispatch from Ambassador Penfield was received, there was great uncertainty as to whether the Dumba message had reached him. The message was sent on Sept. 8 by way of London and Berne. One report had it that the message was received in Berne on Sept. 10 and was filed the same day by the American Minister there for transmission to Vienna, but had not been delivered to Ambassador Penfield. Wire trouble between Berne and Vienna was given as a possible cause of the supposed delay.

PEGOUD'S ANTAGONIST TELLS HOW HE DIED

German Aeroplane Flanked His and Killed Him by Machine-Gun Fire.

AMSTERDAM, Sept. 16, (via London.)—The story of the death fight of Adolphe Pegoud, the French aviator, who was killed recently near Petite Croix in a battle in the air with a German aviator, is related by Pilot Corporal Kandulski, his conqueror, in a letter to his father, which is published in the Tageblatt.

"While flying," says the letter, "the forts of Belfort opened fire against me, the shrapnel bursting around in the clouds. I was hardly out of range of the enemy's guns when suddenly a French machine approached. The fighting took place at a height of 2,400 meters, (about 8,000 feet.)

"The first thing I did was to swing sharply around in order to obtain a free range to the flank. My observer, Lieutenant Billitz, immediately fired the machine gun, which, after the thirtieth shot, refused to work. Meanwhile Pegoud approached to fifty meters. I encircled him once, and suddenly executed a sharp curve to the left, whereby I got him on the flank, and Billitz, whose machine gun again was in order, gave him his quietus."

TO SWAMP WORLD WITH GERMAN GOODS?

Russians Charge That Vast Stores Are Being Made at Army Rates of Pay.

PETROGRAD, Friday, Sept. 17.—A Customs Union, comprising all the Triple Entente allies, and to be aimed against Germany after the war is ended, is advocated by the Novoe Vremya, which claims that German manufacturers are utilizing labor at army rates of pay in order to accumulate vast stores of cheap goods to be sold when trade is reopened.

"It is every bit as necessary for us to break Germany's economic position as it is to break the strength of her fighting forces," says the Novoe Vremya, which suggests that the United States might ultimately join the union.

ENGLAND TO TAX MANY IMPORTS

Broad Proposals Aim to Meet War Expenses—Not a Tariff Reform Move.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 16.—Among the features which a well-authenticated report says will be found in the budget that Chancellor of the Exchequer McKenna will lay before Parliament are proposals for the taxation of imports on a scale which is proclaimed in some quarters to be the introduction of tariff reform.

Probably the last idea in the mind of the Chancellor is to afford an excuse for the revival of political polemics on this vexed question, but the necessity of providing money to carry on the war may force him to have recourse to this method of raising revenue.

Mr. McKenna's friends say that he is being guided in his attempts to solve the difficult problem before him by the sound principle that the country must pay a considerable proportion of the costs of the war out of its present income and general resources, and that the burden which can safely be left to posterity must be reduced to the minimum. The taxation of imports on a broad scale is said to be one of the chief methods he has in view for meeting the country's obligations.

POPE'S PEACE PLANS IN HANDS OF CARDINALS

Pontiff Outlines Action He Will Take When There is a Chance for Mediation.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Sept. 16.—The Pope has submitted to the leading Cardinals a detailed report regarding the attitude which the Holy See may take in the international situation if certain events occur. The Pontiff asked the Cardinals to study the question so as to be able to give him their advice.

He hopes for a condition that will leave the Papacy free either to intervene in the conflict and offer pontifical mediation or assist some power to do so. In either case the Pontiff would not like to take the step without a certainty of success. Hence his desire to have the responsibility shared by some of the Cardinals, who are distinguished for their knowledge of political affairs.

RALPH H. ISHAM AND WIFE PARTED

Reported that Mayor Gaynor's Daughter Will Seek Nevada Divorce.

MARRIED IN TRINITY CHURCH

Hints of Differences Due to the Bride's Taste for Sports and Horseback Feats.

Ralph Heyward Isham and his young wife, who was Miss Marion Gaynor, daughter of the late Mayor William J. Gaynor, before her marriage in January of last year, when she was 16 years old, have separated.

The young couple went West immediately after their marriage, which was solemnized in Trinity Church on Jan. 28, 1914, and for some time Mr. Isham assisted his father in the management of his extensive business interests.

A daughter was born on Dec. 17 last, and early this year the couple moved to Madison, N. J., where they fitted up in elaborate style a handsome home on a thirty-four-acre estate.

Soon after the new home was opened, according to persons well acquainted with the family, domestic differences caused trouble frequently between Mr. Isham and his youthful wife. As a result, Mr. Isham left the Madison home about the middle of last month and took up his residence at the new Yale Club at Vanderbilt Avenue and Forty-fourth Street, Manhattan. He is a Yale graduate. Mrs. Isham remained on the Madison estate for some time after her husband had gone, but the house there was closed last week, and it became known among a few of the couple's most intimate friends that hope of a reconciliation had been practically given up, although the other members of both families were eager to avoid the notoriety of a breach.

Mrs. Isham's whereabouts were not learned last night, although it was known that she was in New York City and that in the near future she intends to go away for a visit to a relative. She has her little daughter with her. Her sister, who was Miss Gertrude Gaynor, and who eloped with W. Seward Webb, Jr., is at the Vanderbilt Hotel. At the Yale Club it was said that Mr. Isham had rooms there, but that he was not in.

Up to the present, it is understood, neither Mr. nor Mrs. Isham have taken any step toward legal proceedings of any sort. It was said positively by an intimate friend last night that no divorce action could be sustained in this State, and that Mrs. Isham probably would go to Nevada to bring an action.

The only ground on which a suit for divorce could be based, it was said, would be that of incompatability of temperament, or, since Mr. Isham's departure from the New Jersey home, desertion.

Mrs. Isham was the fourth daughter of the late Mayor. Her eighteenth birthday was on March 18 last. Both before and since her marriage she took a prominent part in outdoor sports and is known as a skillful horsewoman, having ridden many thoroughbred jumpers over dangerous fences and taken keen interest in the fashionable horse shows. She won several blue ribbons at the big horse show in Madison Square Garden the year before her marriage, and defeated a number of foremost women of the country at the Turf and Field Horse Show at Belmont in May of 1912, when she was only 15 years old.

The marriage of the couple in Trinity Church was not elaborate and was a surprise to many of the friends of both parties, as both had denied only a short time before that they were engaged. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. W. T. Manning, rector of the church, and among the few persons present were Mrs. Gaynor and her daughters, Helen and Ruth.

Mr. Isham is 25 years old and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Heyward Isham. His father is very wealthy and owns extensive lands in New Jersey which have come down from a Colonial grant. He was President of the Marietta, Columbus & Cleveland Railroad at the time of his son's marriage. Young Mr. Isham was graduated at Yale and Cornell and later was a student of law at the New York Law School. He has traveled extensively, going on a number of hunting expeditions in foreign lands. His mother, who has written considerably under the pen name of Juliette Calhoun Marsh, is a descendant of the famous statesman John C. Calhoun, and his father is a descendant of Johnathan Trumbull, who was a Colonial Governor of Connecticut and that State's first Governor after the Revolution.

FIND ROADS DODGING TAXES.

Illinois Officials Say State Has Lost $35,000,000 in Twenty Years.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 16.—Officials of the State Board of Equalization today laid bare what they termed a conspiracy on the part of electric and steam railroads, which they say have evaded taxes for years. The net loss to the State of Illinois has been from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000 a year. The estimated valuation of the property is from $100,000,000 to $200,000,000.

Some of these lines are separate corporations, operating a few miles of tracks between larger lines. Others are good-sized railroads with rolling stock, trackage, and terminals valued in the millions.

While groups of the roads, according to State Equalizers Donoghue and Viterna, adopt similar methods to conceal assets, others act individually by various methods.

"The most common form of evasion," said Mr. Donoghue, "is to make a physical annexation of a small line to a larger one and then to forget all about filing a schedule. It is a conservative estimate to say that Illinois has lost by this negligence at least $35,000,000 within twenty years."

FOUR IN STREET CAR HURT.

Jerome Avenue Trolley Jumps Track and Hits Elevated Pillar.

Four persons were injured yesterday morning when a Jerome Avenue trolley car jumped the tracks at 204th Street and struck a pillar of the elevated. The impact broke every window in the car and threw most of the twenty-odd passengers to the floor.

Berlin Hears Rumania Will Fight Soon; Bulgars Want Her Mobilization Explained

LONDON, Sept. 16.—A Copenhagen dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company says that German newspapers were permitted yesterday to publish sensational telegrams intimating that Rumania's participation in the war might be expected at any minute.

[The participation, according to all reports, is to be on the side of the Allies.]

ROME, Sept. 15, (via Paris, Sept. 16.)—Because of the concentration of Greek and Rumanian troops on the Bulgarian frontier, the Bulgarian Foreign Minister has instructed the representatives of that country at Athens and Bucharest to request an immediate and definite explanation, according to a Sofia dispatch to the Giornale d'Italia.

Press dispatches from Bucharest say that the Turks have already begun to carry out the provisions of the Turco-Bulgarian agreement. They have abandoned the barracks at Karaghatch and destroyed the forts on the right bank of the Maritza River, taking the guns and barbed wire to the Gallipoli peninsula.

The Bulgarian Prefect at Stara Zagora has gone to Adrianople to arrange to take formal possession of the ceded territory in the presence of the Turkish and Bulgarian Ministers on Sept. 18. The Turkish Vali of Adrianople has gone to Constantinople to obtain instructions from the Porte on the same subject.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 16, (via London.)—A special dispatch from Sofia says that the Bulgarian Government has discharged from the colors the levies of the 1912 class.

HEAT KILLS SEVEN; PROSTRATES MANY

RELIEF PERHAPS TODAY

Showers for New York State Predicted, but Forecaster Does Not Think They'll Fall Here.

Seven deaths and more than two dozen prostrations were caused by the heat in and near New York City yesterday, the eighth day of the most prolonged spell of severe hot weather in September recorded by the local Weather Bureau.

Forecaster Scarr said last night there was no prospect of relief in the next forty-eight hours. The promised cool spell did not arrive last night. The Weather Bureau officials explained that it was on its way from Michigan all right, but missed New York, passing over the north of New England. It had been expected that the wind would blow from the west yesterday, but it veered from the south only to the southwest, shunting the coolness too far to the north to relieve New York City. The edge of the cool wave struck up-State.

"No sudden changes to cooler are expected during the next forty-eight hours except in New York, Northern New England, and the lower lake region, where thunder showers will probably break the heat temporarily tomorrow."

MOB FIGHTS POLICE AS BANK IS CLOSED

Five Thousand Angry Ansonia Depositors Engage Fire Department Also.

$36,000 SHORTAGE IS FOUND

Ex-Mayor of City, Who Is Treasurer of the Bank, Held by the Police as Embezzler.

ANSONIA, Conn., Sept. 16.—There was a free-for-all fight tonight between the entire Police Department of this city and a crowd of 5,000 persons, following the announcement that State Bank Commissioner Everett J. Sturges had taken charge of the affairs of the Savings Bank of Ansonia.

The Treasurer of the institution, former Mayor Franklin Burton, is under arrest, charged with embezzling $36,000.

The crowd, which contained many foreign depositors, threatened to break in the doors of the bank, and there were threats made of lynching Mr. Burton. Mayor Schulmaker pushed his way through the crowd and tried to speak. He said that if the people did not disperse he would sound the riot call. He was jeered and there were cries of "We want Burton!"

The police, with drawn revolvers, were unable to cope with the situation, and the Mayor caused a general alarm of fire to be sounded. The firemen were ordered to turn the hose on the crowd, but were unable to follow out orders, for hundreds of persons seized the hose and took it away from them.

The police used their clubs freely, and there were many fist fights. After two hours the police regained control of the situation, and the crowd melted away.

While the disturbance in front of the bank was at its height, officials feared for Mr. Burton's safety, and he was hurried out of a back window of the building. Two policemen then took him through back streets to the City Hall.

The alleged shortage in Mr. Burton's accounts was discovered by Commissioner Sturges, who says that the Treasurer has confessed to abstracting about $36,000 during the last fifteen years. Mr. Sturges said that Burton lost his money in real estate investments. His method was to take the money from loans, Mr. Sturges said, and then write bogus notes, which were charged up as assets.

The bank issued a statement tonight saying that the loss would not exceed $36,000, and this amount was partly covered by Mr. Burton's bond of $20,000. The statement said, further, "as the bank has a surplus of $63,000, it is believed that the bank is perfectly solid and all depositors will be paid when the Commissioners are through."

William A. Nelson, one of the Directors, issued a statement saying he would buy all passbooks of the depositors to the extent of $100,000.

A further examination of Burton's books late tonight showed that he had also manipulated two trust funds, of which he was a Trustee, the amount involved being $7,000. One of the funds belongs to Mrs. Nora McNerney, of Boston.

After a conference between Commissioner Sturges and Attorney General Hinman a warrant was issued for Burton, charging him with embezlement. He was locked up in jail and at a late hour had not obtained bail.

Mr. Burton is about 55 years old, married, and has two children. He has twice been Mayor of the city and once a State Senator. He is prominent in Methodist Church affairs.

LABOR WARNS ENGLAND AGAINST CONSCRIPTION

All Railway Men to Strike if It Is Introduced, Asserts Union Official in Parliament.

LONDON, Sept. 16.—In the course of the debate in the House of Commons this afternoon, James Henry Thomas, Laborite, who is Assistant General Secretary of the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants, declared that every lodge of the railway union had informed the Executive Committee that on the introduction of conscription the men would stop work.

"If the conscriptionists want an industrial revolution," he said, "let them proceed with their agitation."

David Lloyd George, the Munitions Minister, has appointed a committee "to consider and advise on questions of industrial fatigue, hours of labor, and other matters affecting the health and physical efficiency of workers in munitions factories and workshops."

The committee comprises Sir George Newman, Chief Medical Officer of the Board of Education, as Chairman; Sir Thomas Barlow, Dr. Arthur Edwin Boycott, Professor of Pathology, University of Manchester; Dr. Leonard Erskine Hill, Director of the Department of Applied Physiology of the National Health Insurance Institute of Research; J. R. Clynes, Laborite Member of Parliament; Mrs. Harold J. Tennant, wife of the Parliamentary Under Secretary for War, and Miss R. E. Squire.

The committee is apparently an outcome of the recent discussion at the British Association meeting concerning the best methods for increasing the productivity of workmen.

BERLIN CONFIDENT OF PEACE WITH US; WILL YIELD MORE IN PRIVATE PARLEYS THAN SHE DARES ADMIT IN PUBLIC NOTES

Four Powers Are Spending $56,000,000 Daily in War; Russia Calls 8,000,000 Men to Make Up Huge Losses

PARIS, Sept. 16.—M. Ribot, the Minister of Finance, said in the Chamber of Deputies today that the average monthly war expenses of Russia were 1,800,000,000 francs, ($360,000,000;) Germany's monthly war expenses approached 2,500,000,000 francs, ($500,000,000,) while Great Britain's exceeded this amount.

This statement was made by M. Ribot in an address accompanying the introduction of a bill appropriating 6,200,000,000 francs ($1,240,000,000) for the expenses of the last quarter of the year.

Among the important measures before Parliament is one calling to the colors a contingent of 400,000 young men who in time of peace would begin military service in 1917.

The statement of M. Ribot, with the statement of Mr. Asquith in the House of Commons Wednesday, gives a fairly clear idea of the staggering financial expenses of the chief belligerents. France, according to estimates made last June, was spending $8,700,000 a day. At the present time this total is probably $10,000,000. Russia's daily expense is $12,000,000, according to M. Ribot, while Germany's is $16,670,000. England's daily war cost has reached $17,500,000. The total of the four nations is $56,170,000.

LONDON, Friday, Sept. 17.—An Imperial ukase was issued in Petrograd yesterday calling to the colors reserves of the territorial army.

Should the age limit be fixed at 35 years the call would mean the possible addition of 8,000,000 men to the Russian armies, including men who had passed through the first line and reserves and those who heretofore have been exempted.

The number of Russian prisoners taken since May 1 by the Austrians and Germans is reckoned at 2,571,750 by La Suisse, a newspaper of Geneva, according to a dispatch from that city. The newspaper says that these figures have been compiled from official bulletins. It adds:

"The official and Austrian and German figures given out prior to May 1 showed a total of 1,395,000 Russian prisoners, not including civilians or the dead and wounded. General Polivanof, the Russian Minister of War, informed the Duma that the total of officers and men at the front since the beginning of the war was 5,060,000. Consequently the present total of Russian forces is 1,093,250."

BRITAIN FORFEITS MEAT CARGOES

Prize Court Order Affects Products Worth $15,000,000 Owned by Chicago Packers.

SUSPICIOUS OF DESTINATION

Believed to be for the Enemy—Packers to Appeal—International Tribunal Possible.

LONDON, Sept. 16.—The British Prize Court today condemned the greater part of the American products forming the cargoes of four steamships. These products, valued at several million dollars, are declared forfeited to the Crown.

The judgment was delivered by Sir Samuel T. Evans, President of the Court. It involves the cargoes of the Norwegian steamships Kim, Alfred Nobel, Björnstjerne-Björnson, and Fridland. All the goods on these vessels, consisting principally of American meat products, are confiscated, with the exception of a small proportion which the court released to claimants.

The court disallowed sixteen claims, including those of the Morris, Armour, Hammond, Swift, and Sulzberger companies. It allowed eight claims, including that of the Cudahy Company of Chicago. The others were Danish consignees.

Sir Samuel gave leave to appeal, fixing security for the costs at $25,000, divisible among the appellants. He also gave the Crown attorneys leave to appeal in the cases of the Cudahy and other claims which were allowed.

Seized Last November.

The case has been pending for several months. The steamships were seized last November, and although efforts were made by the American owners to obtain an early trial, the British authorities set the hearing for June. The hearing closed last month, and judgment was reserved until today.

In a long opinion, Sir Samuel said it was plain that these ships were carrying toward Copenhagen when captured more than thirteen times the amount of goods which under normal circumstances would have been taken to that port. That fact gave practical and overwhelming assurance that the goods were intended to find their way to Germany, although, of course, it did not prove conclusively that they were destined for an enemy of Great Britain.

One circumstance throwing light on the real destination of the goods, Sir Samuel said, was that the exportation of lard by one American company alone to Copenhagen in three weeks after the outbreak of the war was twenty times more than in periods of peace. As to tins of canned meat, he said, it had not been shown that they had been sent to Denmark in any great quantity before the war, yet hundreds of thousands were on the way when the vessels were captured. These tins, it seemed, could not have been meant for any persons other than German soldiers.

Referring to the consignments of rubber, described as gum, the President said:

Calls "Gum" a Subterfuge.

"I have come to the conclusion that gum is not a true commercial description for rubber and that it was used in the ships' manifests in order to avoid the difficulty which would result in its capture by a belligerent. Any concealment of this sort will, while I sit in the Prize Court, weigh heavily against those who adopt such courses. Neutrals are expected to conduct their neutral trade during the war without false papers and with candor, and belligerents are entitled to expect from neutrals a frank course of conduct."

Sir Samuel allowed one claim of a Danish manufacturer for a quantity of rubber which he said had been shipped in good faith for use in his factory. Another claim was disallowed.

HESPERIAN NOTE REACHES CAPITAL

Germany Insists in Memorandum That Allan Line Steamship Was Sunk by a Mine.

NO SUBMARINE NEAR SCENE

Now Believed Case Is Closed as Far as the United States Is Concerned.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16. — Secretary Lansing received from Ambassador Gerard at Berlin today the official memorandum of the German Government on the sinking of the Allan Line steamship Hesperian on Sept. 4, in which the Berlin Government asserts its belief that the vessel's loss could not have been the result of a submarine attack. On the contrary, the German Government expressed the opinion that the vessel was destroyed by a mine.

The text of the memorandum was not made public, not even in paraphrase, but according to a description of the communication obtained from high officials of the State Department tonight, the German Government is positive that the Hesperian was not attacked by a submarine. This statement is based on the explanation that all the German submarines that were out on the day that the Hesperian was damaged have been heard from, and the reports from their commanders show that none of them was in the locality where the Hesperian was damaged. The assumption that the vessel hit a mine is based on the fact that the explosion occurred around the bow of the Hesperian, and was of a nature similar to those caused by mines.

In view of the German Government's positive statement of its belief that the Hesperian could not have been damaged by a submarine, there is every indication here that unless further evidence is obtained, the Hesperian case will not figure to any prominent degree, if at all, in the submarine controversy.

As matters now stand, the United States has no evidence, not even circumstantial evidence, to show that the Hesperian was torpedoed. A high official of the Government said that in the present status of the Hesperian case the United States had not sufficient evidence upon which to take further action. The evidence possessed by the Government is not sufficient to show whether the explosion was caused by mine or torpedo.

The principal evidence in the hands of the State Department is in the form of an affidavit signed by the four principal officers of the Hesperian. This statement was cabled to the State Department on Sept. 7 by Consul Frost, at Queenstown. These officers said that at 8:30 o'clock on the night of Sept. 4, "when an explosion took place against the starboard bow No. 2 bulkhead, admitting water into compartments 1 and 2." They said the explosion occurred within about eight feet of the surface, throwing a mass of water and steel fragments on the deck. The affidavit asserted that "from the steel fragments preserved it is indubitable that the explosion was caused by a torpedo and not by a mine," and that the characteristic odor of high explosive was noticeable. They also asserted that no warning had been received by the Hesperian, and that the track of a torpedo approaching the vessel was not observed by any of the ship's officers, and that "no submarine was sighted before or after the explosion." This affidavit stated that the steel fragments found on the deck of the Hesperian had been "preserved," but it was asserted by a high official of the State Department today that no such fragments had been received in Washington and nothing was known as to their present whereabouts.

HOPE IN HAGUE PROPOSAL

Adverse Verdict Given There on the Arabic Case Would Soften Shock to the Public.

HOPEFUL TONE IN PRESS

Von Jagow and Others Also Optimistic After a Night Conference.

From a Staff Correspondent.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Sept. 16.—The political atmosphere here has cleared almost over night so far as America is concerned. Since the Chancellor's return from Munich yesterday many signs have indicated that the crisis had passed and that Germany's actions in the immediate future would be such as to prevent a diplomatic break.

Despite some anxious moments, diplomatic circles had never given up hope that matters would not drift to the catastrophe of a conflict, or even a break, but today hope has given place to confidence. This confidence is based primarily on Count von Bernstorff's successful negotiations for time and the belief that The Hague suggestion has made a favorable impression in America and will pave the way to a permanent understanding regarding the submarine warfare.

The great difficulty confronting the Berlin authorities is to find some formula for placating Washington without wounding German susceptibilities and national pride. This accounts for the tone and certain of the contents of the Arabic memorandum, which undoubtedly was written largely for home consumption. The leading statesmen found themselves in a delicate position, being absolutely unable to admit or even to discuss the possibility that the submarine commander had erred, since a German officer's word of honor in war is law, and anything savoring of a disavowal of the submarine commander's act would have aroused intense feeling not only in the navy, but throughout the army. The facts concerning the Arabic, including the delicate topic of whether the commander erred, can, however, be threshed out before The Hague Tribunal without a shock to German pride, and it is felt here that it is the only possible way to a peaceful solution.

One of the most hopeful signs is that Count von Bernstorff will be empowered to give Washington reassurances of Germany's good faith and future intentions not to torpedo without warning.

Leaders in Conference.

An important conference was held late this evening at the Foreign Office, those present being Foreign Minister von Jagow, Under Secretary Zimmermann, and the American specialists of Wilhelmstrasse. No details were available, but the air of optimism was unmistakable. Reports that America will not answer the Arabic memorandum for the present and that an understanding will be sought by confidential pourparlers between Mr. Lansing and Count von Bernstorff are greeted with lively satisfaction here. The night edition of the Lokalanzeiger calls it a splendid idea, offering the best chances for a friendly solution of the differences.

The widely read National Gazette assures its readers: "Negotiations are being conducted in Washington between the two Governments, from which it is hoped that the existing misunderstandings will be settled. America does not appear to have recognized with sufficient sharpness that Count von Bernstorff's principal statement and the Arabic note are two totally different expressions of intention on the German Government's part and are only superficially connected. The torpedoing of the Arabic is in no sense cleared away. The details of the negotiations cannot be given now, but there is a certain expectation that they will lead to a favorable result which will satisfy both parties. Germany's Arabic note, as a matter of fact, somewhat dampened the joy which had reigned in the United States following Count von Bernstorff's statement that no passenger ships would be torpedoed without warning.

"One can understand this. The assurances given shortly before in Washington, which were hailed with lively satisfaction in America, showed the wish of the overwhelming majority of the American people was to maintain peace with Germany. There can be no talk about Germany's having broken her word given to the United States or trying to liberate herself from a promise. Malicious suggestions, whose object is transparent, have most fortunately made no impression either on the American people as a whole, nor on the Washington Government. The crisis should pass without the serious consequences hoped for by our enemies.

"President Wilson has not allowed himself to be stampeded out of his calm quietness, and the circumstances that the negotiations are being conducted in Washington allows us to conclude that he desires to find a peaceful understanding with Germany. A friendly settlement of the quarrel would in any case be an immense diplomatic success for both the German and American Governments. If the new negotiations lead to a favorable conclusion, both Washington and Berlin can congratulate themselves on a success whose far-reaching consequences cannot be overestimated."

A Navy Man's Views.

That the tension is greatly relaxed is indicated by the fact that the Berlin newspapers which were silent during the crisis, have suddenly, as if on signal, resumed the discussion of the German-American situation. Vice Admiral Kirchhoff, retired, discussing the Arabic memorandum in the Taeglich Rundschau, writes:

"The Arabic incident has been cleared up, as we had suspected it would be. It was not for nothing that we heard how the U-29 and the U-27 were destroyed. An unmolested 'peaceful' passenger ship attacked an enemy warship, not in self-defense, but in violation of international law and sea law, so that our submarine was compelled in self-defense to fire a torpedo, and, of course, without warning. Does our conduct of submarine warfare need any other explanation? And the Hesperian! Was she, too, a harmless little steamer which carried a gun on the bow for defense against Moroccan or Chinese pirates? Perhaps. We see that every English merchantman, big or small, has become a franctireur at sea to be treated according to the laws of war."

"We Germans read with the greatest approval the most recent declaration of the Foreign Office. It is an unequivocal statement regarding an attack by a steamer that carried no flag or neutral sign; whose manoeuvres clearly showed a premeditated attack on the submarine. It should open the eyes of the world to the unscrupulous and illegal means England employs. The closing paragraph of the note is of particular clearness and is beautifully unequivocal. Equally reassuring is the further declaration that The Hague Tribunal shall concern itself with this one case only. This pointed statement alone will make it possible to keep the English from getting the notion into their heads that their ships in future will enjoy more or less immunity."

The Hamburger Fremdenblatt, in a long editorial expressing a friendly feeling toward America, sees in the crisis a plot of the British Foreign Office, working through the Reuter Telegraph Agency, to plunge Germany and America into war. It charges that the Reuter agency sends distorted and highly colored dispatches both ways which are calculated to cause bad blood between Germany and America and frustrate the efforts of those in both countries who are working for a friendly solution of the present difficulties.

The widely read paper rings the changes on the slogan, "Loose from Reuter!" and concludes:

"America undoubtedly will recognize in our willingness to submit the case to The Hague court the fact that we have gone still further to meet America's standpoint; that we have honorably stretched our hand which America can clasp with a good conscience. A conflict between us would be a historical crime. One should smite aside Reuter's fingers which seek to interpose between our hand and that extended from across the Atlantic. Then the understanding won't be far off—an understanding which will mean much for future peace."

GERARD HEARS FROM LANSING.

Gets a Communication—Probably the Arabic Evidence.

BERLIN, Sept. 16. — Ambassador James W. Gerard received today a communication from Washington bearing on the Arabic case and the submarine problem.

Thus far it has been impossible to ascertain the character of the note. The dispatches may possibly embrace a communication from Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador at Washington, giving a report on the situation there. The Ambassador may have chosen this method of forwarding information to his Government, as wireless transmission from the United States is uncertain at the present.

The communication referred to in the foregoing dispatch probably is the evidence in the Arabic case, which was cabled to Ambassador Gerard for the enlightenment of the German authorities.

Bernstorff Going to Cedarhurst.

Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, declined yesterday to supplement the statement he gave out on Wednesday with reference to the situation between this country and Germany. He expects to return to the Summer headquarters of the embassy, near Cedarhurst, L. I., today, and will not return to New York until next Tuesday. It will probably be two weeks before he again visits Washington.

BRITISH SUBMARINE GIVEN UP FOR LOST

Admiralty Says the Turkish Report of the Destruction of the E-7 Is Probably True.

LONDON, Sept. 16.—The Admiralty announced today that in all probability the British submarine E-7 had been sunk off the Dardanelles. The statement says:

"The enemy claims to have sunk the submarine E-7, Lieutenant Commander Archibald D. Cochrane, off the Dardanelles, and to have taken three officers and twenty-five men of the crew prisoners.

"As no news has been received from this submarine since Sept. 4, it must be presumed that this report is correct."

MACKENSEN'S ARMY OCCUPIES PINSK

Hindenburg Drives the Russians Across the Dvina North of Dvinsk.

TEUTONS LOSE IN SOUTH

Driven Back by Czar's Forces from Several Villages on the Galician Front.

KIEV NO LONGER IN PERIL

Military Commandant Orders Peasants in the Southwest to Sow Their Grain as Usual.

LONDON, Friday, Sept. 17.—Stern battles are being fought all along the eastern front, from Riga to the Rumanian border, and while the Germans continue to advance slowly in the north and centre, the Russians in the south are repeating their successes against the Austro-German armies, which are now being driven back across the River Stripa in Galicia and have been forced to retire westward, north of the Galician frontier.

While these Russian victories naturally are welcomed in Russia and the allied countries as an evidence that the Russian armies are still able to take the offensive when well supplied with ammunition, there is no inclination to exaggerate their importance. The engagements, however, keep the Austro-Germans busy and make it imperative to send reinforcements southward, which could be used to better advantage in the north, where operations of much greater moment are being directed by Field Marshal von Hindenburg.

This General, who began his offensive against the Vilna-Dvinsk Railway a week ago, has not yet established himself on the line. His cavalry, which did reach it, has been driven back. Nevertheless he has driven the Russians across the Dvina River, north of Dvinsk, placing that city in a rather dangerous position, and has also made some progress north of Vilna.

To the south of Vilna, toward Grodno, the Russians are offering stubborn resistance and have the Germans firmly held. Something of the same kind has happened in the centre. Prince Leopold has been delayed in his advance. Field Marshal von Mackensen has passed his forces through the Pripet marshes and is now in possession of Pinsk.

From this point southward the Russians are advancing and have reoccupied a number of villages, but they are not likely to push their advantage much further, as to do so would make their northern flank vulnerable.

Russians Fighting Cautiously.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 16.—Although both Dvinsk and Vilna have been flanked and are being hard pressed by the Germans, the Russians are still holding these positions and, according to War Office advices, there is no immediate need for their abandonment. Dvinsk is regarded as the stronger position, because of its protection by the Dvina River. Neither point has further strategic importance except as a section of the general front, each having been emptied of stores and abandoned by Government and private institutions.

Russian successes in the vicinity of Tarnopol, in Galicia, are causing elation in army circles and among the people generally, but it is pointed out that they will not operate to betray the army into pushing incautiously into the Teutonic lines. As an example of the tactics being followed in this respect there is cited the Russian action northeast of Dubno, where after raiding Austrian positions and capturing 1,500 prisoners the Russians voluntarily retired to their former positions.

The line in the southwest is regarded as the more secure since it is guaranteed against a turning movement, one flank resting on the Rumanian frontier and the other on extensive marshes along the Pripet River.

General Ivanoff has ordered land owners and peasants on the southwest to sow grain as usual. The Duma Deputies from Kiev have received assurance from Minister of War Polivanoff that Kiev and the surrounding districts are in no danger, and that there is no reason for their evacuation.

General Beliaeff, Assistant Minister of War, is quoted as declaring that the factories of Kiev must continue to work at full speed. The Ministry of Finance has taken measures to secure the financial position of the southwestern territory.

EXPECT TO LOSE VILNA LINE.

But Russians Are Making Germans Pay Dearly for Successes.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 16, (Dispatch to The London Daily News.)—The German army on the eastern front is daily growing more weary, while the Russians daily are finding themselves nearer fighting on equal terms.

Before Vilna and Rovno the Germans are seventeen miles west of the railway, which is clearly their immediate objective. Between these places the average distance of the German force from the line of their desire is thirty-three miles. Until they reach that line the swift passing of troops up and down the front from one threatened front to another is impossible, and they must reach a position where this mobility is possible before they can safely bring the eastern operations to a standstill, intrench, and detach troops for action elsewhere. At the present minute Russia is holding up the German plan of campaign and destroying the time sheet on which, as we saw last year, the German slavishly depends.

It is hard to believe that the enemy will not eventually reach the Dvinsk-Vilna-Lida-Rovno Railway, because they are willing to go to any length in the expenditure of men. There is no doubt, however, that the Russians will not spare them one particle of the enormous price they must pay to obtain their object. Direct attacks toward Dvinsk already have been very costly.

The Germans are now intrenching west of Vilna. They are apparently expecting considerable delay, because it is reported that three lines of elaborate trenches have been constructed. They can do little here until they succeed in advancing further south.

In the extreme south two attempts to outflank the Russians in Galicia failed, and then the Russians, securing the initiative, advanced, making large captures of men and guns and destroying for the present the enemy's hope of threatening or making easy an advance toward Kiev. The Russians are still advancing west of the River Sereth, where their positions on the river, lakes, and woodland are admirable, both for defense and attack. This illustrates once more the fact, often noticeable in this war, that natural positions with movable and easily screened batteries are far more valuable than elaborate fortresses.

OFFICIAL WAR BULLETINS.

Germans Penetrate Further in Direction of Jacobstadt.

BERLIN, Sept. 16, (via London.)—The following announcement was made by General Headquarters today:

Eastern theatre of war:

Army group of Field Marshal von Hindenburg: On the left bank of the Dvina our troops, fighting successfully, penetrated further in the direction of Jacobstadt.

Near Liwenhof (on the Dvina, twenty-five miles northwest of Dvinsk) the Russians were driven back to the eastern bank.

Northeast of Vilna our attack progresses. East of Grodno the enemy still offers stubborn resistance.

Army group of Prince Leopold: The situation is unchanged.

Army group of Field Marshal von Mackensen: East of Anovoginfo the Russians again attempted to bring our pursuit to a standstill. We broke through the enemy's positions. Six officers and 774 men were taken prisoners and three machine guns were captured. The territory between the Pripet and the Jasiolda, and the City of Pinsk are in German possession.

Southeastern theatre of war:

As on preceding days, the Russian attacks broke down in front of the German lines.

Say Galician Front Is Unshaken.

VIENNA, Sept. 16, (via London.)—The following official communication was issued today:

All the Russian attempts to shake our East Galician front remain without result. Yesterday the enemy, employing a large quatity of artillery munitions, directed his main attacks against our front on the Middle Stripa River. He was repulsed everywhere.

Our troops co-operated in flank attacks from Suczacz bridgehead, and in the region south of Zolocze. The village of Zebrow, twenty kilometers (about twelve and a half miles) south of Zolocze, was taken by storm and eleven officers and 1,900 men and three machine guns were captured.

In Volhynia our forces repulsed several attacks. Near Novo Alexiniec the Russians, in stubborn hand-to-hand fighting, were repulsed from the trenches of Infantry Regiment No. 85.

Near Novo Porjajew the enemy on Sept. 14 succeeded in advancing to points on the western bank of the Ikwa, but was repulsed the following day to the east bank of the river, suffering heavy losses under the flanking fire of our artillery.

POWDER WORKS STORY DENIED

London Paper Calls Explosion Near Petrograd Unimportant.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Friday, Sept. 17.—The Daily Chronicle denies the story published yesterday that an explosion at Okhta Powder Works, near Petrograd, some months ago destroyed the great plant, crippled Russia, and was caused by German agents. It says the facts are as follows:

1. Okhta is not the only munition factory in Russia. It is one of the largest powder mills, but there are seven or eight other works as big as that at Okhta.

2. The explosion did not take place at Okhta, but merely at a small factory devoted to the manufacture of mennite and T. N. T. at a village some miles from Okhta.

3. It was a minor matter, only a small quantity of explosives being destroyed. The damage was slight and easily repaired within a few weeks. The main factory and magazine were untouched.

WAR PLEA FOR LABOR.

Gompers Asks That Rank and File of Citizenship Be Conserved.

President Samuel Gompers of the American Federation of Labor appealed in a bulletin issued yesterday for better working conditions on the ground that bad conditions vitiated the rank and fil of the nation and imperiled the strength on which the country must draw in time of war.

"No nation can possess endurance whose citizens bear the inevitable consequence of sweatshop labor, long workdays, low wages, and unsanitary conditions," said Mr. Gompers. "Those who toil with their hands constitute the rank and file of the citizenship of the nations. If they are underfed, partly clothed, physically stunted, their condition is a menace to the nation, whether in peace or war.

"To realize the nation's ideals, the children of the nation must be assured the right to be well-born, to grow and to play."

DUMA PROROGUED; NATION DISPLEASED

DEPUTIES OPENLY RESENT IT

Laborite and Radical Members Murmur as Imperial Message Is Read at Three-Minute Session.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 16.—The Russian Duma was prorogued today until mid-November, President Rodzianko announcing an imperial order authorizing the prorogation, which had been transmitted through Premier Goremykin.

The session lasted but three minutes. There was a muttering from a section of the Laborite and Radical Deputies of "It is a crime" as the imperial message was read by the Vice President, but the Constitutional Democrats maintained silence.

All the Deputies immediately left the hall, only Deputy Kerensky, a Laborite, who shouted "Down with all traitors!" attempting to speak. The leaders of the Duma decided there should be no debate because M. Kerensky insisted upon his right to say what he liked. Only a score of spectators had gathered in the street. The Deputies as they left the chamber and gathered in private party conferences appeared generally cheerful.

It is pointed out that the Emperor reserved the right to recall the Duma before Nov. 14 if he wished.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 16, (Dispatch to The London Daily Telegraph.)—It is understood that in the Cabinet deliberation which preceded the drawing up of M. Goremykin's report for the imperial headquarters the prorogation of the Duma was opposed by M. Krivoshein, Minister of Agriculture; Prince Shtcherbaoff, Minister of the Interior, and Count Ignatieff, Minister of Education.

M. Goremykin urged that the Duma had already done all that could be expected of it, and the continuance of its sessions would have a disturbing effect on the country. This the Government could not permit. During prorogation under the powers conferred on the Executice by Clause 87 of the fundamental laws a number of measures tending to satisfy the demands put forward in the program of the Progressive bloc could rapidly be adopted by the Administration, and this would have a good effect on public opinion, and possibly the Progressive Nationalists and even the Octobrists would be satisfied by what would be done in this way, and thus the bloc would be weakened, if it was not actually broken up.

To this the opposition element in the Cabinet replied that if the Duma was prorogued this week its role would in all probability be taken up by a conference of associations of Zemstvos and municipalities, which began on Monday in Moscow. M. Goremykin stated, however, that steps had been taken against such a contingency, the Governor and police of Moscow having been summoned to the capital to receive instructions this morning.

The streets here are placarded with the notice issued in the name of General Russky stating that the discussion of topics has led to the suspension of work in the factories and attempts to transfer gatherings to the streets. It calls upon all artisans to remember how important their work is for the welfare of their brothers who are shedding their blood at the front.

LONDON, Friday, Sept. 17.—Reuter's Petrograd correspondent telegraphs:

"There is no disguising the fact that the prorogation of the Duma is most unpopular. The Radical paper Den, which has always been the severest critic of the Duma, says: 'The country was dissatisfied with the Duma, but it was her Duma, her organ, incarnating her hopes and her strivings.'"

SEE RUSSIA IN BAD SHAPE.

German Views on Internal Situation and Grand Duke's Removal.

BERLIN, Sept. 16, (by Wireless to Tuckerton, N. J.)—"All the newspapers," says the Overseas News Agency, "agree that the recent sensational changes in Russia are a necessary consequence of the military and political situation and that the Emperor was compelled to take personal command of the Russian forces in order to prevent still further difficulties arising.

"The removal of Grand Duke Nicholas is commented upon as of the greatest importance politically, as he was the incarnation of the anti-German nationalistic and imperialistic policy of Russia and personally responsible for forcing war upon the Emperor and obtaining the signature of the mobilization order of July, 1914, which precipitated the war.

"The Grand Duke's removal is regarded as having been imperative because of domestic difficulties in Russia, as he was the head of the reactionary element and responsible for the attitude of the Government in failing to keep its promise of better treatment of the Jews and the Poles.

"The military qualities of the Grand Duke are generally acknowledged, his plans resulting in a check to the first advance by Field Marshal von Hindenburg, and his strategical capabilities being shown in his invasion of Austria-Hungary and his conquest of Galicia and Bukowina, only his obstinacy in persistently attacking the Carpathian wall and recklessly sacrificing thousands upon thousands of Russia's best soldiers frustrating his further efforts, in connection with the fact that he met superior Generals in the persons of Field Marshals von Hindenburg and von Mackensen on the German side.

"The consequences of the change must be awaited, the comment runs. It is pointed out that the Grand Duke undoubtedly was loved by the army, while the Emperor was personally unknown to it and was not an inspiring influence. It is considered that the fact that the morale of the Russian Army has been shaken makes the outlook for it under the Emperor's command more unfavorable, as the German armies continue their pressure upon and battering of the Russian lines.

"The military qualities of the Grand Duke are considered far superior to those of his imperial nephew, but it is assumed that his removal was decided upon by the consideration that the Grand Duke would remain morally responsible for all subsequent disasters, while the Emperor would reap the benefit in case the situation should improve. Besides this, the order of the Emperor appointing the Grand Duke to chief command of the army of the Caucasus is considered as possibly indicating that greater importance is to be attached to the operations in this field of war, hitherto seemingly neglected."

APPEALS AGAINST STRIKES.

Commander of Petrograd District Issues Address to Workmen.

PETROGRAD, Sept. 15, (Delayed in Transmission).—General Froloff, Commander of the Petrograd military district, has issued an appeal to workingmen to refrain from strikes, which he says have appeared in certain Petrograd factories.

In his appeal he quotes with approval the declaration of General Ruzsky, Commander in Chief on the northwest front, that strikes in works preparing military stores are treason to the country.

NEW YORK LAWYER A BELGIAN OFFICER

Francis Colby Cited in Orders for Bravery Under Fire and Made a Lieutenant.

RAISED OWN MOTOR SQUAD

A Harvard Man and National Guard Officer, Well Known Here as a Big Game Hunter.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Sept. 16.—Francis T. Colby, a young New York lawyer, has just become a Lieutenant in the Belgian Army after being cited in the Orders of the Day for bravery under fire as a leader of a squad of motor ambulances in which capacity he has served in Belgium for the last ten months. He came to Paris at the outbreak of the war, raised a Red Cross squad by private subscription and offered it to the American Ambulance at Neuilly, provided he was chosen field leader.

After considerable delay he finally left the Americans and was accepted by the Belgians, who recognized that his was the finest equipped squad of ambulances in Europe.

Lieutenant Colby is a Harvard man and was an officer in Squadron A of the New York militia. He is known as a big game shooter in Alaska and Africa.

Francis Thompson Colby, a son of Rear Admiral Harrison Gray Otis Colby, U. S. N., retired, of Boston, Mass., was a lawyer in this city before he went to France. Before that he had been a miner, big game hunter and traveler. He is 33 years old.

Lieutenant Colby was a Lieutenant in Battery E of the Second Field Artillery, N. Y. N. G., under Captain John J. Stephens. The rooms of Captain Stephens at the armory of the Second Field Artillery at Franklin Avenue and 166th Street are now decorated with trophies of Lieutenant Colby's hunting trips in Africa. Chief of the trophies is the mounted head of a two-horned rhinoceros killed by Lieutenant Colby. This is surrounded by the heads of several specimens of African deer and antelope.

Lieutenant Colby was graduated from the Noble & Greenough Classical School at Boston in 1901 and took a degree of A. B. at Harvard in 1905 with honorable mention in political science. He later attended the Boston University Law School. He took an artillery course at the Fort Sill School for Artillery Officers. He went to Alaska looking for gold, and later to New Mexico and Arizona as a prospector, and was for a while a United States Marshal.

He entered the practice of law in this city several years ago, and in 1911 went into partnership with Samuel Thorne, Jr., of 19 Cedar Street. According to friends of his in this city, Lieutenant Colby would practice law for periods of several months, making money which would be used to finance long vacations spent in travel and big game hunting.

He was for a while Secretary of the Missionary Exploration Company, and traveled in Europe and India as well as in Africa. From 1911 to 1912 he was a member of Squadron A, N. Y. N. G., and in 1913 he became a First Lieutenant in the Ordnance Department of the New York National Guard, and later in that year joined Battery E of the Second Field Artillery. He resigned several months ago when he joined the Belgian Army.

Lieutenant Colby is a Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society. His clubs are Harvard, Travellers, Explorers, Tennis and Racquet of Boston, Squadron A, Hasty Pudding of Harvard, Institute of 1770 of Harvard, Delta Kappa Epsilon, Zeta Psi, and Kalumet of Harvard.

His father, Rear Admiral Colby, served on the U. S. S. Dakotah during the civil war; was graduated from the Naval Academy in 1867; commanded the U. S. S. Hannibal and the Second District Coast Defense during the Spanish war; commanded the cruiser division of the North Atlantic fleet in 1894 and 1895, and was retired as Rear Admiral in 1908.

AUSTRIANS PUBLICLY WARNED BY CONSUL

Notice Published in Johnstown, Penn., Paper Against Working in Munition Factories.

JOHNSTOWN, Penn., Sept. 16.—The Hungarian Herald, a foreign newspaper here, this afternoon published a notice from the Austro-Hungarian Vice Consul at Pittsburgh, warning all Austro-Hungarians from engaging in the manufacture of war munitions. The notice stated that this was done by authority of the Austro-Hungarian Embassy at Washington.

The warning calls the attention of subjects of Austria-Hungary to the fact that those who help make war supplies for an enemy country are liable to execution if they return home.

More than 1,000 Austro-Hungarians are employed in the steel mills here, some of which are credited with having orders for shells.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penna., Sept. 16.—Baron von Hauser, the Austrian Vice Consul here, says that he received directions from his Government to notify his follow countrymen of their Government's edict forbidding their working in plants making munitions for its enemies. That he is giving this notification by publication.

EYE ON POLES' $2,500,000.

But National Alliance Rejected Austrian Agents' Proposals.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 16.—Continuing its revelations regarding the Austro-Hungarian propaganda, The Detroit Free Press tomorrow morning will declare that Arthur Walenty Hausner and Dr. Felix Mlynarski, the secret agents of the Austro-Hungarian Government, not only sought to subvert the foreign-language press to Austrian ends, but also to gain control of the Polish National Alliance, with its treasury containing more than $2,500,000.

The propaganda, it is stated, was conceived and abetted in the Vienna Foreign Office. Its inception dates back to shortly after the beginning of the war. Kasimir Gluchowski, editor of The Kuryer of Cleveland, was its representative in the United States. It was he who sponded to the calls for publicity from Dr. Ludwig, Austrian Consul in Cleveland, and published quantities of war "news" via Sayville, which bore in some instances the official "O. K." of Consul Ludwig himself.

Dr. Mlynarski and Hausner conferred with Editor Gluchowski, and were provided by him, when the editor was in Austria, with a list of the foreign-language press of the United States. Notations were made on this list as to susceptibility to influence. The list later was submitted to the Vienna Foreign Office and was passed on by Count Berchtold, Foreign Minister, or his agents. When Mlynarski and Hausner came to the United States it was with this list and with credentials to Ambassador Dumba.

The Polish National Alliance has a membership of more than 125,000. The $2,500,000 in the treasury, which is administered by the officials of the alliance in charitable and relief work, was a morsel in the sight of the Austrian agents, and contributions from it to the Austrian war chest were eagerly entreated. The leaders of the alliance rejected the proposal.

In Detroit the Polish and Austrian populations are in a turmoil over the revelations. Editor Victor A. Lukwinski of the Polish Daily has given strong editorial indorsement to the unmasking of the propaganda. The Polish clergy of the Roman Catholic Diocese of Detroit have added their indorsement.

In Washington, it is said, the Chief of the Department of Justice secret investigators, A. Bruce Bielaski, is prosecuting an inquiry into the matter prior to official action. This inquiry, it is indicated, will touch not only on the inflammatory character of the propaganda, but also will take in alleged violations of the postal laws.

HOUSE GETS SEIZED LETTERS.

Archibald Documents to be Laid Before the Commons Today.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 16.—The documents seized from J. F. J. Archibald on his arrival at Falmouth will be presented in the House of Commons tomorrow afternoon in the form of a parliamentary paper. Altogether the documents run to some thousands of words, one account says between 5,000 and 6,000. Ambassador Dumba's letter to Foreign Minister Burian, already published, forms the piece de resistance of the collection, but the aide memoire furnished by a Hungarian editor, to which Dr. Dumba's letter refers, is the longest. This document is drawn up in Hungarian.

There is also another report, written in German, intended for the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Office.

The letter from Captain von Papen, the German military attache at Washington, of which several accounts have been published, was, according to reliable information, addressed to the attache's wife, and is in a certain sense a private document. In the course of the letter, however, Count von Papen refers to a member of his staff as having lost documents relating to the manufacture of asphyxiating gases.

Finally, amid a variety of letters of relatively little interest and small importance, appears a letter destined for St. John Gaffney, the American Consul at Munich, from certain Irish-Americans.

87,630 BRITISH LOST AT THE DARDANELLES

Of the Casualties Up to Aug. 21, 1,130 Officers and 16,478 Men Were Killed.

LONDON, Sept. 16.—The British casualties at the Dardanelles up to Aug. 21 were 87,630. The number of killed was 17,608.

These figures were included in the grand total of British casualties published earlier in the week.

Today's announcement says that the number of officers killed was 1,130, and the number of men 16,478; wounded, 2,371 officers and 59,257 men; missing, 373 officers and 8,021 men.

The first specific information of the price England is paying for her efforts to win Constantinople is contained in the foregoing figures. It has been known that the fighting on the Gallipoli Peninsula was of the most deadly character, but heretofore official statistics have been lacking. To this total must be added the losses suffered by the French, which have not been revealed.

On Tuesday announcement was made that the grand total of British casualties up to Aug. 21 was 381,983. The loss of 87,630 at the Dardanelles shows that the proportion of losses at the Dardanelles to the casualties on all fronts has been 1 to 4.36.

Notwithstanding the intensity of this fighting, the proportion of killed to wounded has not been higher at the Dardanelles than elsewhere. The ratio at the Dardanelles has been nearly the same as on all fronts, or approximately 1 to 4 1-3 in each instance. Before the present war, with its scientific methods of destruction, the proportion of killed to wounded was usually calculated at about 1 to 10.

German Government, for the use of its naval and military forces. To rule otherwise, Sir Samuel said, would be to allow one's eyes to be blinded by theories and technicalities.

Sir Samuel Evans's decision has aroused intense interest among all the representatives of American packing firms here, including those not immediately involved, as no American meat products have been shipped to European neutrals since May, and the unfavorable result of the packers' case is likely to cause further stoppage of this trade.

Packers Announce Appeal.

"We intend to carry the case to the Privy Council, where we expect to win," said Alfred R. Urion, attorney for the Chicago packers. "Should the decision there be adverse, we shall carry it still further."

It is known that the packers, in the event of losing in the Privy Council, will turn further appeals into diplomatic channels, with an international commission as a possible court of final appeal. The packers contend that, as the Orders in Council of last March were not in force when the ships were seized, the seizures occurring last Autumn, it is not even incumbent upon them to prove that the cargoes were not destined for a nation at war with Great Britain. They believe such a contention would be upheld by an international tribunal.

Since the cargoes were seized many efforts have been made to settle the matter out of court. At one time the opposing parties are said to have come within $2,000,000 of arriving at a settlement. While the negotiations were under way the representatives of the packers offered to sell the products in such a manner as not to disturb the English meat market, and allow the authorities to impound the money until the case was settled. Such a procedure was represented to the Government as meaning a great saving, no matter which side won, as the products were not suitable for the English market and could only be sold by the Admiralty auctioneers at prices much below the normal. This offer was rejected by the Government.

Many consignments have been sold at auction since then at prices below the Chicago cost of production. Several thousand tons of seized products also were allowed to spoil while being transshipped.

Virtually all of the cargoes actually owned by Chicago packers and shipped to order, the approximate value of which is $15,000,000, has been confiscated by the prize court order. An additional $7,000,000 worth of products consigned to and already paid for by Danish consignees has been turned over in great part to the owners. The Cudahy consignment, valued at $110,000 and consigned direct to Danish owners, has also been released.

WILL EXHAUST APPEAL FIRST.

Then State Department May Take Up Packers' Case Diplomatically.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—Officials of the State Department were interested, but not surprised, by the finding of the British Prize Court which today condemned the American packing house products. Whether the Government will protest against any feature of the decision will be decided later, in all probability not until after the legal remedies available in England have been exhausted. Then, if it appears that there has been any denial of justice, the State Department will take the matter up diplomatically.

The attitude of the United States toward the Prize Court proceedings, so far as the packers' cases were concerned, was announced by Secretary Lansing on July 14 when he sent what is known as the American Caveat note to Ambassador Page for delivery to the British Government. That note was sent following a conference between attorneys representing the Chicago packers and Chandler P. Anderson, Special Counsel for the State Department, at which meeting detailed information regarding the detained meat shipments in England were laid before the State Department. In the Caveat note of July 14, Secretary Lansing said:

"In view of differences which are understood to exist between the two Governments as to the principles of law applicable in prize court proceedings in cases involving American interests, and in order to avoid any misunderstanding as to the attitude of the United States in regard to such proceedings, you are instructed to inform the British Government that in so far as the interests of American citizens are concerned, the Government of the United States will insist upon their rights under the principles and rules of international law, as hitherto established, governing neutral trade in time of war, without limitation or impairment by Orders in Council or other municipal legislation by the British Government, and will not recognize the validity of Prize Court proceedings taken under restraints imposed by British municipal law in derogation of the rights of American citizens under international law."

In a reply to this note, under date of July 31, Sir Edward Grey, speaking for the British Government, said that while the legality of the measures taken by the British Government had not, up to that time, formed the subject of a decision by the British Prize Court, nevertheless, "it is open to any United States citizen whose claim is before the Prize Court to contend that any Order in Council which may affect his claim is inconsistent with the principles of international law and is, therefore, not binding upon the court."

Sir Edward Grey said further that if the Prize Court should decline to accept the contentions of the American claimant, the matter might be appealed and that if, after appeal, the Prize Court decision should be upheld by the "Judicial Committee of His Majesty's Privy Council," and the United States Government should consider that there was "serious ground for holding the decision is incorrect and infringes the rights of their citizens, it is open to them to claim that it should be subjected to review by an international tribunal."

It was pointed out that the principle that the decisions of Prize Courts might properly be subjected to international review was conceded by Great Britain and the United States in the Treaty of Washington of 1871, under which an international commission met in Washington to consider cases growing out of the operations of American cruisers during the Civil War, among them what are collectively known as the Matamoras cases, in each of which the decisions of American Prize Courts, which had been reviewed by the United States Supreme Court, were passed upon by the commission of 1871, which met in Washington.

The cases decided in London today constituted part of a series of cases pending before the Prize Court involving thirty-six steamers. The value of the cargoes on all the ships was stated by the packers to the State Department, to be about $15,000,000. The value of the goods on the four ships involved in today's Prize Court decision is understood to have been about $2,500,000, but the action taken by the Prize Court today is interpreted as a criterion of the attitude of the Prize Court, and it is believed that most of the goods in the other ships likewise will be confiscated.

PACKERS WILL URGE PROTEST.

To Take Up with State Department Britain's Meat Confiscation.

CHICAGO, Sept. 16.—If the confiscation of American meat cargoes ordered in London today is upheld on appeal from the British Prize Court, Chicago packers will lose approximately $15,000,000, at which these shipments and others held up under similar circumstances are valued. The packers, however, have not yet given up the fight.

Attorneys Henry Veeder, C. J. Faulkner, Jr., and M. W. Borders, representing, respectively, Swift & Co., Armour & Co., and Morris & Co., this afternoon gave out this joint statement:

"England's confiscation of $2,500,000 worth of American meat products, as announced in the brief press dispatches today, is not justified by the facts or by any principle of international law. It can only be construed as another step in England's policy to interfere with the trade of American citizens, with the citizens of neutral countries. All these shipments were destined for neutral countries, and the ships' papers at the time of their seizure clearly showed such fact. They were not destined to or for the enemy of Great Britain, and upon the trial of the case no evidence showing that they were destined to such enemy of Great Britain was adduced, and none could have been. This makes necessary further presentation of stronger protests to the Department of State for an equitable adjustment of the claims.

"Prior to the time of the seizure of these shipments every effort was made to comply with every regulation and restriction the various Orders in Council issued by the Government of Great Britain placed upon such shipments, even though such orders were clearly in violation of the principles of international law and concerning which orders our State Department notified the Government of Great Britain that this Government would not recognize any prize court decision based upon Orders in Council or upon any rules or regulations other than the recognized principles of international law.

"Arbitrary and Unwarranted."

"Notwithstanding the fact of compliance with every order issued by them, whether reasonable or otherwise, American goods were seized and taken into English ports and held there for many months before opportunity was given to present the claims in the prize courts. From the very start these seizures have been arbitrary and unwarranted and in spite of vigorous protests of our State Department to the representatives of Great Britain.

"It would appear from the brief dispatches that the court bases its right to seize the shipments on the theory that the amount of products being shipped to Denmark in these neutral ships is in excess of quantities received prior to the declaration of war. These neutral countries received large quantities of these products through German ports prior to the war and through other sources of supply which the war shut off. That these countries want more of our products than before furnished no justification for such seizure.

"In contradiction of this contention, Sir Samuel Evans, who decided this case, stated in another case:

In the Antares case, March 8, 1915, (as reported in Lloyds list,) it was pointed out by the Judge that the exports of American copper for neutral countries contiguous to Germany had increased for a period during the war corresponding with a similar period in 1913 from about 7,000,000 in 1913 to over 35,000,000 in 1914, but, said the President, (Sir Samuel Evans,) I am not saying for a moment that this is proof that this copper was intended for Germany.

"In referring to the large increase of shipments of coal from England to neutral countries since the beginning of hostilities, Premier Asquith said;

This increase in the exports of coal from Great Britain to Scandinavian countries was not so much due to—and indeed was not due at all—to their being ultimately destined to Germany as to the fact that these countries were deprived for the time being of the supplies that they have been accustomed to receive from the enemy country.

"These quotations from Sir Samuel Evans and Premier Asquith are interesting in view of the reasons given by Sir Samuel Evans for his decision in the packers' case as reported in the press dispatches today.

A Measure of Reprisal.

"There are a number of other shipments of packing house products, valued at $12,000,000, being held up by England, which have never been brought to the Prize Court. England seeks to justify confiscation of these cargoes on the theory of necessity for reprisal against Germany, the same explanation which was given by Germany for its submarine activities. As a matter of fact, the effect of these seizures is to injure and destroy the neutral trade of this country, with whom England is ostensibly at peace. There is absolutely no justification under international law or under any Order in Council for any of the seizures made by Great Britain.

"The situation is such that the packers are making very light shipments to neutral countries for fear of further seizures, in view of their past experience. It is of paramount importance that our Government protest promptly and vigorously against England's interference with our trade with neutral nations, and also insist upon the opening of neutral markets to as unrestricted shipments from this country as were enjoyed previous to the outbreak of the war.

"The result of Great Britain's present policy has had a depressing effect on the livestock market, and the continuance of this policy will have further depressing effect on the livestock industry."

Complete Loss to the Packers.

The meat cargoes confiscated will be a complete loss to the packers, according to Thomas E. Wilson, President of Morris & Co., as no advance payments had been made on the shipments.

Henry Veeder of counsel for Swift & Co. said that the contentions of the packers would be pushed as far as possible.

"Probably we shall appeal," he said. "Just what action we shall take to obtain further assistance from Washington cannot be stated at present. The packers must first confer."

Guy C. Shepard, Vice President of the Cudahy Packing Company, which escaped with slight loss, said that his company proved that its shipments had been bought outright by Danish merchants.

C. J. Faulkner, Jr., of the legal staff of Armour & Co., said:

"I don't see how England justifies that decision. The goods shipped on three of the four ships involved were sent before the English Order in Council was issued. We could not stop the shipments when the order did come out; they were on the ocean.

"England put the burden of proof on us to show that the shipments would not reach Germany. We could not know, of course, to whom the Danish buyers would sell their meat, and it was practically impossible to furnish proof. The United States notified England in July that this view of the regulations could not be recognized."

LONDON PRESS ON MEAT CASE.

Chronicle Says Influence of Enemy Destination Is Irresistible.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Friday, Sept. 17.—London newspapers this morning comment on the British Prize Court of the American meat cargoes.

"Sir Samuel Evans yesterday, by his judgment in the case of the four Scandinavian steamers," says The Chronicle, "embodied in the English prize law the much disputed doctrine of continuous transport. The effect of this decision is that if neutral ships, bound apparently to neutral ports, are carrying cargoes which if consigned direct to the enemy would be seizable as contraband, and if there is evidence to show that these goods were to be delivered to the enemy after being landed at a neutral port, such cargoes are liable to be condemned as contraband.

"The Crown had asked for the condemnation of the four vessels and the bulk of their cargoes on the ground that they were destined ultimately for the enemy, Copenhagen being used as an entrepot. During the hearing it was stated that there were thirty-eight other vessels in regard to which practically the same issues were raised.

"Sir Samuel Evans came to the clear conclusion from the facts proved and the reasonable and indeed irresistible inference from them that the cargoes claimed by the shippers as belonging to them at the time of seizure were not on their way to Denmark to be incorporated by the common stock of that country by consumption or bona fide sale, or otherwise, but, on the contrary, that they were on their way not only to German territory, but also to the German Government and their forces for naval and military use as their real ultimate destination, and that to hold to the contrary would be to allow one's eyes to be filled by the dust of theories and technicalities and to be blinded to realities.

He held that there were certain exceptions, such as small consignments to Danish consignees, and allowed claims for release in the case of eight cargoes. He ordered the goods or the net proceeds thereof, if sold, to be released to the respective claimants. Claims in respect of sixteen cargoes were disallowed. He pronounced condemnation as prize on the goods comprised in them or their proceeds, if sold. The President gave leave for all parties to appeal and fixed the amount of security for costs at £5,000, to be allocated between the various appellants.

"His Lordship said that the doctrine of continuous voyage and transportation had become part of the law of nations at the commencement of the present war and that therefore the court was entitled to take a more extended outlook in order to see what the ultimate destination of the goods was. If consignment by neutrals of contraband goods after the outbreak of hostilities were made simply to order, that would be regarded as a matter for suspicion. Shippers and owners of cargo should be expected to know the ultimate destination of goods which they were forwarding."

The Times in its editorial on the judgment says:

"Fortunately Sir Samuel Evans rejected contentions which, if adopted, would have reduced to a nullity a blockade of German ports and saw his way to arrive at a decision which will maintain and strengthen the efficacy of our sea power. It may be that in the opinion of international lawyers he has expanded somewhat the doctrine of continuous voyage as applied to contraband. His decision is probably the most advanced point to which that doctrine has been carried, but he could not help taking note of modern conditions of trade and warfare which have enormously facilitated for the Continental States the importation of contraband.

"His decision is in accordance with the spirit of the authorities of the time of Lord Stowell and Mr. Justice Story and it will be noted with satisfaction that in what was mainly a contest between the British Crown and American claimants the President was influenced very much by decisions of the United States courts during the Civil War. The most in point were the judgments of Chief Justice Chase and his colleagues in regard to British cargoes seized as contraband. The result, if adverse to American shippers, may be said to be a compliment to American jurisprudence."

PROOFS ALONE NEEDED TO GET GERMAN GOODS

British Government Denies It Discriminates Against American Trade Advisers.

LONDON, Sept. 16.—The Government denied today that it had any intention to discriminate against the American State Department foreign trade advisers in favor of representatives of private trade interests in securing the release of goods of German or Austrian origin consigned to the United States from neutral ports.

The Government points out that its policy now is to order the release of any such goods on the production of proof that they either were paid for in actual cash before March 1 or that the American owners ordering the goods before that time will ultimately be compelled to pay for them. Acting on this policy, the Government will release cargoes as quickly as representatives of American importers produce the required proofs, and no distinction will be made between private representatives and the State Department's foreign trade advisers, it is stated.

Inquiry in American diplomatic circles here today showed that private interests profiting by concessions from the British Government, most of which have seen the result of the labors of the American Consulate and Embassy here, produce the required proof without delay and without troubling to lay their case before the British authorities through the usual diplomatic channels.

These representatives either send their proofs to the Foreign Office or take them direct to the Procurator General of the Prize Court or the Admiralty Marshal, and their enterprise usually is rewarded by a speedy release of the cargoes which they represent. One of the chief complaints of both the official and private representatives of the American importers is the slowness with which the importers send in the required proofs.

The American Embassy now has the question of alleged discrimination under consideration, and the matter soon will be called to the attention of the British Government.

A recent Washington dispatch said that Consul General Skinner at London had been directed by cable to inquire into reports that private interests in England had again been obtaining permits for the shipment to America from neutral ports of German or Austrian goods, a privilege still withheld from the State Department's foreign trade advisers, acting informally as the representatives of American importers.

GERMAN DRUGS COMING OUT.

Sir Edward Grey Explains Blockade in House of Commons.

LONDON, Sept. 16.—Sir Edward Grey, the Foreign Secretary, explained in the House of Commons today that the Government was not interfering with the shipment from Germany of goods contracted and paid for by neutrals prior to March 1. To hinder such shipments, he said, would injure only neutrals.

He said also that Great Britain was permitting free passage of drugs and certain chemicals, produced only in Germany, for which neutrals had an imperative need.

The Foreign Secretary made this statement in reply to a question as to why the Government was permitting Germany to export certain goods to America.

British Detain Tanker Muskogee.

LONDON, Sept. 13, (Delayed by Censor.)—The American tank steamer Muskogee, from New Orleans for Gothenburg, and the Danish steamer Polarstjernen, from Baltimore for Gothenburg, have been detained by the British authorities. The Swedish steamer Sir Edward Cassel has been released.

The Muskogee sailed from Newport News on Aug. 27. The Polarstjernen sailed from Baltimore on Aug. 23. The Sir Ernest Cassel sailed from Philadelphia on Aug. 24 for Narvik, Norway.

MISSION BOARD TOLD OF TURKISH HORRORS

Correspondents Confirm the Reports of the Wiping Out of Armenians.

SCATTERED OVER EMPIRE

Christian Cities Cease to Exist as Such and Inhabitants Are Driven Far from Home.

Under the caption "In Darkest Turkey," the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions says that it has at hand "abundant and undeniable evidence" confirmatory of the newspaper reports concerning the persecution of the Christian subjects of the Ottoman Empire.

"This evidence," says the board, "does not come through letters from the missionaries; they write briefly and of their own affairs; they refrain from discussing political affairs. They seek to maintain a neutral attitude in this time of strife.

"But from other sources, in roundabout but absolutely reliable ways, come to the board rooms accounts of proceedings in many parts of Turkey that are so appalling as to be almost beyond belief. They indicate a systematic, authorized and desperate effort on the part of the rulers of Turkey to wipe out the Armenians.

"Apparently the uprising of Armenian revolutionists at Van, which paved the way for Russian occupation of that city without resistance, has been seized by the Turks as a pretext for a general attack upon the Armenians everywhere. In some cases by massacre, more often through torture and exile, they are being eliminated from the field; they are being put where they need no longer be considered.

"Along the track of the Russian armies toward the Persian border, from Van to Moush and Bitlis, in the cities of Eastern Turkey, such as Diarbekir, Harpoot and Mardin, and especially in Central Turkey and the region stretching to the south, this cruel, relentless persecution has been for some time under way.

Report by a British Resident.

"A British resident of Constantinople who had left that city and was temporarily at a Mediterranean port beyond the reach of the censor, writes as follows:

> You have probably learned something of the sad condition of the Armenians from the papers, but probably nothing gets through that in any adequate way portrays the desperate straits in which these poor people find themselves.
>
> You may have heard that Zeitoon has ceased to exist as an Armenian town. The inhabitants have been scattered, the city occupied by Turks and the very name changed. The same is true to a large extent of Hadjin, except, I believe, the name has not been altered. The Armenians of the regions of Erzrum, Bitlis and Erzingen have, under torture, been converted to Islam. Mardin reports 1895 conditions (the year of the infamous massacre) as prevailing there. The tale is awful to the last degree.
>
> More than a thousand families from Hadjin recently arrived in Aleppo in the last degree of misery, and yet the purpose is to send them much further. Husbands are forcibly separated from wives and sent to places long distances apart. Children are similarly separated from parents.

The board also makes the following report from persons in Northern Syria not connected with the missionary circle, but said to be of unquestioned reliability:

"Between 4,300 and 4,500 families—about 28,000 persons—are being removed by order of the Government from the districts of Zeitoon and Marash to distant places, where they are unknown, and in distinctly non-Christian communities. Thousands have already been sent to the northwest into the provinces of Konia, Cesarea, Castiamouni, &c., while others have been taken southeasterly as far as Dier-el-Zor, and reports say to the vicinity of Bagdad. The misery these people are suffering is terrible to imagine. To go into details would be useless waste of time, for all the sufferings that a great community would be subject to in such circumstances are being experienced.

"About 300 persons, heads of prominent families, have been imprisoned in Marash, of which some fifty are from Zeitoon and about fifty from Osmanieh. From Zeitoon about 350 families, or about 2,000 persons, have been sent to Marash and from there to Aintab, and are expected to arrive in Aleppo about May 15, to be sent to Meskene, while about 250 or more families are expected to follow before May 20, to report to the Governor of Aleppo. These latter are more fortunate than the first mentioned, as there is a different opinion prevailing in the competent official circles of that city. Seventy-one families were sent to Konia about April 25.

ITALIAN ALPINISTS RAID MOUNTAIN PEAKS

Austrian High Explosive Bombs Found to Contain Prussic Acid.

ROME, Sept. 16.—In the statement issued by General Headquarters today the statement is made that prussic acid in large quantities has been found in Austrian high explosive bombs used in the trench fighting in Carso. The communication follows:

> Our mountaineer detachments during the day of Sept. 14 made bold raids against the enemy's positions at Cresta, Villa Corna, (10,000 feet,) at the head of the Foce Torrent, and at Conoa di Presena, in the upper Genova valley.
>
> Climbing the most difficult ground and glaciers with their usual skill and hardihood, the Alpines reached the enemy's entrenchments and attacked and partly destroyed them. They returned to their own positions without being seriously assailed.
>
> There is nothing worthy of special mention on the rest of the front.
>
> An analysis of high explosive bombs thrown by the enemy into our saps on Carso the past few days has revealed the presence of large quantities of prussic acid.
>
> An aeroplane yesterday made a swift raid on the Vicenza district, throwing a bomb from a great altitude on Asiago Height. The material damage was minor. Several persons were slightly injured.

VIENNA, Sept. 16.—The following report of the operations on the Italian frontier was issued today by the War Office:

> There has been no change in the situation. Italian attempts to turn our east flank at Monte Piano were frustrated.

TEUTONS LOSE HOPE OF AIDING THE TURKS

Austrian Circles Expect Collapse of Gallipoli Defense, an Athens Dispatch Says.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ATHENS, Sept. 16, (Dispatch to The London Daily Chronicle.)—Interesting information has reached me from thoroughly reliable sources with regard to the position facing Germany in the matter of furnishing fresh help for the hard pressed Turks. Turkish mission lately has been in Berlin in order to point out to the military authorities there the circumstances of the Ottoman Empire which make resistance after the end of September an extremely difficult matter in the absence of effective assistance from Germany.

I learn in Austrian circles that this news created something like consternation in Berlin, the intensity of pessimistic feeling being increased by the recognition of the practical impossibility of further propping up the Turkish Army.

When the campaign against Russia brought its early successes, the German General Staff's plan was to penetrate to Odessa and furnish assistance for the Turks across the Black Sea. The powerful resistance met with from the Russians on the southern portion of the tremendous battle line has shown the Germans any hopes they had of carrying through such ambitions would have to be abandoned.

The plan for pushing through the Timok region of Northeast Serbia from Orsova over the Danube and so to the Vidin district and through Bulgaria to Constantinople was examined. Despite its success against Russia, however, the Austro-German army found itself so heavily employed that it was impossible to withdraw men in sufficient numbers to undertake an attack on Serbia at the place where an offensive would have to encounter serious natural obstacles as well as formidable fortifications.

The Germans recognize that time is now against them in this particular zone of the great waf area, and I am told by a diplomat that the belief in Vienna is that the Gallipoli Peninsula at least will be in the Allies' hands at an early date.

RAIN OF PROJECTILES UNABATED IN THE WEST

Violent Cannonading North and South of Arras, in Belgium and Lorraine.

LONDON, Sept. 16.—The continued cannonading on the greater part of the western front was varied today by mine-throwing exchanges in the forest of Le Prêtre and yesterday by hand-grenade fighting north of Arras. The bridgehead at Sapigneul was again the object of German artillery fire, and the French report satisfactory results from the shelling of their adversaries' lines near Nieuport and in Lorraine.

To-night's official communication from Paris follows:

> In Belgium, in the sector of Nieuport, the fire of our heavy artillery has been efficacious.
>
> In the region of Neuville and Roclincourt and around Arras, as well as between the Aire and the Oise, our batteries have engaged in very energetic actions in reply to a violent bombardment by the enemy.
>
> The cannonade still continues vigorously around Sapigneul, on the canal from the Aisne to the Marne, as well as to the north of the Châlons camp.
>
> There has been a bombardment by both sides with guns of various calibres between the Aisne and the Argonne. At St. Hubert a combat with large bombs has occurred, our artillery participating on divers occasions.
>
> In the forest of Le Prêtre the activity of German mine-throwers has provoked a violent reply from our trench cannon and field guns.
>
> In Lorraine, on the Veille and the Outre, our batteries have poured a destructive fire on the organizations of the enemy.

The afternoon communiqué says:

> Yesterday witnessed fighting with grenades at the sapheads in the sector of Neuville. A bombardment of the suburbs of Arras brought forth a vigorous reply from our artillery directed against the batteries and the trenches of the enemy. There was also fighting with mines in the region of Frise, in the Department of the Somme.
>
> There was artillery firing during all last night around Roye and in the vicinity of Lassigny, where our shells started fires. In the region of Berry-au-Bac, in Champagne, near St. Hilaire and Auberive, in the Northern Woevre district, and in the Vosges at Ban-de-Sapt, the night also was marked by fairly spirited artillery actions.

The Berlin report merely says of the fighting on the western front:

> Nothing of importance has occurred.

BRITISH TO LEAVE VILLA STATES ALSO

Consuls and Subjects to Withdraw with Americans—France Inquires After Mexican Affairs.

NEW HEARING FOR FACTIONS

Conference Plans to Receive Representatives—Important Meeting Here Tomorrow.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—The interest of European Continental nations in the solution of the Mexican problem was again demonstrated today when diplomatic representatives of the British and French Governments called at the State Department to seek information concerning the situation. France was represented by Jules Jusserand, the French Ambassador, who called on Secretary Lansing during the middle of the day for the primary purpose of discussing Mexican affairs.

Later in the day Coville Barclay, the counselor of the British Embassy, called on a similar mission. Incidental to the visit of Counselor Barclay, the fact was developed that all British consular officers in Villa territory in Northern Mexico will probably withdraw from their posts when the American Consuls, who have been instructed to leave their posts in the States of Durango, Sonora, and Chihuahua return to the United States. Instructions have been sent to British Consuls in these States to communicate with the nearest American Consuls, and to leave when the American Consuls leave, or when in their judgment withdrawal becomes necessary. As American citizens have been warned to leave these States, it is probable that British subjects there will be similarly warned.

Secretary Lansing today characterized as a precautionary measure the State Department's advice to American citizens to leave the danger zones in northern Mexico. Not only are reprisals against Americans in that region feared, but it was also pointed out that the advance of Carranza troops against the Villa strongholds in Chihuahua and Sonora, with imminent fighting on an extensive scale, and reports of lawlessness by bandits in northern Mexico, made precautionary measures necessary. The instructions, it was exulained, were similar to those given to American Consular officers in Europe wherever the contending armies draw near cities precautionary measures necessary. The instructions, it was explained, were similar to those given to American Consular officers in Europe wherever the contending armies draw near cities previously untouched by the fighting.

Secretary Lansing will leave Washington tomorrow afternoon for New York to attend the conference of the Pan-American conferees on the Mexican situation to be held in that city on Saturday. It is understood that the conferees in their New York meeting will accept the invitation of Carranza for a meeting with him to consider international aspects only of the Mexican situation. As explained in THE NEW YORK TIMES this morning, the Pan-American conferees will not go to the Rio Grande to meet Carranza, but will ask Carranza to name delegates to meet the Pan-American conferees in Washington or New York, the time and place for the meeting to be arranged by an exchange of communications. This, it is understood on high authority, will be satisfactory to Carranza.

It is understood that there has been no decision yet in favor of recognition of Carranza, and that this decision will not be reached until convincing assurances are given that the Carranza faction is actually able to restore law and order in Mexico, make amends for past damages to foreign lives and property, and give definite guarantees as to the future.

If Carranza meets the requirements of foreign nations respecting their claims, he would also have to prove himself strong enough to crush Villa and master the situation before recognition would be considered.

It is said to be the intention of the Pan-American conferees to give an audience also to representatives of other Mexican factions who already are en route to Washington, so that before a final decision is reached the entire situation with respect to recognition may be carefully studied from all viewpoints.

The proposal of General Carranza, if recognized, to give due attention to the matter of claims through joint commissions is understood to have attracted the attention of the French Government and is believed to have been one of the purposes of Ambassador Jusserand's call today.

SETTLE THEIR GRUDGE AS GERMANS LOOK ON

Two Canadians Fight Between the Lines, the Foe Keeping Hands Off.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE, Sept. 16.—The Canadian newspaper men yesterday visited desolate Ypres, the new Pompeii, which the "Tommy" calls "Wipers." It was receiving its morning meed of German shrapnel. We lunched with General Alderson and saw the German aeroplane just brought down by an 18-year-old Lieutenant and his pilot after a thrilling air contest.

The First Brigade of the Canadian Division is full of Toronto and Ontario men and officers, who honor Toronto by naming the trenches after the home streets. We visited Osgoode Hall and Loew's Theatre among other points of interest in the trenches. All ranks are radiantly healthy and comfortable. They are a little impatient with the present inaction, but subject to practically no casualties under present conditions. Major Bayes Smith, Lieutenant Hal Gordon, Captain W. Bane Wedd, and Major H. G. Wickens (Paymaster of the Toronto regiment) were among Toronto officers we met. Many of them are Royal Canadian Yacht Club representatives and men who have fought over the pigskin on the Varsity campus.

One is impressed with the curious atmosphere of comradeship in the trenches. Here was absolute cheerfulness, even occasional hilarity, but all with an undertone of steadfastness, resolution, and preparedness for instant and absolutely unselfish action in the great cause. One is impressed with the contrast between these quietly smiling, hospitable little communities of brave young men, brotherhoods in every sense, and the pretty sordidness which to often envelops the struggles of individuals at home.

I do not mean that the trenches are saintly. Last night two Calgary men fought and ran through a sap into "no man's land," where they rolled in the dirt, oblivious to bullets overhead. "It is a fir fight!" shouted a Vancouver Corporal through a megaphone. "Let 'em fight it out, Bosches!" and the Bosches did. When the fight was over the victor dragged the vanquished back to safety through the sap. This is for a touch of humor. They need it; but, on the other hand, the audiences in Canadian theatres could stand just a touch of this atmosphere. This is an affair of brothers, not individuals.

BRITISH NAVY DISAPPOINTED

Beatty Says All It Has to Do Is Miss Mines and Dodge Submarines.

LONDON, Friday, Sept. 17.—"Barging about the North Sea" was a phrase used by Vice Admiral Sir David Beatty, commander of the first battle cruiser squadron, in commenting cheerfully on the men whose operations are confined to "mising mines and dodging submarines," in a speech at the opening of the Naval Institute yesterday.

"More than a year ago," said Admiral Beatty, "we started the war in the navy with a whoop of joy. We were at last to put to the proof the weapon which we had spent many years in perfecting, and congratulated ourselves on the opportunity to prove to the world that the British Navy was absolutely incalculably a factor. We started full of promise of what we were about to do, but the promise has fallen away."

Sir David said it was galling to the men to have to read in the newspapers of the glorious deeds of their fellows over the world while they were unable themselves to meet the enemy.

GERMAN TRADE THRIVING.

Railroad Traffic Above the Normal, Overseas Bureau Reports.

BERLIN, Sept. 16, (by Wireless to Sayville, L. I.)—The Overseas News Agency today issued this information:

"As indicating the healthy state of German life the figures giving details of railroad traffic during July, 1915, are cited. These show that the transportation of merchandise was 2.6 per cent. in excess of July, 1914, exceeding all records. Only 7.59 per cent. of the total represented goods for the army."

WHITMAN SUPPORTS REVISED BASIC LAW

Governor Declares Himself in Private Conferences and in Speech at Syracuse.

MEETS UP-STATE LEADERS

Tells Hendricks's Guests That He Favors Reforms—Warm Reception at the Fair.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, Sept. 16.—Governor Whitman has taken his stand on the revised Constitution. Both in private conferences with Republican leaders here and in a public address which he delivered at the State Fair grounds the Governor made it perfectly clear that he expected the new Constitution to be ratified by the voters on Nov. 2. The Republican leaders until today were frankly dubious with regard to the Governor's attitude, and many of them were preparing to support the new Constitution in a half-hearted manner until after they had talked with him. In this city in particular it had been prophesied that the Republican organization would not go out of its way to make propaganda for the Constitution.

The Governor had not been here more than two hours before he learned all there was to know regarding the attitude of the local Republicans on the subject. Francis Hendricks, the veteran Republican leader of Onondaga County, has been regarded until today as decidedly opposed to the short-ballot plan and the budget reforms contained in the new Constitution.

At a dinner which he gave in the Governor's honor last night, attended by nearly all the leading Republicans in this region and by a sprinkling of prominent men representing the other parties, the new Constitution became the topic of after-dinner discussion, in an informal way, however.

A majority of those who participated in the discussion told the Governor that there were many things in the revised Constitution which they did not like, and other things they did not understand. Chancellor Day of Syracuse University, who was one of the guests, discussed the new fundamental law in a frankly critical spirit, and was warmly applauded by the Republican organization leaders who listened to his remarks.

Favors New Constitution.

The Governor, in what he said at the dinner, made it plain that he regarded the good things in the new Constitution as outweighing by far the features to which some Republicans might conscientiously object. He pointed out that both in his inaugural address and in his annual message to the Legislature he had come out strongly in favor of the short ballot and of the budget reforms which the Constitutional Convention had adopted.

The Governor declined today to make any statement for publication defining his attitude on the new Constitution. This was on the ground that the making of a Constitution was not within the realm of topics that he could properly discuss, but in his speech at the fair grounds the Governor made such indirect references to the subject as could be susceptible of only one interpretation, and yet could not be construed as an attempt to influence votes either for or against the new basic law.

The Republican leaders have about made up their minds that it would be unwise to make a party issue of the Constitution. By doing so they might leave an opening for the Democrats or perhaps force similar action on the part of the Democrats. By making it a matter of individual conscience with the voters they leave the way open for freedom of action unhampered by any restraint imposed through party policy among their Democratic opponents.

The Governor's reference in his speech today was to the serial bonds provision in the revised Constitution. He made it in connection with some utterances related to the direct tax. Here is what the Governor said:

"I have not intended to discuss matters of politics or matters of State administration at this time. I understand that it has been more or less customary for the Executive on Governor's Day to review the work of his administration and to make promises for the future. I may not felicitate the people of the State upon the fact that you are free from a direct State tax, but I think I may felicitate you upon paying, and upon the State's ability to pay, the obligation of New York to its citizens, upon canceling debts and preserving the integrity and honor of the State. I hope to be with you on Governor's Day next year, and I hope that I may under the pay as you go policy bring you a different message of congratulation upon your temporary freedom from taxation when that freedom means nothing but the putting off of the day of settlement, the avoiding of honest obligations, or the shouldering upon a succeeding administration the burden of debt created in my own."

The rest of the Governor's speech was devoted to the State Fair and to a discussion of the administration's plans for the development of the fair and of the agricultural resources of the State.

Crowds Greet the Governor.

Governor Whitman was very warmly received by the big crowd that awaited him at the Fair Grounds. He was cheered and applauded in the streets of the city as he motored from the home of Mr. Hendricks, where he spent the night, to the fair. The Governor was accompanied by his full military staff.

Among the men who met the Governor today were Speaker Sweet of the Assembly and Senate Leader Elon R. Brown, who soon is to begin his legislative investigation of New York City's finances. Representative Luther W. Mott, Jr., Republican leader of the Jefferson-Oswego district, also had a talk with the Governor, as did Charles H. Betts, the Republican leader of Wayne County.

The Governor was entertained at luncheon at the club house maintained by the State Fair Commission at the fair grounds. Here he met the notables not only of his own but other parties, including Mayor Louis Will of Syracuse, who was elected on the Bull Moose ticket two years ago.

In the afternoon the Governor and his staff occupied seats on the grandstand during the trotting races. With his staff he also visited the horse show, where he witnessed a drill by a large contingent of the Traffic Squad of New York City police, pinning the badges on the prize winners. The Governor was the guest at a dinner given tonight by the Chamber of Commerce, and later he reviewed a military parade and a parade in which 10,000 school children took part.

ASSAILS NEW BASIC LAW.

Ex-Gov. Glynn Announces His Opposition to the Constitution.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Sept. 16.—Ex-Governor Martin H. Glynn has come out flat-footed against the adoption of the new State Constitution. In the leading editorial in his newspaper this evening, under the title "Beat the Proposed Constitution," he says:

"No real Democrat should support it. No Republican who favors progressive principles can support it. No man who places the interests of the people above the interest of the big corporations can support it."

TO FIGHT CONSTITUTION.

Meeting in City Club Plans for a Campaign.

The proposed new State Constitution was denounced at a meeting of twenty-five representatives of civic organizations, city officials, labor leaders, and others who met in the rooms of the City Club yesterday afternoon in response to an invitation sent out by James P. Boyle, J. P. Coughlin, Jonah J. Goldstein, John J. Hopper, Jacob C. Lesser, E. C. Leubuscher, Benjamin C. Marsh, Frank Muller, and F. S. Tomlin.

F. S. Tomlin of the Central Federated Union of Brooklyn said the proposed Constitution was drawn to prevent a minimum wage law and to block social legislation of all kinds. Richard S. Childs, who has been called "the Father of the Short Ballot," was present, but did not speak. A resolution was proposed, but Immigration Commissioner Frederic C. Howe and others said it did not go into sufficient detail in giving the reasons why the proposed Constitution was bad.

Finally a resolution was adopted simply placing the meeting on record against the Constitution changes, and it was decided to hold a meeting later, when the objections will be set forth more particularly and plans for a campaign against the proposed Constitution will be made.

$11,000,000 LOANED UNDER MORRIS PLAN

At Companies' Convention the Founder Shows How Wage Earners Have Been Saved.

90,000 BORROWERS HELPED

Herbert L. Satterlee Says the Enterprise Has Brought the New Freedom to Men of Small Means.

The first convention of the Morris Plan Companies, established in twenty-five different cities in the United States, covering territory from Denver, Col., to Atlanta, Ga., for the purpose of making loans to small borrowers who have nothing to offer in the way of security but good character, which has been held here for tha past two days came to an end last night with a dinner at the Biltmore.

There were nearly 200 guests, including delegates from each one of the Morris Plan Companies, and 115 of the 463 directors in the different companies.

Those who made speeches were Herbert L. Satterlee, toastmaster; Arthur J. Morris, the founder of the plan; Woods White of Atlanta, Ga., and Henry R. Towne. Mr. Satterlee emphasized that in the new freedom which people talk about the Morris Plan had brought the newest freedom, that of the small borrower from usury and loss of self-respect when he was forced by the exigencies of life, or death, to procure money.

Have Loaned $11,000,000.

Mr. Morris, who fourteen years ago began a study of European countries who were lending money to small borrowers, told how the Morris Plan had grown from a start in Norfolk, Va., with a capital of $300,000 to its present size, where it included twenty-five cities with a record of having loaned $11,000,000 to 90,000 borrowers during the five years it had been in existence.

"We have an ideal," said Mr. Morris. "Which ought to bring to each one of us a glow of satisfaction in every transaction we make in this work. We are trying to give the small wage earner, the man of good character and a small income, the same avenues of financial and commercial advancement that are open to his more prosperous fellows."

In showing how Europe had dealt with this question of the small borrower, Mr. Morris said:

"The Bank of France had on its books in 1913 over $2,800,000,000 in loans none of which was above $60. In Germany there were 7,073 personal credit concerns in 1913, after which we are patterned somewhat, with outstanding debts from small borrowers of over $9,000,000,000.

"We are a strictly business concern," he continued. "And there is not the slightest idea of charity in what we do. The people we deal with would not come to us if that were the case. They are self-respecting men who have need for money that may come to any of us."

Mr. White spoke on the subject of the newest freedom, and Henry R. Towne told of the benefit the Morris Plan had brought to the numerous people dependent on the small borrower, who were in the grip of the loan shark.

Save Loan Shark Victims.

The Morris Plan has been called the Nemesis of the loan shark, and according to the statement of its companies it has freed more than 200 persons from them this year. Women are said to borrow less than men, but seem to be the greatest savers, for it is they who invest in the largest number of the bonds of the companies, sold to small investors for weekly payments.

The Morris Plan is under the general direction of the Industrial Finance Corporation of New York City, which was organized two years ago to take a minority interest in each company and in general co-operate with it and help in directing its affairs.

Among those from out of town were Willis F. Wolff, Economic Loan and Investment Company, Denver, Col.; R. C. Richardson, Charleston Fidelity Corporation, Charleston, S. C.; H. L. Sperry, President of the Morris Bank of Nashville, Tenn.; Charles R. Walton, Industrial Loan Corporation of Portsmouth, Va.; R. Leo Hunt, Pennsylvania Loan Company of Philadelphia, Penn.; H. B. Byrd, Jr., Fidelity Savings Company, Washington, D. C.; the Hon. W. Woods White of the Atlanta Loan and Savings Company, Atlanta, Ga., and R. O. Johnston, Industrial Bank and Trust Company, Memphis, Tenn.

Among the New Yorkers were Willard Straight, President American Asiatic Association; Clark Williams, Vice President of the Morris Plan Company in New York; Charles H. Sabin, President of the Guaranty Trust Company; Carlton Newcomb, President of the Western Union Telegraph Company; Herbert L. Satterlee of J. P. Morgan & Co., Arthur J. Morris, founder of the Morris Plan; Henry R. Towne, Director in the New York Federal Reserve Bank and President of the Morris Plan Company in New York.

BRYAN HITS THE PRESS FOR ADVISING WILSON

"Impudent," He Styles Course of New York Newspapers—Seeks Patronage in Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—William Jennings Bryan was in Washington today seeking patronage, and called at the Department of Justice to recommend the appointment of William H. Thompson of Grand Island, Neb., as Federal Judge of the Northern District of Nebraska, to succeed the late Judge William H. Munger. Mr. Thompson for many years has been Chairman of the State Democratic Committee and a political supporter of Bryan.

As he left the department Mr. Bryan was asked for a statement, and the conversation turned to the sentiment of the East and West, Mr. Bryan dictating this statement:

"The thing that has impressed me since I returned to the East and had a chance to read some of the New York papers is the presumption they manifest in instructing the President so minutely each day as to just what he must do and what he must not do. It would be impudent enough for them to do so if they were disinterested, but when their bias is known it is the more surprising that they should refuse to give the President more latitude in the performance of his duty. They speak for a very small percentage of the people and misrepresent those for whom they do speak."

"Is there much difference, then, between the New York newspapers and those in the West?"

"There is a mutual admiration society in this country," he replied, "composed of plutocratic newspapers that quote from each other. Whenever any proposition comes up they get their cue from the same plutocratic sources, and their voices are all pitched in the same key."

Mr. Bryan declined to discuss his forthcoming trip to Europe further than to say he would confer with some correspondents about his itinerary. Mr. Bryan will start Saturday for Boston, where he will talk again about the war.

ASSAILS IN REICHSTAG GERMAN CENSOR'S WORK

"A Torture of the Political Press" Member Asserts, and Brutal in Form.

A scathing attack on the methods of the German censorship is contained in the Social Democratic Central organ Vorwärts, which in the issue of Aug. 28 gives a stenographic report of the speech delivered by the Social Democratic Reichstag Delegate, Fischer, at the Reichstag session of Aug. 27. In his speech Herr Fischer cited cases in which the censorship had been exercised unequally over the press of various political denominations. He was interrupted by cheers and shouts of approval from the Socialists, while the members of other parties listened in silence. In his speech Herr Fischer said:

"The right of assembly and reunion has been virtually revoked and the worst aspect of the case is that two standards of measure are used. Conservatives and National Liberals may discuss the war goals in public gatherings, but Social Democrats are not permitted even in closed meetings of their own members to discuss either the war goals or the prices of foodstuffs. Even the manuscripts of addresses must be submitted at least seven days before meetings to the police authorities.

"A further evil in connection with the state of siege is the so-called protective arrests. Without further ado anarchists are placed under protective arrest, and even a number of our party comrades. Such arrests have been made also because of alleged treason committed in a certain pamphlet. I shall not go into the details of these pamphlets, but I may declare, in agreement with all the party representatives here, that the thought of injuring the interests of our country for the advantage of the interests of the enemy countries, as is premised in the idea of treason, was not in the mind of any of those arrested.

"The management of the censorship has brought about unbearable conditions and it has become actually a torture of the political press, and particularly of the Social Democratic press. The Vorwärts was some time ago suppressed for three days because unintentionally a stamp of the censor had not been observed. A few days ago the Deutsche Tageszeitung (pan-German) published announcements that were prohibited for the entire press in the interests of the Fatherland. But the Deutsche Tageszeitung was not suppressed on that account. The Tägliche Rundschau was forbidden to publish an article which it had received from the Foreign Office. An article of Lieut. Gen. von Stein was permitted to be published in this paper, but not the name of the author.

"Alterations have been made by the censor that were actually distortions of the true sense. Articles that were approved by the Superior Censor were then forbidden by the (military) Oberkommando."

Herr Fischer cited many instances of the burdensome censorship under which organs of the Social Democratic Party had suffered.

"In the Rhine County," he asserted, "this battle against the Social Democracy appears in its most brutal form. There there was cut from one of our newspapers the sentence: 'Nothing is given gratis to the workingmen, and if they themselves exploit themselves, then the history of a hundred years ago will repeat itself, and they will go away empty-handed.' Instead of that, there was printed in the paper: 'It is a matter of winning for the workers equal civil rights. That may be.' (Loud laughter.) Quite unintentionally the censor here expressed the deepest wish of his heart in the paper. A letter from the field, containing the will of a fallen soldier, was cut out because a Social Democratic point of view was shown in it.

"Almost incredible abusive assumptions of power were taken by this censor in the treatment of the text; even if he allows the thought content to remain, he changes the form of expression."

At the close of Herr Fischer's speech the Secretary of the Interior, Dr. Delbrück, tried to explain that many of the difficulties of the censorship were due to the individual censor, and added that a central censorship bureau was being considered.

the situation was an authorized denial of the statement that John D. Rockefeller, Jr., had told J. P. Morgan that the Rockefeller millions would not participate in the proposed loan. It was stated that Mr. Morgan had called at the Standard Oil offices at No. 26 Broadway on Wednesday afternoon to acquaint Mr. Rockefeller of the progress of the negotiations.

Rockefeller Likely to Help.

It was said, however, that the matter was not then in such shape that Mr. Rockefeller could be asked for an expression as to his attitude toward the loan. He was not asked for an expression of opinion, and volunteered none. From another source close to the oil interests it was learned that in all probability the Rockefellers will take a considerable amount of any securities decided upon, and that they are in full accord with the project for helping this country's trade position.

Jacob H. Schiff, senior member of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., also denied that he had written a letter opposing the loan. Mr. Schiff yesterday returned James J. Hill's social call. He visited the railroad man at the Great Northern offices at 32 Nassau Street to felicitate Mr. Hill on his seventy-seventh birthday. The banker said he was carrying out a forty-year-old custom of seeing his friend upon each anniversary of his birth.

Wall Street attached great significance to the visit of Mr. Hill to the Kuhn-Loeb offices, and the return call paid by Mr. Schiff. Belief has become a certainty there that Kuhn, Loeb & Co. will shortly announce their entrance into the negotiations and their intention of supporting the big loan. This action, if it occurs, is expected to have great weight in bringing in other houses supposed to have German leanings.

Mr. Hill said he had no more news about the loan, but he reiterated his firm conviction that it ought to be made. He said he could not speak for the German-American bankers, but he thought they would all prove to be Americans first in a situation of this kind.

Commission Is Optimistic.

It was pointed out to Mr. Hill that there had been threats of reprisal on the part of Germans by the withdrawal of their funds from institutions furthering the Allies' credit. He said that he knew nothing of any such plan, but that it seemed to him a gun that would kick harder than it would shoot.

A dozen or more prominent bankers talked with the Commissioners yesterday. Martin Vogel, Assistant Treasurer of the United States, lunched with Baron Reading, who, he said, was an acquaintance made in London.

At the end of the day the Anglo-French Commission made the following statement:

> The commission has nothing of fresh importance to say. Its members have continued, largely in their individual capacities and occasionally as a body, the discussions already begun with reference to the exchange markets and kindred subjects.
>
> Figures have been collected going to show the total exports in recent years of cotton, grain, and other foodstuffs to Great Britain, the totals of such figures having such a direct bearing upon the question of establishing credits in this country. The figures, as published today, give the total commodity exports of this country last year to Great Britain, Canada, and France as approximately $1,600,000,000, the great part of that being for articles of normal export. These figures, if correct, as we assume them to be, indicate the great volume of international trade involved in the whole situation.
>
> As to any actual negotiations covering a proposed loan, it is almost too much to say that they are actually under way as yet, but so much has already been accomplished in ascertaining the exact facts of the situation that it is hoped that the time for some definite statement as to progress will soon arrive.

Staats-Zeitung's Views.

The Staats-Zeitung yesterday deprecated the reports that the members of the British and French commission had received threatening letters, and called on them to publish such letters for the information of responsible German-American representatives here. Then it added the following warning to German-Americans:

> To our Germans we should like to give this counsel, not to resort to such low methods as anonymous writings if they wish to accomplish anything in the battle for the right. There are other, legitimate methods to bid halt to the slanderers who like to proceed with all methods of terrorism against fellow-citizens who think otherwise than they themselves.
> As the case looks today, one cannot help admitting that the loan plan has fairly good prospects of being realized. Wall Street, almost without exception, is in favor of it, and it is said that a considerable part of the billion asked for is assured. And it cannot be denied that also the New York bankers with German names, at least the majority of them, show no inclination whatever to oppose the transaction. The intention is being harbored to draw in also the Germans; this would not be done if one was not sure from the outset of success.

The Staats-Zeitung also expressed the fear that since the Federal Reserve Bank law required notes on which currency is issued to be signed by "a person, company, firm, or corporation," and made no mention of a foreign Government or its officials in this connection, any notes signed by the officials of the French or British Governments could be regarded under the law as holding merely those officials "personally" responsible for the notes.

The same newspaper says in English this morning over the signature of Herman Ridder:

> The proposed loan is, without further security than has been offered, both undesirable, unsatisfactory, and insulting
>

DETECTIVES GUARD ENVOYS.

Four Sets of Sleuths Believed to be Protecting Allies' Agents.

Anybody who looks like a foreigner is the object of scrutiny at the Hotel Biltmore these days. He not only has to run the gauntlet of the gaze of the hotel detectives, but the eyes of several other kinds of secret police follow him.

It was learned yesterday that a few nights ago a man was held up on the sixth floor while seeking entry into the quarters of the Anglo-French Financial Commissioners. At first it was thought he was a German agent, and for a time there was considerable excitement. The intruder, however, proved to be an attaché of the Russian Embassy. He had made the mistake of not inquiring at the office for the member of the commission he wished to see, and went up unannounced. He was allowed to go to his destination, with apologies on both sides.

It is believed that no fewer than four sets of secret service men are watching the Anglo-French commissioners. There are American secret service men, and there are detectives employed by the Allies. The presence of one of the highest Canadian police officials in New York on the day the Lapland arrived with the commission on board, lends color to a rumor that some of the best Canadian secret service men came down to guard the visitors. At the Biltmore it is believed that agents of the German Government are keeping a close watch on the movements of the commissioners. It was said at the hotel yesterday that, in consequence of the receipt by the visitors of threatening letters, Post Office Inspectors also had an eye on the hotel and the mail received there.

DENVER BANK THREATENED.

Letter from Milwaukee Warns It Not to Aid Loan to Allies.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 16.—From Denver, Col., comes a dispatch tonight to the effect that the First National Bank of that city today received an anonymous letter from Milwaukee, giving warning of a run on the bank and withdrawal by German-Americans of their deposits, should that bank participate in the billion-dollar loan to the British and French Governments.

Similar threatening letters have been received by the large Chicago banks, but the officials are not disposed to regard them with seriousness. Presidents of the leading Chicago banks are in New York participating in the conference with the British and French Commissioners.

In St. Louis, where there is a large and influential German American colony, there is some hostility to the proposed loan, but the intensity of feeling is not so great there as in Milwaukee.

MAGYARS WARN BANKS.

National Society Threatens to Withdraw $500,000 Deposits.

JOHNSTOWN, Penn., Sept. 16.—Alexander Covert, National President of the Verhaboy Aid Society, a Magyar organization with 28,000 members, announced tonight that the association had agreed to withdraw its deposits, amounting to $500,000, from American banks and to issue an appeal to every member to withdraw his personal deposits if banks in this country subscribe to the Anglo-French loan.

REPLIES TO DR. HEXAMER.

J. H. Rhoades, Banker, Says Loan to Allies Is a Patriotic Affair.

The appeal of Dr. Charles J. Hexamer, President of the National German-American Alliance, to German-Americans to oppose the Anglo-French loan, was answered yesterday by John Harsen Rhoades of the banking house of Rhoades & Co., 37 Wall Street, in an open letter as follows:

> New York, Sept. 16.
>
> Dr. Charles Hexamer, President,
> National German-American Alliance:
>
> Dear Sir—I have read with interest your letter addressed to me, as a fellow citizen, appearing in the press this morning, and presume a reply is in order.
>
> While Americans cannot but be jealous of England's prestige in her control of the seas, I am bound to say that I am quite satisfied with the way in which she has exercised that control. It is to be hoped that the day will come when we shall command the seas, but we shall never command the seas nor anything else until we are willing to play our part as international bankers. As a banker and a citizen I see no reason why we should not loan the Allies such money as they desire without collateral for ten years at 5 per cent. How on earth can we expect to do business if we are unwilling to make loans! If we would play the part of a progressive nation, we have the opportunity to become the financial centre of the world. Come, let us choose whom we will for second place, but America first.
>
> It seems to me rather important to add that throughout the war I have endeavored to maintain an attitude of strict neutrality, so much so that I have been accused of being pro-German. I am not a member of the money trust. I own nobody and nobody owns me. But as one who has had twenty-five years' experience as a dealer in bonds I should say that such a loan without collateral, as suggested, would be a safe investment. A similar loan to Germany would be just as commendable, but under the circumstances, and inasmuch as we are not able to sell goods to Germany, it might not seem unfair if we demanded a bit of collateral and a higher rate of interest. Favor for favor is the business man's creed. Yours very truly,
>
> JOHN HARSEN RHOADES.

Dr. Hexamer sent his protest against the loan to the branches of his alliance throughout the country.

BRYAN AGAINST WAR LOANS.

Says They Will Make Lenders Partisans of Their Creditors.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—William Jennings Bryan declared himself today as opposed to the raising of foreign belligerent loans in the United States. He said that the making of loans in a neutral country to countries at war was not forbidden by international law, but on the ground of public policy he said he thought such loans should not be taken up, as they tended to draw the lending countries into hostile camps, each financially interested in the success of the country to which its money was advanced.

On March 31, when Mr. Bryan was still Secretary of State, the State Department gave out an official statement on the subject of loans to belligerents, in which it said that "this Government has not felt that it was justified in interposing objection to the credit arrangements which have been brought to its attention. It has neither approved these nor disapproved."

"I have expressed the opinion," said Mr. Bryan today, "that the loaning of money to belligerent nations makes our position of neutrality more difficult because it gives to the loan groups a peculiar interest in the success of the countries to which they loan, and it tends to create a division among us at a time at which there should be unity. No pecuniary advantage which can come from the making of a loan can compensate for the danger this action invites if our citizens divide themselves, each seeking to aid the side with which he sympathizes."

SENATOR LEWIS PROTESTS.

Sees Panic and Poverty in Proposed Loan to the Allies.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—Senator J. Hamilton Lewis's letter to Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo and the Federal Reserve Board, protesting against the loan of $1,000,000,000 to Great Britain and France, was laid before the Federal Reserve Board late this afternoon and, without discussion, was turned over to Governor Hamlin for acknowledgment. It is understood the reply to the Senator will be brief, and the board will probably say it feels it has no supervisory powers in relation to the efforts of the Anglo-French Commission, in which it is in no way interested.

In his letter Senator Lewis declared the loan, if made, would remove from this country one-half of the "usable money in America, for America, in excess of reserve and money already obligated," and would precipitate a repetition of the panics of 1873 and 1893.

The Senator declares the loan is suggested at a time when "the revenues of America show a deficit occasioned by the European war, cutting off imports and necessitating the borrowing by America from itself or increasing the taxes of the citizens if there be a deficiency of money in America to meet an American Government loan."

Finally, he suggests if America has money to lend, it lend it to South America, where "we would have a chance to build up trade, and we would get a collateral and security resting on empires of valuable land."

FOREIGN EXCHANGE BUOYANT.

Believed to Foreshadow a Loan to Britain and France.

Foreign exchange rates advanced with vigor yesterday in a market that was rather bare of offerings. Demand sterling, which closed at $4.65⅝ to the pound on Wednesday, rose to $4.70⅝, and after the close of business bids at higher figures were reported without bringing out any sales. From the lowest quotation of Wednesday sight drafts showed yesterday an advance of full 4½ cents to the pound. Cables rose to $4.71, as compared with $4.66⅝, Wednesday's low figure.

Franc checks at 5.86 displayed a recovery of 9 centimes to the dollar over Wednesday's closing quotation, and Paris cables scored the same advance.

Exchange dealers credited the improvement in large part to sentiment in banking quarters that details of the Anglo-French loan would be completed and announced much sooner than had been expected. Banks were reluctant to sell either drafts or cables at prevailing rates, believing evidently that a distinct betterment in the international exchange might occur quickly and that sales later might show a much better profit.

Another factor in the dearth of supplies was said to be a falling off in bills resultant from declining exports. At any rate, bids for so small a sum as $10,000 were as effective in stiffening rates as, calls for $250,000 in drafts would ordinarily be.

WHEN ALL IS SAID AND DONE

When all is said and done on the score of Quality, the fact remains that on every operation we undertake the final acceptance of the building is contingent upon the architect's endorsement of the finished work.

And nothing that we may say on the subject of Quality can be so conclusive as the fact that we have worked in conjunction with the finest architects in America and never yet failed to merit their approval.

PRENDERGAST URGES REFORM IN SCHOOLS

Report Opposes Any Additional Money for Teachers—Talks of "Graft."

44 WEEKS OF 6-HOUR DAYS

Wants Gary Plan Extended—President Churchill Takes Issue with Drastic Recommendations.

In a report to the Board of Estimate yesterday on New York public school finances Controller Prendergast favored the Gary plan of school administration and urged the board to adopt this and other radical changes to reform the school system. The board is urged to vote against the proposed $87,600 issue of special revenue bonds for increased salaries of teachers to be promoted, and a new system of promotions is suggested among the other departures named.

In a statement issued by the Department of Finance with the report the following were named as the objects which the Controller aims to accomplish through the general reorganization plan outlined in his report:

1. The total elimination of any increase in the budget of the Board of Education for 1916. This means a saving of about $4,000,000.
2. The total elimination of part time and overcrowding in the schools. This is accomplished by intensive use of school buildings as they exist. New construction will be limited almost exclusively to new districts or where present buildings are in bad condition.
3. The extension of the school year from forty weeks to forty-four weeks.
4. The lengthening of the school day from five hours to six hours.
5. The total elimination of extra pay for service in vacation schools and other forms of extra pay for persons employed on annual salaries.
6. A reduction of 10 per cent. in the number of teachers' positions. This is made possible by lengthening the school day and the school year.
7. A change in the system of promoting teachers whereby merit alone shall control. This means the eradication of the system of paying teachers more for service in seventh and eighth grades and the substitution of a plan whereby each teacher shall teach the classes for which she is best fitted.
8. The reduction of the common school course to seven years.

School Day Is too Short.

Discussing the $87,600 revenue bond issue, the Controller says:

"The educational results are not commensurate with the large sums of money expended annually for public education. The schools do not provide a sufficient number of hours of instruction for the children. New York has a shorter school day and a shorter school year than the cities of the first class in European countries. London has a school day of five and one-half hours and Paris and Berlin of six hours, as against five hours in New York City. In Germany, which leads the world in systematic education, children are required by law to be in school more weeks during the year, more days in the weeks, and more hours during the day than in the United States.

"Public opinion is in revolt against the extreme length of teachers' vacations, and, I take it, justly so. Surely to continue the present system of vacations would be to prolong what has now become a public scandal.

"The application of the Gary principle will solve our most pressing school problems. I recommend that the general school fund allowances for the purposes of the day elementary schools for the year 1916, be fixed on the basis of a reorganization of the schools on the Gary principle, together with the extension of the service of teachers from five hours per day to six, and from forty weeks per year to forty-four."

Mr. Wirt proposes to have seventy-two classes in a building having forty-three class rooms, an auditorium, a library, and playrooms, the Controller says. Mr. Wirt proposes sixty-four teachers for the seventy-two classes in a school of this size.

Teachers' Salaries Highest Here.

The report includes a table showing that the average salaries of elementary school teachers in this city exceeds the average in other large cities of the country. In New York City the average salary is placed at $1,197. San Francisco ranks second with $1,124 and Chicago third with $1,034. Boston comes fourth with $1,001, and all of the other cities listed, which include Philadelphia, St. Louis, Washington, Baltimore, Cleveland, and other large cities, average below $1,000. The lowest average listed is that of New Orleans, $655. With this table the Controller says:

"New York City ranks first in salaries paid to teachers, while it lags behind European cities in the amount of schooling given the children."

Concerning the reduction of the school course from eight to seven years, the Controller says this could be done if the year's term were increased to forty-four weeks instead of forty, and that the extension of the school day might make it possible for children to complete the elementary course in even less time.

He terms as "vicious" the system of permitting salaried teachers to earn extra compensation through teaching in Summer or night schools or through other work, and says that it should be abolished forthwith.

"I venture to remark," he states, "that its tendency is in the direction of graft. Either the regular work suffers, or it is insufficient in quantity."

Churchill in Opposition.

President Thomas W. Churchill, of the Board of Education, issued a statement last night in which he took issue with several of the points raised by the Controller. Regarding the wholesale adoption of a new school system, President Churchill said:

"The Board of Education had proceeded upon the assumption that proposals should be tested first by experiment before adoption upon a wholesale scale. Further and broader experiments, with a reduced or curtailed course of study, in my opinion, would be desirable."

The Controller's proposal not to provide funds for the promotion of teachers in accordance with the schedules provided by the present law, he characterized as "unjust to teachers who are rendering service in the higher schedules under waiver of the increase in salary to which they are legally entitled." Many of these teachers, he said, have waited four years for the promotion to which they are entitled, only to find their advancement barred by the city's failure to provide funds for increased salaries.

"It is not possible to run the schools properly next year for the same amount of money provided in this year's appropriation," he said, and added that he did not find in Superintendent Wirt's reports any indication that he contemplated a material reduction in the number of teachers to be employed, but that the reports indicated that the number would have to be increased.

"It is but natural that the Controller, from his official position, should consider school problems primarily from a standpoint of finances rather than of education best for the children," President Churchill said. "The members of the Board of Education, however, decide all proposals, first, upon the basis of what is of best interest to children, and, secondly, upon the basis of less expense to the people."

The Controller's recommendations will be submitted to the Board of Estimate at its meeting today.

CAPTAIN GIVES LIFE IN AIDING A STOKER

Master of the Pollokshield Washed Overboard in Effort to Get Him a Lifebelt.

VESSEL WRECKED ON REEF

Bermudian Arrives with 60 Seamen Saved from Two Abandoned Steamers.

The story of how Captain Ernest Boothe of the British steamer Pollokshield, formerly the Hamburg-American steamer Graecia, lost his life trying to get a lifebelt for one of his firemen was told yesterday by twenty-seven of the shipwrecked crew, who arrived on the steamer Bermudian from Bermuda.

Dan Young, the boson, said that the Pollokshield left Cardiff on Aug. 22, with a crew of thirty-seven men, and carried a cargo of shells, gunpowder, and provisions for Bermuda. On Sept. 2 the steamer ran into strong gales, with fog and rain.

"At eight bells on the morning of Sept. 7," Boson Young said, "the fog lifted, and we saw at once by the color of the water that the ship was on soundings—that is, in shallow water. Ten minutes later she struck on a coral reef off Elba Beach, on the south coast of Bermuda. When all hands were mustered on the upper deck lifebelts were served out to every man, but there was one short. James Smith, a fireman from Southampton, the last to come up from the stokehole, had no belt, and when the skipper saw he had none he told me to go below and get one from the deck cabins on the port side. By that time the seas were sweeping over the well deck aft, and it was a tight job to get there without going overboard, but I managed it, and found the doors locked. I got back, and reported to Captain Boothe that I could not force the doors and offered to go again if he would give me the keys. 'No, boson,' says he, 'that wouldn't be fair. You went down once, and now I will have a try.'

"The Captain got down all right, but just as he was making for the alleyway a big sea struck him, and he went overboard and was swept astern. We stood still, because we could not get aft and were powerless to help him. The last I saw of him alive he was on top of a great sea, within ten feet of a sharp coral rock. The rest of us reached shore later that day."

The Graecia slipped out of New York Harbor one foggy night in September, 1914, loaded with a cargo of coal for the German cruiser Karlsruhe, then in West Indian waters. She was captured by the British cruiser Berwick and taken to Gibraltar and sold. Her name was changed from Graecia to Pollokshield.

In addition to the survivors of the Pollokshield, the Bermudian brought thirty-three of the crew of the Italian steamer Purificazione, bound from Genoa to Norfolk, Va., which was abandoned in mid-Atlantic on Aug. 15. The Captain and crew were picked up, after they had been adrift two days in the lifeboats, by the British steamship Cayo Gitmano, which landed them in Bermuda.

TO SUE RYAN FOR TAXES.

State Examiner Alleges Omissions on New Yorker's Virginia Estate.

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 16.—R. H. Drummond, State Examiner of Records, has retained counsel to assist him in recovering alleged omitted taxes on the estate of Thomas F. Ryan of New York, whose legal residence is in Nelson County, Va.

In 1914 the taxable values of the Ryan estate were listed as follows: Lands and buildings, $231,879.84; personal property, tangible, $300,000; intangible, $1,500,000; income, $1,500,000.

was 88 degrees, registered by the Weather Bureau thermometer at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Many thermometers on Broadway registered in the nineties and in two the mercury reached the 100 mark. The humidity yesterday was above the normal, varying from 88 per cent. at 8 A. M. to 64 per cent. at 8 P. M.

Although scores of cities in the eastern half of the country have closed schools because of the heat, among them Boston, Philadelphia, and Pittsburgh, at a meeting of the Board of Superintendents at the Board of Education Building last night it was decided not to amend the New York school schedule because of the hot wave.

Studies in several of the parochial schools were suspended yesterday because of the heat. The School of the Assumption, in Cranberry Street, Brooklyn, closed at noon, the Rev. William J. Donaldson cautioning the children against playing in the sun.

Heat Made Him Homicidal.

When John Auerstad, an employe of the American Sugar Refinery in Williamsburg, was affected by the heat yesterday, he picked up a carving knife and dashed downstairs from his apartment. On the stairway he met Martin Deresuo, another tenant, and stabbed him in the right arm and about the head. He attacked several others and was surrounded by a crowd that treated him roughly until Policeman McDermott rescued him and sent him to the Kings County Hospital.

Marie Rene, who was employed as a domestic in a hotel at New Dorp Beach, S. I., was out walking with an infant, 18 months old, when she was overcome in the Mill Road. She was unconscious when found by Policeman Mitchell. The child was playing on the roadside. The girl was taken to the Smith Infirmary in a serious condition.

Boston reported a temperature of 94 at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Schools, which had been running half a day for two days, will be closed today. It was the hottest day of the year for Boston. Mrs. Helen Todd of Thomaston, Conn., who was visiting friends at Waltham, Mass., was overcome by the heat and died a few hours later. The cool wave passed over Maine, but did not relieve the excessive heat in New England generally.

In Worcester, Mass., Mrs. Martha Fiske, 83 years old, and Doris Ericson, 7 months old, died from the heat, and Mrs. Carrie Eager of Providence was prostrated while waiting for a train in the Union Station. Manchester, N. H., reported a temperature of 100 degrees in the shade, with two deaths and scores of prostrations throughout the State. Business was almost suspended and schools were closed. The schools of New Haven, Conn., were closed at noon, as were the schools in several other Connecticut cities.

Schools Close in Other Places.

The quarter of a million school children of Philadelphia had a half holiday because of the heat. The maximum temperature was 87 degrees at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. From as far West as Terre Haute, Ind., come reports of the general closing of public schools because of the almost unbearable heat. Toledo, Ohio, reported a maximum temperature of 87 with several deaths.

Mrs. Henry P. Griffin, President of the Board of Education of White Plains, N. Y., yesterday ordered all school children dismissed because of the heat. In Yonkers the continued oppressive heat caused the suspension of classes at the High School and in the five grammar schools in the centre of the city, where the heat was most felt. Public schools were closed in Gloversville and Newburgh, N. Y. When the temperature reached 86 at noon in Albany, all public schools were ordered closed until Monday. Practically all department clerks at work in the Capitol were allowed to quit work early in the afternoon.

The theatrical season has been hard hit by the hot weather, attendance falling off to almost nothing. Half a dozen shows have closed, another suspended last night, and several openings have been postponed until more seasonable weather.

MANDATORY SALARY CAN'T ESCAPE A CUT

City's Policy Is to Reduce and Then Let Aggrieved Employe Sue.

T. ADAMSON SUGGESTS IT

Budget Sub-Committee Will Standardize All Salaries, Whether Authorized by Legislature or Not.

While the tax budget sub-committee meeting in the Municipal Building continued yesterday to recommend reductions in salaries of city employes, members of the Tax Budget Committee, which consists of Controller Prendergast, President McAneny and Borough Presidents Pounds of Brooklyn and Mathewson of the Bronx, met in the Controller's office to decide just what policy would be adopted in preparing the budget requests from the city and county offices for 1916. It was decided to uphold the action of the sub-committee in reducing salaries wherever possible.

Later the Mayor gave out this statement:

"This morning in executive conference a majority of the Board of Estimate indorsed the program of budget preparation which I had already adopted for my departments. This means that the sub-committee of the Board of Estimate Committee on Tax Budget will be instructed to prepare the tentative budget for all departments in accordance with the standard rates of compensation recommended by the Bureau of Standards.

"In my statement of last Monday I indicated what this program means. It is, moreover, equally our policy to increase the salaries of those persons who are now receiving inadequate pay for the work they do. Such increases have already been recommended in many instances by the sub-committee and will be allowed by the board.

"If the head of any department desires to take issue with the conclusions of the sub-committee with reference either to the elimination of a position or the reduction of a salary, he will have the right of appeal to the Board of Estimate itself as represented by its Budget Committee and will be accorded a full and fair hearing before final judgment is formed."

Asked if the report was true that the salaries of the Health, Police, and Fire Commissioners were to be increased from $7,500 to $10,000 a year, the Mayor said he knew nothing about it. He said, however, that he believed the Health and Police Commissioners should receive $10,000 a year and that the Fire Commissioner should get more than he is being paid at present. The Mayor said he referred to the positions rather than to the men.

"The standardization of salaries is nothing new," went on the Mayor. "To the best of my recollection the Board of Estimate recommended it some four years ago. The work would have been performed in a more gradual manner, however, if the present crisis whereby the State has put an enormous tax upon the city had not arisen."

The Mayor said he knew nothing about the recommendations of the sub-committee that all mandatory salaries be listed with a view to having the Legislature make reductions, which the Budget Committee could not do at present. The Mayor also said he knew nothing about the report that George L. Tirrell and Tilden Adamson, heads of the Board of Estimate committees which are preparing the salary standardizations, intended to recommend an increase in their own salaries. The Board of Estimate will probably begin hearings on the budget estimates on Oct. 1.

At yesterday's meeting of the sub-committee it was indicated that wholesale reductions would be made in the salaries of all county officers, Judges alone excepted, and in places held by city employes as well. These salaries, by acts of the Legislature, have been made mandatory, but the members of the sub-committee approved the plan to standardize salaries regardless of the mandatory legislation.

Tilden Adamson said he did not think the committee should allow salaries to be paid out of proportion to the work done and he suggested that steps be taken at Albany to change the law so that the Board of Estimate will have the power to fix all salaries that will not be in excess of the services rendered. He suggested also that the Board of Estimate recommend salary appraisals. He added that by next January the public would be aroused to the justice of such a move.

Should the sub-committee's plan prevail those who would suffer by the reductions would have to go into court and seek by mandamus restoration to the payroll at full rates. This test could not be made until Jan. 15 next, which would be the first pay day under the readjustment. The 1916 budget would be based on the reduced system of pay, and if court decisions were in favor of the employes, the Board of Estimate would have to issue revenue bonds to meet the deficiency.

William F. Hendrickson, chief clerk of the Queens County Surrogate's Court, requested $2,500 for the cost of drawing jurors. Last year the Board of Estimate refused to allow the sum, and the Surrogate had a mandamus issued against the board. An appeal was taken, and pending a decision the sub-committee took no action yesterday, but allowed the $2,500 to stand. William Campbell, a member of the Jamaica Citizens' Association, opposed every request for appropriations made by Hendrickson.

"The whole office is wasteful of the people's money, and the clerks are falling over one another," he said, "while the officials are spending their time on the race track, or looking after the interests of the Democratic machine. The salaries paid these men are out of all proportion to the services rendered."

The hearing will go on this morning.

The Civil Employes' Association will hold a mass meeting at Terrace Garden next Monday evening to protest against the salary reductions. A. Brekstone is President of the association, whose membership includes many city employes.

GIRL KILLED BY FALL.

Inmate of Magdalen Home Found Dead Under Dormitory Window.

One of the women guards in the New York Magdalen Home, Dyckman Street and the Hudson River, heard a scream and a thud shortly after 1 o'clock this morning and glanced from the window of a dormitory on the second floor. On the ground below she saw the body of a girl and raced downstairs, giving the alarm.

The girl was dead. Her skull was fractured and she had been hurt internally by her fall, according to Dr. Gluckstein, who was called from the Washington Heights Hospital. She was recognized as Helen Miller of 321 West Forty-eighth Street, who had been committed to the home in last July and who said then she was a telephone girl and was 23 years old.

The woman guard said the girl had slept on the third floor, which she had just left a moment before she heard the girl cry out. At that time she had seemed to be asleep in her bed.

It was found, however, that she was fully clothed in the uniform of the home, and apparently was trying to escape when she fell or jumped from the window, although those in charge of the home denied this, and said the girl had a habit of walking in her sleep. They did not explain, however, how she came to be fully clothed.

DEAD MAN WAS NOMINATED.

Result of Primary Election Causes Complication in Maryland.

SALISBURY, Md., Sept. 16.—A curious complication has arisen in Wicomico County as a result of Tuesday's Democratic primary. For the first time, probably, in the history of the State a dead man was nominated for office.

Ernest A. Toadvine, who died suddenly Monday, was named for Clerk of the Circuit Court. As Mr. Toadvine died on the day preceding the primary, his name could not be removed from the ticket. Although the fact of his death was known generally throughout the county, his name received 200 more votes than his opponent in the party, and the Judges of Election were compelled to declare him nominated.

LOANING A BILLION DOLLARS.

The common sense of the American people enables them to see at once the reasonableness of the proposed foreign credit arrangement and the urgent need of making it. It is a financial transaction for mutual benefit, just as a loan by a bank to a builder or a manufacturer would be a benefit not only to the owner and to the borrower, but to the community. We establish a credit here to enable our customers to buy our goods. In ordinary times we should be large buyers of foreign commodities, our imports would approximately equal our exports, leaving only a moderate balance one way or the other. Our foreign trade is now unbalanced to an extraordinary and altogether unprecedented degree. Our exports for the fiscal year exceed the value of our imports by more than a billion dollars. Such a balance cannot be settled in gold without disadvantage to both parties. We do not need gold, we do not want gold, gold would be about the least profitable commodity we could import. But the balance must in some way be restored or there will be a serious check to trade. The disturbance in exchange rates makes that plain. It is to restore the balance and to remove obstructions from the channels of commerce that the billion-dollar credit is to be established.

The country sees that it is for our advantage not less than for the advantage of our customers abroad. The advantage accrues not only to our manufacturers and exporters, to our wheat growers, our cotton planters, our railroads, to our ocean commerce carriers, but to wage earners throughout the United States. The press of the country understands this aspect of the transaction, it clearly sees the benefits that will accrue to us, the urgent need of extending the needed credit. Out of more than a score of well-known representative newspapers whose comments upon the proposed loan we have examined, there are only two which express opposition to the credit arrangement. One of these speaks for a man in public life whose pro-German views are extreme and well known, the other is Mr. Victor Berger's Socialist paper published in the highly Germanized city of Milwaukee. There are varying opinions as to terms and security, but all these newspapers, with the two exceptions noted, agree that in the interest of our industries and commerce, as a provision for our prosperity, the credit asked for should be given.

One statesman of prominence records his opposition, and his views are interesting and original. Senator J. Hamilton Lewis of Illinois has discovered that there is in this country only $2,000,000,000 "of usable money in ex- "cess of reserve and money already "obligated." The foreign bankers ask for "one-half of all the available cash" in the country. "The effect of "this foreign loan would be to take one "billion of their money from our people "and lend it to nations who are "spending $15,000,000 a day." Mr. Lewis evidently assumes that we are to pack a billion dollars of actual money in strong boxes and send it to Europe. If that were actually proposed Mr. Lewis's warning would be timely. If in a moment of inadvertence American bankers had assented to such a plan his admonition about depriving the American people of half their usable cash would call them to their senses. If the Illinois Senator could be made to understand that we are loaning credit, that we are not going to send usable cash abroad, that, on the contrary, the credit is to be drawn upon for the purchase of American commodities, in other words that the "money" is to be spent here, his alarm would diminish and he might even abate his opposition, particularly if he should perceive that no small part of the funds in question would be disbursed among his constituents.

The American imagination, somewhat practiced in contemplation of large figures, has not been staggered by the amount of the proposed credit. A billion dollars is no small sum, but it is not a very large one in comparison with our banking resources, it is even a small one when measured against the capacity of our investors, and smaller yet when we compare it with the total of the nation's wealth. Twenty-five years ago it would have been different. Then there would have been some misgivings because of the size of the undertaking. But it is not so much the amount of the credit that concerns the bankers now in conference as the terms and conditions. When they are satisfactorily arranged the carrying out of the plan will present no serious difficulties.

THE HEAT AND THE THEATRES.

The unusual heat of September has established a "new record" in the theatrical business. Never since the era of overcompetition in theatricals, when the city was small and the playgoers were few, has the run of a play been checked on account of the weather, except in the blizzard of 1888, when for one night every playhouse in New York was closed but Daly's, where "A Midsummer Night's Dream" was performed in the presence of a few hardy suburbanites, marooned at the near-by hotels, who braved the arctic perils of the streets for the sake of relaxation. But the high temperature and excessive humidity of the last twelve days have had a cumulative effect on the theatres. Not only have important "openings" been postponed, but plays already produced have been temporarily withdrawn.

The weather excuse in the old days of Burton was generally looked upon as mere euphemism. Bad business then caused the managers, who never made too much money, to shut their doors. Some of the theatrical business in this unseasonable heated term has been bad, of course, but the weather excuse holds good. Yet it is worth noting that none of the cheaper movies have shut down. The heat keeps people away from the two-dollar shows, but the ten and fifteen cent audiences are superior to all weather conditions.

ANOTHER MEXICAN MUDDLE.

Some weeks ago the United States Government, through Secretary Lansing, and the Governments of Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Bolivia, Uruguay, and Guatemala, through their diplomatic representatives at Washington, invited Francisco Villa, leader of the Conventionalists in Mexico, to join with the leaders of the other revolutionary factions in his country at a conference for the promotion of Mexican peace. Villa graciously accepted with no waste of time. On the other hand, Carranza, also invited, delayed replying for many days, insulted the intelligence of the Pan-American mediators by formally asking them if they tendered the invitation personally or as representatives of their respective Governments, and finally replied in an arrogant mood that he would not recognize the other revolutionary leaders, but would consent to attend a conference with the diplomats and the representative of the United States at which the sole subject for consideration would be his claim to be officially recognized as de facto ruler of Mexico. Obviously, the holding of this international conference before the date is fixed for the Mexican conference which Villa and all the revolutionists who are not Carranzistas have promised to attend would be to slight them without due cause. If Villa and his associates were to be treated in this impolite way, why were they ever asked to take part in a pacification conference? The reason they were asked seemed plain at the time, and nothing has since occurred to obscure it. The battles of the Constitutionalists were won by Villa, and, whatever his defects of character may be, Carranza, since he broke with him, has not been able to crush him or to eliminate him as an important factor in the Mexican situation.

If Villa should infer from the reports that the Pan-American mediators have determined to meet Carranza and thus set aside their own well-considered plan on his behest, (reports which we shall refuse to believe unless they are formally announced after the Pan-American meeting in this city tomorrow;) that Carranza is, after all, to be recognized without further consultation with him, the inference, it seems, would be measurably justified. Certainly the Washington correspondents have inferred as much. There are, moreover, strange reports of the removal of the United States Consuls from the Mexican States controlled by Villa and various other proceedings well calculated to cause unrest. Probably meanings have been attached to certain acts of the Administration at Washington which events will not justify.

No formal statement is needed from Washington to satisfy Americans that the Government has no intention whatever to intervene in Mexico. Ex-President Taft's pessimistic view of the present situation is not shared by all his fellow-countrymen. Yet nothing would be more likely to make intervention absolutely necessary than such rude and uncalled-for treatment of Villa after he had responded so amiably to the Pan-American overtures, as was foreshadowed in yesterday morning's newspapers. The situation is delicate, and we are still confident that our State Department with its Latin-American conferees will be able to manage it with discretion. Carranza's boast that he is the actual ruler of Mexico has been sufficiently disproved. He has been unable to check the outbreaks against Americans in the Matamoros and Laredo districts. He is still afraid to occupy the National Palace in Mexico City. But he has larger political knowledge than the leaders of the other factions, much more statecraft. He has a following of abler men. Excepting General Felipe Angeles, there is hardly a man of prominence in the forces opposing him who would be likely to conceive an intelligent plan of reorganization.

If Carranza would accept the invitation originally tendered to him to take part in a conference of all the factions, it stands to reason that he would become the dominant force in that conference and would still have the controlling voice in the pacification of the country. To gain that end it seems the State Department and the Latin Americans should hold to their original plan. They may yet do so, but there is too much pulling and hauling in all this Mexican business, too many cooks are spoiling the broth, the United States Government has too many little agents at work who are not in harmony with any general plan, and there is an indication that there has been too much officious meddling at Washington.

MR. PRENDERGAST ON EDUCATION

New York is hard up. Controller Prendergast is everlastingly opposing any increase of the Board of Education's budget for 1916. The part-time nuisance should be stopped. The building of schoolhouses can never catch up with the growth of population. Make the present houses do double duty under the Wirt-Gary system. The Board of Education seems to be getting awake to the evident advantages, educational and financial, of that plan.

This old unnecessary matter of part time, the getting rid of that humbug, is what chiefly interests The Times at this moment in Mr. Prendergast's report to the Board of Estimate. It contains many excellent, if some pretty radical, proposals. Old-fashioned folks at least will heartily approve the lengthening of the school day and school year. Save time, save money. Give the pupils sufficient hours of instruction. Five hours a day in New York; six in Paris: the comparison is not to the credit of intelligence, diligence, or desire for education in this city.

WHAT A FREE HAND TO AUSTRIA COSTS.

The mass of debt which the nations at war have piled and are piling up is already stupendous. The new credit of $1,250,000,000 asked by Mr. Asquith swells the British war debt to nearly seven billions, practically twice the national debt before the war. The total debt now amounts to nearly eleven billions, and at the rate of $17,500,000 a day to what more gigantic proportions it must come, since Great Britain will fight to the uttermost and has no thought of peace before her enemies are broken and exhausted. Her share of the war bill is the largest because she finances in part her allies.

France, when her next credit is voted, will have a war bill of $4,240,500,000, making her total debt $10,750,500,000, just a little short of the British. Russia, which owed $4,400,000,000 odd before the war, will at the end of 1915 owe $8,300,000,000. She has about doubled her national debt. Italy, a late entrant into the fray and a poor country, has spent nearly half a billion. Germany, a debtor to the extent of $1,200,000,000 odd before the war, has spent on it over $3,300,000,000 and is borrowing more. Austria-Hungary's share of the burden is $1,700,000,000. It is estimated that the cost of the war in all the belligerent countries is $18,000,000,000.

Eighteen billions, and the war is apparently young. Its prolongation until Germany can no longer furnish the men or the money to wage it further is the general belief and expectation. Eighteen billions, and who knows how many more billions before a decision is gained and accepted? Crushing is the burden of taxation imposed, and yet to be imposed, upon nations weakened by the loss or absence of the flower of their manhood, a burden to rest upon generations to come. And to whom should the bill be sent? Upon whom rests the sinister responsibility for these billions of war debt? Upon Germany, upon the Hohenzollern, who gave Austria a free hand in dealing with Serbia. If Germany had wanted peace, if she were not ready for war, did not prefer war, she would have listened to Sir Edward Grey's proposal for a conference of the great Powers, a proposal France and Russia were willing, nay, eager, to accept. But, no, the sensitive feelings of Austria must not be jarred. She would resent any interference with working her will on Serbia. And so the destruction of multitudes of lives, the throwing away of billions on mounting billions for the dance of death, had their fatal origin.

As Mr. Asquith says, "this is a "war of mechanism, organization, en- "durance. Victory seems likely to "incline to the side that can arm "itself best and stay the longest." Germany had incomparable advantages of long preparation, of industry, and every occupation brought to the finest efficiency and organized for military purposes. She had spent great sums, she had devoted high talent to this one supreme purpose of war, the culmination of the Hohenzollern legend. Economically and militarily, she was at an advantage. But, winning nowhere a victory fatal to her eastern or western foes, her armies gradually wearing away, if still showing undiminished spirit, how can she hold out to the end in men? and how long can she continue her present art of living on herself? It is true that she is not entirely living on herself. Probably it is her possession of all Belgium and of the rich iron and coal fields of northern France that helps her keep along without that economic and financial exhaustion that would seem to be inevitable in time.

Rich in saving expedients and suitably equipped with all that science can bring to bear on her needs, one wonders if an intimate knowledge of her actual economic condition would coincide with the roseate accounts that are sometimes sent here. The necessities, military and financial, of Great Britain are not hidden in a corner. There the worst, and perhaps more than the worst, is known. Of Germany little is known. Does the official theory square with the fact? At any rate, how can she escape the pinch and pressure of long war, however brilliantly conducted? Sometime she will not have men enough or resources enough. The strongest wrestler must weary at last.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Wisdom in Need of Revision.

"I questioned 75,000 Los Angeles children," said a speaker at the recent convention of the National Education Association, "and they invariably answered that a cat ran on four legs. They were surprised to learn from me that a cat has two legs and two arms."

Well they might have been—if they had learned it. As a matter of fact, of course, they only heard the statement, and one can at least hope that their respect for "authority" was not sufficiently great to prevent them from seeing that it was untrue. Where the teacher who made the assertion got her belief is a mystery, for science is in accord with common usage in this matter, and the erudite morphologist would have made to the inquiry about cats the same answer as did the 75,000 wise children of Los Angeles.

The four-leg plan of animal architecture is so much older than the arm-and-leg arrangement that the latter can still be considered a modern innovation, still in the experimental stage, and cats have more than excuse for having been conservative enough not hastily to make a change, the results of which, while unquestionably advantageous in some respects, have been far from wholly satisfactory with the one animal that has turned two of its legs into real arms by putting the whole burden of transportation on the other two. The experiment is not an out-and-out failure, indeed, but the incidental penalties for abandoning the ancient arrangement have been so heavy that nobody need sniff—at cats. They may be old-fashioned, but at least they have escaped the numerous and serious ills which have come upon the more venturesome race of humans since, without adequate preparation, they raised to the vertical position bodies constructed with a view to remaining horizontal.

We stand erect—which the having of arms necessitates—at our now well-realized peril. It makes defense from our enemies difficult, and often impossible, and the disarrangement of our internal organs—what are properly though inelegantly called in'ards—is viewed with complete contentment only by the pathologists who make a good deal more than half their living out of not very successful efforts to remedy assorted "ptoses" from which the quadrupeds are quite free.

"Carnage" and When It's "Dreadful."

One would not expect a man whose name is McCarter to talk exactly like a German when discussing the war. Indeed, it is with more than surprise—it is with real shock—that one reads the speech delivered by a man of that name at the convention of Edison folk, and after reading it one's first impulse was to look again—to see if Mr. McCarter wss not the President of something over in Berlin. The second look revealed, however, that he is the head of the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, a State which, in spite of all that envious humorists have said about it, is at least geographically American, and North American at that.

Yet the orator declared, not without passion, that, though in other days he had heard much about "tainted money," he knew of none that should so offend a sensitive nose as "wealth acquired in furnishing munitions of war so that this dreadful carnage may continue." When a German uses those words, or words of like effect, we understand just what end of "the dreadful carnage" it is that he wants, just why he wants it, and just why he preaches a form of neutrality that would make easier, if not easy, the holy task of bringing the Entente Powers to their knees. It seems only natural, on the other hand, that an American should—and highly unnatural that he shouldn't—take a less partial view of the situation and see the dreadfulness of carnage even when it is that of English, French, and German soldiers. They would certainly be killed off in short order if their cannon and rifles were empty, and the subsequent peace—well, it would not be of unmitigated charm for everybody, strong as is everybody's liking for peace as an abstract, unrelated, and unconditioned entity.

And Mr. McCarter said he couldn't see neutrality in lending money to the Allies except on the clear understanding that no munitions would be bought with it. There is no record that he protested when the Germans did some borrowing here a little while ago, or that he demanded a restriction on the use they made of what they got. Circumstances, it is only fair to admit, did alter cases then, as they often do, but in principle the two were not very different. The Allies are old and good customers of ours, and self-interest, if nothing better, dictates that we give them credit until, recovering from present disaster, they can do business again on the former satisfactory terms.

Important if True, the Verdict.

Experience hints caution about declaring impossible the reported achievement of a scientist, and incredulity should be especially modest when the story is of discoveries in the domain of electricity. What can and cannot be done there is for nobody to decide with any pretense of certainty—if the claim put forward, that is, be short of "perpetual motion," and even then it is judicious to agree on definitions before indulging in too much scorn.

Hence will there be no denial here of the tale that came yesterday by way of Paris, apparently from Marseilles, about one Louis Rota, an Italian engineer hitherto without international fame, who can so manipulate electro-magnetic forces as to send something twelve feet long and spindle-shaped 2,000 or 3,000 feet up in the air and keep it motionless there till he chooses to send it whizzing off somewhere else at the rate of 100 miles an hour.

Oh, yes—and the spindle-shaped something can carry a load of ninety pounds, which means, of course, increased activity in the bomb business.

One could believe all this with less strain on his believer if another Italian engineer had not recently won international fame pathetically impermanent by telling what he could do with explosives by the manipulation of electro-magnetic forces, and then not doing it when he was competently watched. Louis Rota may be different, as have been and are not a few other Italian engineers. It is a pity, though, that he didn't select to make the announcement of his wonderful invention somebody enough of a scientist to give at least a hint of its nature and method of operation.

"Electro-magnetic forces" is a phrase discouragingly vague, and it has been subjected to a good deal of attrition of late years by quacks of various sorts.

CHANGE IN SCHOOL POLICY.

Why the Officials Should Formulate Their New Course at Once.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The announcement in this afternoon's press of Controller Prendergast's recommendation that the Gary plan be extended throughout the public schools should be welcomed by all those who feel that a radical change in school policy must be made promptly if part time is to be eliminated and the present educational opportunities offered the children of the city greatly enriched.

Taken in conjunction with the opinion expressed yesterday at the meeting of the Board of Education by Commissioner John Martin, Chairman of the Committee on Vocational Schools, this recommendation would seem to indicate that at last a decisive step will be taken toward a real solution of the problem of congestion and the enriching of the school course. Commissioner Martin stated that to his mind the Gary plan was the best available solution of present educational problems and should be extended as rapidly as possible, and that, in fact, the Board of Education was committed to such a policy.

It is fortunate that the Controller advocates his program, not simply on the basis of economy, but also on the basis of the richer opportunities for children which it makes possible. This should open the way for the school and city officials to get together immediately to formulate a policy for carrying out this recommendation promptly. There should be no delay. The situation is acute. Thousands of children are on part time. The longer definite action is protracted the greater will these children suffer from lack of adequate opportunities.

HOWARD W. NUDD,
Director Public Education Association of the City of New York.
New York, Sept. 16, 1915.

If Suffragists Are Defeated.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It may be that there are people in our State who suppose that an adverse vote on woman suffrage in November will put an end to our activities. It seems only fair to say that this is a mistake. Election Day is the last chance that the men of New York will have to give us justice with their own hands, but if they refuse it every suffragist in New York will at once devote her time and her strength and her means to work for a Federal amendment. The great convention of woman voters which meets in San Francisco this week, under the organization of the Congressional Union, proves what a lever of political power we now possess to further such an amendment. It seems strange to us that men are so slow to believe that women feel the humiliation of disfranchisement just as they feel it themselves. By law and custom it is acknowledged to be the most degrading penalty that they can inflict upon their fellows, and yet we are expected to submit to it without rebellion.

It is a disadvantage to any State when its women submit willingly to injustice, and the suffragists of New York will not rest until they are citizens of their beloved State in every sense of the word.

EUNICE DANA BRANNAN,
Treasurer Women's Political Union.

A HOMELY WAR EPISODE.

The papers did not hear of it; but down in Chrystie Street,
Early this morning, there were hurrying feet,
Whispers subdued, and signals of dismay,
And sleeping children quickly snatched away,
To finish slumbering in some neighbor's room.
Old Madre Rosie tiptoed through the gloom.
To stoop, hall, basement, sounded a shrill cry.
"Mother Compassionate!" "Lena!" "She may die!"

Ah! what did they expect? She had to weep
And grieve by day! At night she could not sleep
Though brave when her Tomaso sailed away
With his reservists—would not have him stay!
'Twas for their Eetahlee! He had to go,
Though he loved her, their children—loved them so!

How much about "preparedness" has been said!
Yet here the Stork has come, with not one shred
Of clothing, minus baggage, for the guest
He's brought and laid on Lena's fluttering breast!
Poor kindly neighbors give of their scant store;
Shrunk, faded garments their own darlings wore.

Kneel! They have called the priest! He comes in haste,
Anointing Lena! There's no time to waste!
"Daughter, the Church will for your children care!"
She smiles, so nearly lifeless, lying there.
The last bambino stirs—the seventh boy!
Ah! if Tomaso knew, how he would joy!
The other children are by neighbors fed.
In time they tiptoe to their mother's bed,
In loving awe to kiss her white, limp hand.
Her eyes unclose—yes! she can understand!
See! the good God to her new life has sent!
She's stronger, since she had the Sacrament!

There's whispering on the walk. If Lena lives
She'll get the dollar which Italia gives
Weekly, to each reservist's family.
Young Dominick works; a sturdy lad is he.
All pledge themselves in some way to lend aid—
For His sake—in a lowly manger laid!

THE DEATH OF ARMENIA.

Her Land Has Been Devastated and the Few Survivors Driven Out.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The deliberate murder of a nation is taking place in this twentieth century. Turkey is now in the act of murdering Armenia, and she has almost completed her work.

There are no ablebodied male Armenians left anywhere in Turkey. They have either been brought to an end in the ranks of the Turkish Army, into which they are dragged, or have perished in prisons and at the gallows—the best of them in the latter manner. The remainder of the Armenian nation, composed of women, children, and old men, have been driven out of their homes; towns and cities have been completely depopulated of their Armenian inhabitants, in most instances amounting to thousands in number. They are driven out on a two months' journey on foot, with no more definite destination than Arabia. Two-thirds of them perish on the way, either from exposure or at the hands of plundering and raping Mohammedans. These reports are from missionaries, Consuls, and Red Cross nurses of other nations.

This state of affairs is the natural course of the Turkish Government's openly expressed policy. What is to be done? Is humanity so situated as to see deliberate murder committed? And that on such a scale?

Ambassador Morgenthau is reported as having done his utmost to stave off such happenings, but without avail, and if America cannot extend a helping hand no one else can at present.

Armenia as a nation is dead. Its land is devastated; only the individual lives of its remaining women and children can be saved. And the only means of rescue is their transportation to this or some other country. Efforts at relief are being made by various Armenian sources, but they are wholly inadequate. Even the removal of a part of the Armenians is such a great undertaking that it requires the best efforts of a powerful nation like America and the active co-operation of the Government. Ambassador Morgenthau is quoted as having said the requirement is at least a million dollars, and perhaps more. But why not give it? Why not give the power and the work necessary for such work? The opportunity to do such service as can be rendered at present does not come but once in the history of a nation.

OUR NEGLECTED FARM LAND.

It Could Furnish Homes and Permanent Occupation for Thousands.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I add a few words, perhaps from a different point of view, to Mr. Lucas's admirable comment on a recently published protest that certain worthy Belgian farmers (refugees) had been given opportunities to settle in South Carolina, the same opportunities apparently not being available to equally worthy American families?

Our large cities contain numbers of skilled mechanics—robust, intelligent men, skilled in the use of the tools of their trades, familiar with tools in general, and accustomed to heavy manual work. A considerable portion of these, myself included, only lack the opportunity that has been extended to the Belgians. The more thoughtful of these men have learned that the high wages are not compensation enough for the high working pressure required during some months or busy periods and the consequent profitless periods of idleness that follow. The thought is always present that as they get older the bosses will look them over more and more sharply when they apply for employment.

As a foreman, my duties frequently require that I employ comparatively large forces of men, exact from each the full measure of skill and efficiency, and in a short time, often only a few days, finish the work in hand and lay them off. There is something cruel about this, and I for one will bless the day that I see the last of it.

One may ride out of New York City only a few miles in almost any direction and see enough tillable land idle to support many families. North Carolina advertises millions of acres idle, New England is noted for its abandoned farms. Why is this land not available to those who, to quote our own President, possess energy and integrity and only lack opportunity?

It would be not only philanthropy to put these men and their families on farms of their own, as Mr. Lucas suggests, with a few precautions to eliminate those mentally, physically, or morally unfit, but I am sure it would be a sound investment.

THE GUARD DEFENDED.

A Few Weeks' Experience Is No Ground for Authoritative Criticism.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letter entitled "Camp or Guard" endeavors to show, by a good deal of misinformation, that the National Guard is a thoroughly useless organization as compared with the camp at Plattsburg. The writer thinks morale is utterly lacking in an organization which has successfully existed for over a hundred years! He declares solemnly that officers in the guard know little or nothing outside the Manual of Arms, and gives as his authority for this strange assertion "the consensus of opinion" of a lot of rookies who have known something regarding the military for almost a month! I never saw a clearer exemplification of the old saying, "A little knowledge is a dangerous thing." I suppose "L. U." considers himself qualified for a commission and on a level of military knowledge equal to a recent graduate from West Point. Evidently in this particular case Plattsburg has failed to accomplish its main objective, namely, to show civilians how little they know about the military.

As a matter of fact, the National Guard contains many veterans of the Spanish war, especially among its officers. Do these know nothing outside the Manual of Arms? As a rule, it takes a man about ten years to get a commission in the "élite Seventh Regiment," and then he is not sure of it, for I have known men to serve more than twice that time, and still in some cases not even attain the rank of Corporal or Sergeant.

In case of war where should we be without the National Guard? Our 25,000 mobile regular army, which is about twice the size of New York's police force, would have difficulty repelling invasion alone.

More Rules for Landlubbers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When the ship leaves port the port is left behind. Hence we get the word "left." Or, when the ship is sailing south the full moon rises on the left side, leaving nothing but stars on the "right" side; hence starboard. (For this system the landlubber must use a compass.) Or, the landlady's favorite prune eater is the "star boarder"; in other words, he is in "right." Or, when a man has too much port, he has "left" most of his salary behind. And so on—it's very simple when you know how!

ADVOCATE OF ETTINGER ANSWERS NUDD.

New York School Principal Contradicts the Arguments Used by Supporters of the Wirt-Gary Plan.

By WILLIAM E. GRADY,
Principal, Public School 64, Manhattan.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In reply to Howard W. Nudd's letter of Sept. 13, with reference to the relative cost of the Ettinger and Wirt plans of school organization, permit me to submit the following specific rejoinder to the statements made relating to the organization and the per capita cost of work carried on in Public School 64, Manhattan, under Dr. William L. Ettinger's supervision.

By way of preface let me express my appreciation of the undaunted courage displayed by Mr. Nudd, the salaried director of the Public Education Association, of which I am a member, in summarily, though not impartially, evaluating the work of Public School 45, Bronx, with which he has but limited contact, and of Public School 64, Manhattan, with which he is absolutely unacquainted either through visitation or through discussion with those in charge.

Mr. Nudd states that it would be most unfortunate if prevailing conditions were allowed to persist through failure to evaluate promptly the plans proposed by Mr. Wirt. It should be noted, however, that inasmuch as the plan proposed by Mr. Wirt for the elimination of part time involves a number of novel features of school administration, such as departmental teaching for all children from the first year through the eighth, instruction of classes by pupils instead of teachers, the grouping together of younger and older pupils for auditorium, laboratory, and workshop exercises, the omission of formal physical training, the deferring of scholastic work for first-year children until very late in the afternoon, &c., none of which has as yet proved its value either in Public School 45, Bronx, or Public School 89, Brooklyn, possibly because of the fact that sufficient time has not elapsed to test the worth of the schemes, prudence should suggest awaiting the outcome of experiments in those schools before committing the entire city school system to an educational policy which may possibly in the end impair its present admitted efficiency.

Allow me to briefly discuss a number of the points made by Mr. Nudd in his very interesting letter.

He states that because of the success of the work of the Wirt organization in Public School 45, Bronx, and Public School 89, Brooklyn, the Board of Education adopted the plan for the twelve schools in the Bronx. Moreover, with suppressed admiration he refers to the advisability of permittting the Superintendent to transform our entire city system for the relatively insignificant sum of $6,000,000.

It may be relevant to note that as far as I have been able to determine neither Principal of the schools mentioned nor Mr. Wirt himself regards either school as anything but a makeshift organization, because of the absence of annexes, and the accompanying equipment which is absolutely essential to the success of the duplicate school organization. It would appear that the extension of Mr. Wirt's scheme to a larger group of schools was not based upon any scientific evaluation of the work by the Board of Superintendents, or even the majority of the members of the Board of Education, but primarily on the assumption that inasmuch as Mr. Wirt was obligated to conduct experimental work intended to initiate vocational training, his theory should be put to the test under the most favorable conditions, and on a sufficiently broad scale to test its practicability in a large city system.

Moreover, it should be recalled that, although the contractual relation was to end Oct. 1, 1915, much time elapsed before Mr. Wirt's work passed the stage of theoretical paper organization. Even today the only concrete results of the service rendered are the two incomplete organizations already referred to. Whereas, for the past month and a half the Ettinger plan has been in complete operation in Public Schools 64 and 95, Manhattan; 5, 158, and 162, Brooklyn, and 85, Queens, providing a definitely organized pre-vocational training for the mature pupils who desire the same, and an enriched school day through the use of adjacent social facilities such as parks, libraries, baths, settlements, as well as greatly increasing school accommodations.

An analysis is made by Mr. Nudd intended to show that in Public School 64, Manhattan, there has been no lengthening of the school day except in the case of the pre-vocational group, whereas a longer school day has been provided in Public School 45, Bronx, "a fact that seems to be distinctly favorable to the Wirt plan of organization." The real facts are as follows:

(1.) No change was made in the time of the first-year children under the Ettinger plan because of the mandatory provision of the by-laws of the Board of Education, which provide for a four-hour day for first-year children. However, the Ettinger schedule readily lends itself to an extension of the first-year school day if the same is considered desirable.

(2.) As admitted by Mr. Nudd, the pre-vocational group of pupils of the sixth, seventh, and eighth years have a longer day than any pupils have under the Wirt plan.

(3.) The remaining pupils included in the double session plan have a five or six hour day as they and their parents decide, through the organization of a well-conducted playground open from 2:30 to 3:30 for the X group, and from 3:30 to 4:30 for the Y group—thus making a school day that extends either from 8:30 to 3:30 or from 9:30 to 4:30. Because of the varied demands in this locality—of the home, settlements, synagogues, and industries, attendance during the last period is made optional rather than mandatory. However, a large percentage of the pupils avail themselves of the opportunities offered.

It should not be forgotten that under Dr. Ettinger's organisation, intended primarily to insure vocational training, rather than solve the part-time problem of securing increased school accommodations, swimming pools, music studies, and other novel accessories were not made part of the school equipment. An elementary study of Dr. Ettinger's program, however, will reveal the fact that if funds were provided for the installation of these features, the school day might profitably be made of any desired length.

It may not be amiss, however, to direct attention to the fact that the type of longer school day advocated by Mr. Wirt, which makes 1A pupils report at 8:30 A. M. for practically a whole morning of play, auditorium work, and excursions, and which postpones the study of content subjects as reading and number to as late as 3:50 in the afternoon, may not be an unmixed blessing.

Obviously, the gross amount of daily school time should not be taken as a measure of the educational process as distinct from the type of educational influence and instruction to which the pupil has been subjected during that time. Things accomplished rather than time spent is the real measure of value. Housing children and instructing children are not synonymous terms. Pupils engaged in aimless play under the benevolent supervision of pupil monitors, or whiling away time in idle contemplation of lengthy auditorium exercises, may really need a longer school day in order to compete successfully with children working under skilled teachers' supervision on the basis of a well organized program.

(4.) Mr. Nudd reiterates in slightly varied language the argument that inasmuch as a shop group is limited to half a class, one acamedic teacher and two shop teachers are required for two classes, or, reducing to a unit basis, that one and a half teachers are required per unit class.

Since the initiation of our shopwork we have gone on the assumption that such a distribution is absolutely necessary in order to insure an effectiveness. Moreover, our policy is simply an extension of the one our system has used in handling manual training work. It would be interesting and profitable for us to learn from either Mr. Nudd or any other expert layman a way out of the dilemma. For, of course, the crux of the whole matter is not alone per capita cost, but efficient instruction.

To his own satisfaction Mr. Nudd proves that the per capita cost per pupil per month under the Ettinger system as illustrated in Public School 64, Manhattan, is 17 cents greater than under the Wirt system, as illustrated in the partial organization of Public School 45, Bronx.

Apart from the unimportant fact that the attendance figures upon which Mr. Nudd bases his calculation of per capita cost are incorrect (381 pupils having been instructed instead of 291 pupils), it should be noted that his analysis fails to include such points as the following:

(a.) At present Public School 45, Bronx, is inadequately equipped, and the choice of shopwork is limited to pottery, joinery, printing, agriculture, and millinery, whereas the pupils of this school have the choice of ten shops, including machine practice, sheet metal, plumbing, electric wiring, printing, sign painting, garment design, joinery, and trade drawing. I feel confident that if the per capita cost is based on the pupil hour unit, the cost of our shops will be less than that of Public School 45, Bronx, because of the greater number of hours of shop instruction, and the larger size of the groups which our shops accommodate.

Instead of basing his computation on the assumption that only 291 pupils were taught in our shops during the month of May, it is a matter of official record that 381 pupils were instructed during daily periods lasting from one to six hours, depending upon whether or not the pupils were over-aged pupils from the intermediate grades, average pupils from the sixth, seventh and eighth year grades, or adolescent scholarship pupils sent to us by the Henry Street Settlement.

It requires no deep thinking to perceive that by a reduction of the daily shop time per pupil we could accommodate a greater number of pupils, but our aim is the accommodation of pupils who in terms of parental approval, personal inclination, and ability desire to do prevocational work rather than the imposition of shopwork on all upper grade pupils despite their desires and abilities.

(b.) It should be borne in mind in analyzing the organization of Public School 45, Bronx, that none of the labor or expense incident to regular instruction of the children in Public School 64, Manhattan, is borne by social agencies, social workers, vocational experts, or clergymen, as is the case in Public School 45, Bronx, in the conduct of the school garden and farm, the organization of pageants and exhibits, and the giving of religious instruction.

(c.) Moreover, no attempt is made in this school to reduce the cost of supervision and instruction by the reintroduction of the long-repudiated Lancaster pupil teacher method of teaching and supervision. It may be that depriving eight classes of official teachers may not be what Mr. Nudd has in mind when he explains the lower per capita cost as being due to the fact "that the burden of teaching is more evenly distributed over the entire teaching staff." Another fact to be borne in mind in organizing Public School 45, Bronx, organization is that the assignment of experienced teachers to the exclusive supervision of such activities as physical training, folk dancing, and program supervision, means that a very high salary is being paid for work that could be secured for a much lower wage.

In conclusion, I do not doubt the sincerity of Mr. Nudd's advocacy of Mr. Wirt's plans, nor do I undervalue Supt. Wirt's contribution to the problem of duplicate school organization, but I do believe that the extravagant claims of well meaning advocates like Mr. Nudd simply cloud the issue and unduly delay the formulation of a policy that would conserve, not only the financial resources of the city, but the infinitely more valuable resources of childhood.

Benches Without Backs.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Though fortunate enough to be living in a large house, I have, during these last days of trying heat, longed to sit out of doors in the only bearable hours—the evening ones. I find in my neighborhood of Thirty-seventh Street only the crowded Bryant Park, and a few benches without backs in front of the Public Library. But there is room there for many more seats, and it is to appeal for benches with backs placed there that I am writing this letter. There are many people in this neighborhood who have only a room instead of a house, and who cannot afford to get a fairly comfortable seat by riding up and down on a Fifth Avenue bus.

BRIDE OF DR. W. S. SCHLEY.

Miss Grace Van Campen Married to Son of Late Rear Admiral.

The marriage is announced of Miss Grace Marie Van Campen, daughter of Mrs. Henry Van Campen of 379 Clinton Avenue, Brooklyn, and Dr. Winfield Scott Schley, son of the late Rear Admiral Winfield Scott Schley, which took place last Monday in the rectory of St. George's Church, Stuyvesant Square, this city. The Rev. Dr. Holbrook officiated.

No formal announcement had been made of the wedding, and it was celebrated quietly on account of illness in the bride's family. The couple's engagement was announced last November.

Dr. Schley and his bride will leave shortly on their honeymoon trip, and a reception is to be given for them at the home of the bride's mother, in November, after their return. Dr. Schley's home is at 24 West Forty-fifth Street. His bride was graduated from the Packer Institute, and is prominent socially in the younger set in Brooklyn.

OMIT "OBEY" AT CEREMONY.

Eleanor Flowers, Actress, Marries Gregory Mason of The Outlook.

True to their belief that marriages should be performed quietly and with as little ceremony as possible, Miss Eleanor Flowers and Gregory Mason slipped over to Jersey City yesterday and were married at 12:30 o'clock in the Jersey City Court House. Arrangements had been made previously with Judge Tennant, who, at the request of the bride and bridegroom, performed a brief ceremony, leaving out "obey" and dispensing with the ring. Eunice Flowers, sister of the bride, and Harold Littledale of The Evening Post completed the party.

The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Pitt Flowers of Tennessee. She came to New York four years ago to go on the stage, and appeared in several Broadway productions. She has only recently returned from St. John, N. B., where she was leading woman in a stock company. She is an ardent suffragist, and while engaged in picket duty during a garment strike three years ago she first met Mr. Mason, who was writing articles on the strike.

Mr. Mason is a cousin of John Mason, the actor. He is a member of the staff of The Outlook, and is to act as war correspondent at the Russian front. He and his bride are to sail on Monday for Russia. They will return at Christmastime, when Mrs. Mason will return to the stage.

WEEKS ADMITS HE MAY RUN FOR PRESIDENT

All Depends on Conditions as They Develop, Says the Bay State Senator.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 16.—"Talk of my candidacy for President did not originate with me at all," said Senator Weeks of Massachusetts, who came to this city today to address a Chamber of Commerce delegation on the merchant marine. "But I am doing the things that seem desirable at this stage of the 1916 campaign," said the Senator. "Whether I shall be a candidate depends on conditions as they develop."

Asked to outline the issues upon which the Republican Party should make its fight, the Senator said:

"The Republican Party ought to advocate a protective tariff; a reasonable preparation for a national defense; a general policy of encouraging individual effort and the protection of business enterprises; and the upbuilding of a merchant marine. It should oppose any attempt to put the Government into the ocean transportation business."

Senator Weeks said the chances for a Republican victory next year were excellent.

"The Democratic Administration has very largely failed to carry out the claims made for it both during the campaign and at the time its laws were passed," the Senator said. "This especially applies to the tariff bill, which has not reduced the cost of living, has not stimulated foreign trade, and has been the poorest revenue-producing tariff legislation we have had since the civil war."

MOSS WILL GO TO POLLS.

Says Fusion Has Made Him an Anti-Tammany Candidate.

Mr. Moss said he would never prosecute any one unless he were sure of his guilt. He answered District Attorney Perkins, who had said he would abide by the result of the Republican primaries, by saying:

"Believing that I am to be the candidate of the Republican Party, I have made fusion for myself and for the Republican Party. I am already recognized as an armed and equipped anti-Tammany candidate."

At a meeting of the Democratic Union, Inc., held at the Hotel McAlpin last night, resolutions were adopted indorsing Mr. Moss's candidacy.

The Charles A. Perkins Campaign Committee was organized yesterday. Bronson Winthrop is Chairman, Langdon P. Marvin Secretary, and M. W. Clephane Treasurer. "Several matters of importance will be discussed," Mr. Hinrichs said last night. "It was impossible for me to see all the members separately, so I called them together."

Bogert, in Lawrence Street, Flushing, L. I. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Benjamin C. Warren, a Methodist minister of New York, a friend of the bridegroom.

There were no attendants, and only the immediate families were present, including Mrs. Craig Lippincott and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel K. Reeves of Philadelphia and Mrs. Townsend Lawrence, a sister of the bride.

The couple came to New York shortly after the ceremony, and are staying at the Ritz-Carlton. After a motor trip they will reside in Philadelphia.

Mrs. Huntington obtained her divorce from E. Irving Huntington last February, alleging cruel treatment. No defense was made. Mr. Lippincott was divorced by his wife, who was Miss Camelia Hare of Washington, D. C., in 1910, at Colorado Springs.

YOM KIPPUR BEGINS AT SUNSET TONIGHT

Most Important Event in Jewish Religious Life Will Be Observed for 24 Hours.

ALL ORTHODOX WILL FAST

Services in Synagogues to Start with the Kol Nidre and Conclude Tomorrow Night with the Neilah.

The observance of Yom Kippur, or the Day of Atonement, will be ushered in at sunset this evening, with fasting and praying, by the Jewish people wheresoever dispersed. This fast day is considered the most important event in the religious life of the Jew and is more strictly and generally observed than any of the other fast days in the Hebraic calendar.

The celebration is characterized by a total abstention from all manner of labor or business for the twenty-four hours during which it extends, only the most absolute works of necessity or charity being permitted. For the same period the observant Jew does not partake of food or drink of any kind, the strictest manner of fasting being enjoined upon him. None of the orthodox section of the Jewish people consider themselves exempt from this fact, except the ill, nursing mothers, children and the very aged, and there are not many of the latter who avail themselves of this exemption. The fasting begins at sunset this evening and the fast is not broken until after the close of the religious services in the synagogues at sunset tomorrow evening.

The services at the synagogues, temples, and other places of worship begin this evening with the Kol Nidre service, which is very solemn and impressive. They are resumed tomorrow morning and are practically continuous during the day. They are brought to a close as sunset approaches by the Neilah, or concluding service, at the end of which the "Shofar" is sounded and the worshippers return to their homes to partake of food for the first time in twenty-four hours. During the afternoon service there is a solemn "memorial service" in memory of those who have passed away during the past year.

At many of the temples collections will be taken up for the benefit of suffering Jewish people in Russia and Poland who have been driven from their homes by the invading armies and who are in dire distress.

The Atonement Day services will be held at Carnegie Hall this evening at 8 o'clock, when Dr. Wise will preach on "World Peace and World Atonement—How?" At the service tomorrow morning, beginning at 10 o'clock, the address will be given by Dr. Sidney E. Goldstein, who will preach on "How Shall Man Prevail?" In the course of the memorial service of the afternoon beginning at 2:30 o'clock the subject of Dr. Wise's sermon will be "The Duty of Hope." A special children's service will be held at 12:30 o'clock immediately after the conclusion of the morning service, and will include a special address by Dr. Wise on "The Child's Atonement." In addition to the regular music by a special chorus under the direction of Leon M. Kramer of the Music School Settlement chorus, Leo Schulz, the 'cellist, will play Bruch's "Kol Nidre" at the evening service.

SUFFRAGE GAINS IN HOUSE.

Report 206 Representatives Pledged to Vote for Amendment.

There are 206 men pledged to vote for the Federal amendment for woman suffrage in the new House of Representatives, according to a statement made yesterday by Mrs. Medill McCormick of Chicago at a meeting of the Executive Board of the National Woman Suffrage Association at the headquarters of the association, 505 Fifth Avenue. This statement is based upon returns of Congressional District Leaders of the National Association, who have been interviewing their Senators and Representatives this Summer. Reports are not yet all in and the number will be increased, it is expected, before the opening of Congress.

This means an increase of thirty-two votes in the lower house over the 174 promised for the so-called Susan B. Anthony amendment last year. A report upon the standing of the Senate on the woman's question is to be given out soon. The largest gain was in Ohio, where last year's number will be doubled. There is only one member of the Connecticut delegation who is opposed to woman suffrage, one favors the national amendment, and others are open to conviction. Missouri, Kentucky, Indiana, Tennessee, Nebraska, Minnesota, Michigan, Maine and Vermont are other States which will possibly give new votes, says Mrs. McCormick. It is expected that the hard work done by the suffragists in the four campaign States, New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania, will also bring in additional votes for the Federal amendment.

PLAN A SHAKESPEARE FETE.

Players' Club to Celebrate Tercentenary of Playwright's Death.

A number of dramatic organizations, including the Players' Club and the Drama League of America, met last Wednesday afternoon in the Russell Sage Foundation Building, to arrange plans for the celebration of the tercentenary of the death of William Shakespeare. The entertainment is to be under the direction of the Players, and it was decided to raise a fund of between $75,000 and $100,000, part of which, it is hoped, will be subscribed by the city and the balance by public-spirited citizens.

Percy Mackaye is to write a Shakespearian masque for the entertainment and this will be acted by members of the Players. Efforts are to be made to obtain an attendance of at least 100,000 persons and it is expected that the masque will be given in Brooklyn as well as here.

Those in charge of the arrangements are Mary Porter Beagle of Barnard College; Howard Kyle of the Players' Club, and Cranston Brenton and William Morgan will compose the Finance Committee.

New Organization Elects Directors for Its Six Branches.

At a meeting of representatives of various branches of the motion picture industry yesterday afternoon in the Hotel McAlpin permanent organization of the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America was effected. A Board of Directors to serve till next January was elected, and today the charter of the new organization will be forwarded to Albany for incorporation.

Members of six branches of the industry are represented on the board. The classes and Directors elected according to the branches were: Manufacturers and exporters, Carl Laemmle, Universal, and J. Stuart Blackton, Vitagraph; dealers in supplies and equipment, J. E. Broulateur, Eastman Company, and Schuyler Colfax; film exchanges, P. A. Powers and W. W. Erwin; exhibitors, S. L. A special Membership Committee will investigate prospective members and pass upon their eligibility. The companies that are charter members of the organization are the Metro, Universal, Mutual, Vitagraph, Selig, Lubin, Essenay, Fox, Motion News Syndicate, and Eastman Kodak.

The organization will further the interests of the motion picture industry in every legitimate way, giving special attention to legislation proposed or on the statute books considered unjust. Temporary headquarters have been opened at 18 East Forty-first Street.

FILM LABORATORY SAVED.

Famous Players' Factory Not Damaged by Recent Fire

The Famous Players' Film Company, most of whose property was burned last Saturday night, issued a statement yesterday as a reply to Commisioner Adamson, who said that the danger of the burning of films and chemicals made film plants a menace unless isolated. The statement says:

"In the case of the fire which admittedly began in the braid factory and was communicated to the Famous Players' part of the old armory, there were highly colored pen pictures drawn of exploding films and motion-picture chemicals blowing the roof of the building out in one great explosion. Investigation after the fire established the fact that the laboratory, which includes the developing, printing, drying and assembling rooms—that is, the actual factory of the film company—was absolutely unscathed by the flames."

REPLY TO HAMMERSTEIN.

United Booking Offices Say He Is Violating His Agreement.

The suit of the Hammerstein Amusement Company to restrain the United Booking Offices from refusing to serve them was answered yesterday by the defendants, who filed with the Supreme Court a statement to the effect that the plaintiffs had been paid $225,000 under an agreement by which they bound themselves not to open any vaudeville houses other than the Victoria Theatre and the Manhattan Opera House for a period of twelve years unless one of those buildings was destroyed by fire.

The defendants say that neither one of the theatres was destroyed by fire and that the present condition of the Victoria is due to an attempt on the part of the plaintiffs to make extensive alterations. The defendants ask that the complaint be dismissed and the plaintiffs enjoined from violating the contract.

LAMBS LAY CORNERSTONE.

Shepherd Courtleigh Presides at Ceremonies at the New Addition.

The cornerstone of the new addition to the Lambs' clubhouse, adjoining the old structure to the west of Forty-fourth Street, was laid yesterday noon with appropriate ceremonies. William Courtleigh, Shepherd of the Lambs, made a brief address, in which he spoke of the illustrious membership of the club and the recognition it was always ready to give worthy young artists.

A metal box was placed in the stone containing the club book, in which are printed the names of the members, officers, and various committees, programs of the last two gambols, and a greeting to posterity signed "Antiquity." As Sheperd Courtleigh broke a bottle of wine over the stone just before the masons lowered it into place, one of a group of young women who stood watching the ceremony exclaimed, "What a waste!"

Dudley Field Malone, George V. Hobart, William Harris, Percy G. Williams, officers of the club, and about 100 members attended the ceremony.

Comes to Play at French Theatre.

Paul Capelduns, leading juvenile of the Comédie Française Théâtre in Paris, arrived yesterday on the French liner Chicago to play at the Théâtre Françise in New York. He served in the trenches for several months and was wounded in the thigh. One of his brothers was killed in the trench with him.

Mrs. Henry Russell, wife of the opera director, arrived on the Chicago to go on a concert tour through the United States. She sings under the name of Mme. Nina Varesa.

Weber and Fields Return in Shades.

Weber and Fields are to appear again in the Music Hall that bears their name, and in which they gained their fame. Or perhaps it would be more accurate to say that the shades of the comedians are to return, for they will appear on a movie screen and not in person. Next Monday the theatre will become a motion-picture playhouse, and as a fitting dedication pictures for which Joe and Lew acted will be shown.

Burlesque in Garrick Theatre.

Another of the historic playhouses of Manhattan is to be invaded by the burlesquers. The Garrick, which has been a movie theatre for several months, will change to burlesque a week from Monday night. Attractions will be booked by the American Burlesque Company, and there will be two performances daily. Jerome and Walter Rosenberg will manage the theatre.

May Irwin Halts Till Cool Nights.

Another theatre succumbed to the heat yesterday. May Irwin's engagement in "33 Washington Square" at the Park was temporarily suspended until cool weather comes. The comedienne says she lost twenty pounds last week, and as she has no desire to break into Sarah Bernhardt's field and tour the country in "Camille" played in a portable icehouse, she has decided to conserve her figure by retiring till the Weather Man relents.

BUGLER ROLLAND DIES AT 95

Sole Survivor of Battle of Sidi Brahim Was Decorated by France.

PARIS, Sept. 16.—The death is announced of Bugler Rolland, sole survivor of those who took part in the battle of Sidi Brahim in 1845 in the French war of subjugation in Algeria. He was 95 years old, and was decorated a few years ago with the medal of the Legion of Honor. President Poincaré attended a dinner given in his honor on Feb. 22, 1914, in this city.

During the battle of Sidi Brahim, while wounded and a prisoner, Bugler Rolland was ordered by Abd-el-Kader, the Arabian chief, to sound the retreat at a critical stage of the battle in order to deceive the French troops. Without an instant's hesitation he sounded the charge. In the clash which followed the French won the day.

MANAGERS OUTWIT CUT-RATE AGENCIES

INVESTIGATE HOTEL AGENCY

Meeting Reveals That the Theatres, in Spite of Poor Business Due to Heat, Are Upholding Agreement.

The theatre managers met yesterday in their rooms in the New York Theatre Building to discuss the workings of the first week of the contract entered into by the managers of all first-class playhouses regulating the sale of tickets. A brief period of operation of the agreement developed some loopholes, and the meeting was called to consider ways and means of stopping these up.

The managers have been watching the cut-rate agencies to see whether they offered any tickets for sale, and in this way one weakness of the agreement was discovered. It was found that the cut-rate agencies had what are known as hard tickets on sale for some attractions. These tickets, which are sold at box offices for $1 when all the dollar seats are full, admit to higher priced seats. This practice has been common and has been considered legitimate, as it enabled a theatre not to turn prospective customers away because of the inability to furnish seats at a certain price.

But the practice gave the scalpers their chance, for by sending out what are known as "diggers," in the vernacular of the box office, the agencies could obtain hard tickets, which they sold for $1.25, thus enabling them to supply at least some of their patrons. In order to cut off even this limited supply it was agreed to eliminate this form of ticket.

Another report made to the meeting was that one of the hotel agencies had charged more than the 50-cent premium permitted by the new contract. The matter will be investigated, and if it is found the agency did offend it will be punished.

The meeting revealed the fact that in spite of the unseasonable weather of the last week, which has cut audiences in half, the managers are unanimously in favor of the plan to correct the evils of ticket selling that obtained so generally last year.

OLD PAINTER DIES AT EASEL.

DETROIT AND PHILLIES ADVANCE IN PENNANT RACES—NEW RECORD FOR PACING

BOSTON BALL FANS ATTACK TY COBB

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Sept. 16.—What is considered to be almost the decisive series in the race for the American League pennant opened here this afternoon between the Red Sox and Detroit, the Bostonians determined to hold their advantage and the Tigers clamoring for the place at the top of the percentage column. When Hughey Jennings's outfit whooped into town it was just two and a half games behind Boston, and immediately it proceeded to eradicate some of that difference by beating the Red Sox in a 6 to 1 battle that brought complete disappointment to 28,000 Boston fans. Tonight the home team holds its lead in the race by the narrow margin of a game and a half, and from the clean-cut manner in which the Tigers outplayed Boston there did not appear to be much that would give encouragement for tomorrow.

Boston vented its ill feeling on Ty Cobb. Each time that the Georgian came to bat he was booed and hissed, and when the game was over the bleacherites made a rush at him. He became the centre of a swirling crowd. Wads of paper were hurled at the Detroit player, and heavier objects might have followed had not the police succeeded in working their way through the crowd of fans. They scattered the crowd for a moment and then hurried Cobb toward the club house. Cobb won the disapproval of the fans when he drove in the first run for the Tigers, and from then on it constantly increased. In the eighth inning he threw his bat at the Boston pitcher, Mays. The latter had sent two balls across that Ty thought were intended for his head. The next ball pitched did hit Cobb on the wrist, and with this start his remarkable base running ability turned in another tally for Detroit.

The victory for the Tigers is not measured by the superiority of Dauss over George Foster. That was a big factor, but the Detroit men were playing better ball behind Dauss than Boston was according to the support of Foster, and those who succeeded him. Ban Johnson had just lifted the suspension that had been in force against Foster, and he was sent to the mound as the best pitcher on the Boston staff. The first inning, in which Detroit scored two runs, served to disillusion him in this particular. The Tiger batsmen, Cobb and Veach, brought in the two tallies after a pass to Bush.

Duass pitched effective ball, Boston making only one hit up to the fourth inning, when the Tigers had extended their lead to three runs. Foster lasted five innings, being relieved by Ray Collins after Vitt's single in the fifth inning had brought across two runs. Collins immediately gave way to a pinch hitter, and the underhand pitcher Mays finished out the game, the Tigers getting one run from him.

The visitors wasted no time today. Bush worked Foster for a pass in the first inning, and then advanced while Foster was handling a hot drive from Vitt to first base. Cobb then brought Bush home with a hit to centre, going to second on Speaker's tardy throw home, and scoring on another centrefield single by Veach. Hooper's muff of Crawford's liner and a hit by Young brought the Tigers a run in the fourth, and in the fifth, when Foster hit Dauss after Stanage had singled, Bush laid down a sacrifice and the two runners scored on Vitt's chop hit to leftfield.

In the eighth Mays hit Cobb, who stole second on the first pitch, advanced on Veach's out and then beat Scott's throw home after Crawford's infield drive.

Boston had few openings, seeing second base only twice. In the fifth inning the Red Sox got their only run on a scratch hit to Young by Gardner, who was forced by Lewis. Barry was safe on a wild throw to first base by Vitt, and Thomas saved a shutout on a clean cut single to centrefield. The score:

Baseball Pool Men Indicted.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 16.—Efforts of the Federal Government to break up baseball pool gambling resulted today in the indictment by the United States Grand Jury here of the two publishers of The Weekly World, which is alleged to have conducted the pools. The men indicted are John J. Kilcoyne and James Walsh of Wilkes-Barre, Penn. The jury found true bills against them on four counts, the charge being that they delivered to an express company at Allentown, Penn., for carriage in interstate commerce advertisements in reference to lottery tickets. The advertisements, it is charged, were contained in The Weekly World, which was printed in Allentown and shipped, according to the indictment, to Chicago, Blue Island, Ill., and Cincinnati.

The Grand Jury failed to indict an employe of the publishers of the paper, nor did it take any action against agents for the paper who were arrested in other States.

It is expected that Kilcoyne and Walsh will be tried at the present term of the United States District Court here.

UMPIRE BYRON APOLOGIZES.

Tells Chicago Fans He Is Sorry That He Fought with "Red" Smith.

CHICAGO, Sept. 16.—Umpire Byron, who engaged in a fight with "Red" Smith of the Boston Nationals, after yesterday's game at the local National League baseball grounds, today offered a public apology for his part in the affair. Byron stepped in front of the grandstand just before today's contest with Brooklyn and told the fans he was sorry that he had taken part in yesterday's mix-up. His unusual disclaimer brought loud applause from the crowd.

Phillies Trounce Reds, 10 to 3.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 16.—Philadelphia obtained a big lead in the first inning and had no trouble winning the first game of the series from Cincinnati today 10 to 3. George, who started to pitch for Cincinnati, did not finish the first inning, being hit for a single, double, and Luderus's three-base hit, which, with two bases on balls, gave Philadelphia four runs. McKenery, who succeeded George, also gave a base on balls and was hit for two singles, which was good for two more runs in this inning. Alexander was very steady and kept the hits scattered. The score:

WHITE SOX STARS BOW TO YANKEES

Lowly Donovanites Humble Comiskey's High-Priced Baseball Team.

Charley Comiskey's high-priced baseball hobby, the Chicago White Sox, didn't give the Old Roman a run for his money at the Polo Grounds yesterday. They blew up in the eighth inning just as easily as players who receive only a union wage. The Yankees romped in with a last-minute victory by a score of 3 to 2.

Quite a bit of money has been squandered on these White Sox. It would amount to just about as much as the Allies are trying to borrow, or perhaps a little bit more. All that Comiskey wants is the best players on each club, and he'll be satisfied. Ty Cobb is about the only expensive masterpiece that Chicago hasn't tempted with a bankroll.

There are stars enough on the Sox to make a glare like a diamond tiara. But $30,000 worth of Joe Jackson and $50,000 worth of Eddie Collins didn't stop the Yanks from hitting Eddie Cicotte's knuckle ball in the eighth inning. The batting rally consisted of four perfectly good hits, and is the first sign of healthy hitting the Yanks have displayed after a string of eight defeats. When they decided to win a game they picked out an expensive team to trim, anyway.

Eddie Collins, whose favorite pastime is playing ball, next to drawing his salary, sent the White Sox on the high road to success in the fourth inning. After Eddie Murphy had walked, John Collins hoisted a foul to Walters. Edward Trowbridge Collins then thumped a home run to right centre field and pushed his namesake home ahead of him. After that the Sox believed they had no grounds for worry. But tarry a moment; the Yanks have something to say about this.

Maisel opened the eighth with a two-base slap to right, and scooted home on Peckinpaugh's two-cushion rap to left. Shoeless Joe Jackson then made a great catch of Pipp's liner, after which Paddy Bauman singled to left and scored Peck with the tying run. Old Roy Hartzell won the argument when he punched a single to right and persuaded Bauman home.

The Yankees placed on public view Albert Walters, a young catcher from Waco, Texas. Walters behaved like a real catcher, and if he works much the fans will forget that there was ever such a person as Ed Sweeney on the club. King Cole, who has been serving a sentence for breaking training rules, came back to pitch the ninth inning, and he did his little bit well. The score:

SUFFRAGISTS STIR GIANTS.

Lillian Russell Throws Out Ball and Pirates Lose.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Sept. 16.—The New York Giants hit the ball with vigor today and thereby easily defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates by a score of 8 to 4. It was suffragist day at the Forbes Field, the walls of which were decorated with crossed emblems of the party, alternating with crossed American flags. Lillian Russell threw out the first ball, and when Bob Harmon had thrown it over the plate to George Burns, the first batsman, Umpire Rigler, taking off his cap, presented the little white globe to Lillian. His polite bow had nothing on that of John McGraw, when he shook hands with her. Before the game began the two teams in double file marched on the field carrying yellow balloons. The suffragists not only applauded each good play, but paid $5 for each run.

The Giants lost no time in showing their appreciation by taking the lead in the first inning, Burns crossing the plate. But the Pirates went the Giants one better in their half of the first inning, Carey and Barney scoring, each having a big hit to his credit.

But the Pirates never were dangerous after that first chapter. They reached third base only twice up to the ninth inning. Then they smashed the ball for a single and a triple, which, with a wild pitch by Tesreau, gave them two more runs. That wild pitch evidently aroused Big Jeff's anger, for the next two batters struck out, the last strike out ending the game. The Giants tied the score in the second inning. But as neither side after that could make an impression on the other, pitchers were changed. This move did not help the Pirates, who changed from Harmon to Adams and then to Slattery, a recruit from the West. Tesreau succeeded Stroud after the the fifth inning, and not only pitched good ball but hit the ball for two safeties and scored a run. It was in the eighth inning the Giants rose in their might. They swatted Harmon so unmercifully that he was compelled to leave the field in the midst of the battle. Adams put a stop to the attack of the Giants, who, however, hung up the game high and dry by getting two singles, a double and a triple, which, with a base on balls, netted them five runs and victory. Kansas City Club Forfeits Game.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 16.—Kansas City today forfeited the American Association game scheduled with Cleveland when the owners of Somers Park refused to agree to a "50-50" split of $250 paid by the city for the use of the park for the city amateur championship game between the White Autos and Stinchcombe Engineers, which was to be played after the American Association game. No seats were sold for the amateur game, and it was intended also to have a free gate for the association contest. Manager Shay refused to let his men play.

DODGERS DEFEATED IN TWELFTH INNING

"Big Jim" Vaughn of Cubs Allows Robins Only Four Scattered Hits.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Sept. 16.—"Big Jim" Vaughn pitched his season's blue-ribbon game today. Opposing Ed Pfeffer, Brooklyn's giant right-hander, the Cubs' southpaw fought eleven of the most sensational innings ever seen on the West Side grounds without a score. Then Pfeffer faltered in the twelfth, bowing in defeat, 1 to 0, when Good singled, Fisher sacrificed, Schulte drew an intentional pass, the only one of the matinée, and Saier banged a single to the right field bleachers.

Always a stumbling block for Colonel Robinson's swatting Dodgers, Vaughn proceeded to rule the situation from the start. Like his burly slab opponent, Vaughn worked fast and received magnificent support, the combatants reeling off the first nine rounds in one hour and twenty-nine minutes, and completing the twelve-inning grind in exactly two hours. During his long engagement, Bresnahan's flinger held the visitors to four scattered singles, two rebounding from Pfeffer's hands. He struck out seven and did not issue a pass.

Danger hovered over the West Side pitcher on three occasions only, and in each case the supporting bruins squashed Brooklyn's run-making ambitions. Once a double play by Archer and McCarthy quelled the Easterners, and later in the affray McCarthy executed a remarkable stop of Myers's drive, nailing the speedy Dodger when it seemed as if Vaughn was doomed to weaken. Then in the twelfth Schulte's good right arm completed a peg from deep left to Saier for another double play.

Control was Pfeffer's best asset, and but for a flash from the Brooklyn bench ordering an intentional pass to Schulte when the Cubs rallied in the twelfth, Vaughn's opponent might have gone the route with a perfect record.

With two gone in the opener Stengel singled and took second on a passed ball, moving to third on Archer's wide heave, but Vaughn easily got Cutshaw. Both sides fought grimly through the next ten rounds with hurling honors practically "fifty-fifty." Pfeffer pried open the twelfth with his second swat, but was forced at second when O'Mara hit in front of the plate. Daubert, up for the fifth time, pasted a liner to Schulte in deep left and O'Mara, taking a long chance, stalled while returning to first. Before he could touch the sack Saier had speared Schulte's bee-line peg, completing a double play. The score:

BUFFALO TAKES THE LEAD.

Bisons Pull Providence Out of First Place in International Race.

The International League race, which ends tomorrow, is furnishing a close, hard-fought contest for the pennant between Providence, last year's pennant, and the Buffalo club, managed by Pat Donovan. These two clubs yesterday finished playing a series, and on Wednesday the Bisons went into the lead by a few points.

Yesterday's game resulted in an eleven inning tie, so Buffalo holds its slight advantage. Buffalo's remaining games will be played against the Jersey City club, the tailenders of the league, while Providence will finish the season against Toronto. This gives Buffalo the advantage, and the chances are now strong for Donovan landing his club in front.

The International League has had a hard row to hoe this season, and in spite of the fact that it was predicted that the league would not play out the season, the Barrow circuit has weathered the storm. The season has not been a success financially.

NEW YORK HORSES WIN.

J. Campbell Thompson's Four-in-Hand Victor at Syracuse.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 16.—New York City horse fanciers made a good showing today at the State Fair Horse Show, winning many of the first prizes. A big feature of the exhibition was the class of pairs, in which E. B. McLean won with Lady and Elegant Dilham. Miss Isabelle Wanamaker took second with Eve and Suave.

In the class for harness pairs, women to drive, Miss Wanamaker won the blue with the same pair. The sportiest event was the class for hunting teams, in which the blue was won by the Orange County Hunt.

There were five entries in the four-in-hands, the event going to J. Campbell Thompson.

W. A. Wadsworth's hunter Aldebaran was the winner in the lightweight class, and Mr. McLean's Nancy Pansy was second.

The ladies' hunters class was won by Miss Lida Fleitmann's Secuga. The most notable up-State victory was won by Mrs. Florence C. Molloy of this city in the roadster class. Keen competition was offered by the horses of W. Averill Harriman, Pierre Lorillard, Jr., and Val Crane.

Governor Whitman and his party entered the show ring as J. Campbell Thompson was receiving his blue with Nestledown Chancellor in the class for harness horses 14.2 hands or over. A class not catalogued was the judging of police horses, and Governor Whitman pinned the blue on Gift, ridden by John Bridgegroom, Thirty-third Precinct, New York City. The Governor congratulated Commissioner Harriman and Manager Blitz on the excellent show.

Charles F. Hubbs, Sequatogue Farms, Long Island, manager of the Brooklyn horse show, attracted special attention with his saddle horses. Miss Marjorie Hubbs and Mrs. Van Klein rode the horses, Nifalla and Wildflower, cleverly.

Channel Bass Plentiful.

Ten channel bass were caught from the beach at Deal, N. J., on Monday night and Tuesday morning by three fishing members of the Asbury Park Fishing Club. It was the first time in the history of the club that such a run of channel bass has been known so far north. Barnegat and Seaside Park are the haunts of this particular fish, and they have rarely been known to migrate much further north. When, two years ago, Charles Ward landed one from the beach at Como it was considered remarkable, and it was considered more remarkable when last year Edward Waters hooked one from a boat some distance offshore. The first of the ten was landed at 5 o'clock on Monday evening. The three fishermen remained on the beach until 8 o'clock. They were well rewarded. Henry C. Rydell landed the largest, weighing 38 pounds and 6 ounces. He caught two others weighing 32 pounds 4 ounces and 28 pounds 8 ounces. Albert Hunt, who had taken the first of the year Saturday night, weighing 21 pounds 3 ounces, hooked two more Monday night, weighing 24 pounds 2 ounces and 28 pounds 12 ounces. Harry Metz caught five, weighing 22, 28, 32, 30, and 31 pounds respectively; thus, with his two days' fishing, he sets up a new record in the Asbury Park Fishing Club. O. W. Jones was the other lucky fisherman, he landing one that scaled at 28¼ pounds. Frank G. Ernest, also fishing at the time, landed a pretty striped bass that weighed 10 pounds 8 ounces, as did Horace Fischer, who caught a striper that weighed 5 pounds 2 ounces.

Marshall Knocks Out Holmes.

Clarry Marshall, the Harlem boxer, last night added another victory to his list when he knocked out Tommy Holmes of Harlem in the third round of the scheduled ten-round main bout at the Olympic Athletic Club.

Jimmy Duffy, a west side lightweight, outpointed Al Thomas in the final ten-round bout. Thomas was substituted for Al Schumacher, who appeared at the club with a broken hand, and, although he was trying all the time, he was outpointed in the majority of rounds.

Johnny Ritchie, a west side boxer, and Joe Stanley of Philadelphia were the principals in the opening ten-round bout, but, because one of the Philadelphia boxer's blows in the first round landed on his right ear, causing it to bleed profusely, Ritchie walked out of the ring.

Girl Jockey Grabs Hat, Loses Race.

HOHOKUS, N. J., Sept. 16.—Seven heats were all that was required to decide the two Metropolitan Circuit events at the Hohokus track today, a feature of the Bergen County Fair, here. Alcyone Star won the 2:20 pace in three straight heats, and Burleigh Girl came within a nose of making it three straight in the 2:24 trot. A novelty running race added to the attractiveness of the meet, and Miss Madge Clarke of Woodcliffe Lake, riding astride, might have won the quarter-mile dash had she not grabbed her hat to keep it on near the finish after winning the first heat. WILLIAM BREAKS PACING RECORD

C. K. G. Billings Drives Stallion to Wagon for Mile in 1:59½ at Syracuse Fair.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 16.—William, world's champion five-year-old pacing stallion, created a sensation at the Grand Circuit meeting this afternoon by pacing a mile in 1:59½, breaking the world's record to wagon by nearly two seconds. The former record was 2:01¼, held by Little Boy. William was driven by his owner, C. K. G. Billings of New York City. Track and weather conditions were ideal. Getting away to a splendid start, the big pacer never faltered, and finished easily.

The performance of William was the climax of a six-race program during which many surprises were recorded. St. Frisco started the surprises in the Syracuse Stake for 2:20 trotters by winning in straight heats over a fast field of five starters. Jones Gentry, piloted by Ostrander, was next to furnish an upset. In the 2:06 pace the bay gelding completely outclassed the field, winning in straight heats.

The Governor's Stake, for 2:08 class trotters, which was won by Lee Axworthy, provided a thrilling contest. Benington challenged in both the first and second heats, but could not finish better than second. In the third, however, Geers pulled the big chestnut stallion close to the pole in the stretch, and won going away.

Governor Charles S. Whitman of New York State entered the grand stand just before the start of the Governor's Stake and was an interested spectator during the race. He applauded when Lee Axworthy was announced as the winner of the event.

In the amateur wagon race for 2:15 trotters, Baron Frisco, owned and driven by Harry Briggs of Brockton, Mass., finished first in straight heats.

The final heat of the 2:03 pace, unfinished from yesterday, was won by Napoleon Direct, with R. H. Brett and Earl, Jr., close contenders.

MISS WAGNER PLAYS TENNIS CLEVERLY

New York State Champion Wins Ten Straight Games from Miss Kissel for Jersey Title.

Playing an almost faultless game, Miss Marie Wagner, the New York State tennis champion, easily defeated Miss Ina Kissel in the semi-final round of the New Jersey State lawn tennis championship tournament yesterday on the Englewood Field Club courts at Englewood, N. J., and qualified for the final round. Miss Wagner gave a remarkable exhibition of racquet wielding, as she ran ten consecutive games on her clever opponent. Miss Kissel started off in excellent form and for the first four games of the first set kept on even terms with Miss Wagner. Once the latter broke through her opponent's service, she outplayed Miss Kissel, who was completely baffled by Miss Wagner's speedy drives and returns. Miss Wagner will play the winner of the Mrs. Marshall McLean-Miss Florence A. Ballin match, which will be decided this afternoon, the players postponing the match on account of the excessive heat.

Although Miss Wagner was successful in the singles, she met with an overwhelming defeat in the doubles. With Miss Clare Cassel, she put up a wretched exhibition and lost to Mrs. William H. Pouch and Miss Edith Handy at 6—1, 6—1. The winning combination again appeared at their best, and appeared to thoroughly understand each other's play. Miss Handy played a strong back-court game, while Mrs. Pouch scored consistently at the net.

As was expected, Miss Ina Kissel and Mrs. A. G. Miles defaulted to Miss Natalie Browning and Miss Marion Chapman. The latter is the 17-year-old daughter of Mrs. G. W. Chapman, who with Mrs. Marshall McLean defeated her daughter and Miss Browning in the second of the semi-final round matches. The match was an interesting one, and an extra game was necessary before the contest closed at 6—2, 5—7, 6—2.

The mixed doubles brought out a good entry list, but the heat proved too much for several of the women players, and a number of defaults were recorded. The summary:

New Jersey State Championship.—Women's Singles—Semi-Final Round—Miss Marie Wagner defeated Miss Ina Kissel, 6—2, 6—0.

New Jersey State Championship.—Women's Doubles—Third Round—Miss Natalie Browning and Miss Marion Chapman defeated Miss Ina Kissel and Mrs. A. G. Miles by default.

Semi-Final Round—Mrs. William H. Pouch and Miss Edith Handy defeated Miss Clare Cassel and Miss Marie Wagner, 6—1, 6—1; Mrs. Marshall McLean and Mrs. George W. Chapman defeated Miss Natalie Browning and Miss Marion Chapman, 6—2, 5—7, 6—2.

Mixed Doubles.—First Round—Mrs. Marshall McLean and H. Little defeated Mrs. L. Haight and partner by default; Miss Abby Morrison and Charles M. Bull, Jr., defeated Mr. and Mrs. L. Z. Murray by default.

Second Round—Mrs. Marshall McLean and H. Little defeated Miss Elizabeth Bunce and M. Oliphant, 8—6, 6—2; Miss Katherine Browning and A. Thurber defeated Miss Florence A. Ballin and J. Blache, 7—5, 6—0; Miss Abby Morrison and Charles M. Bull, Jr., defeated Miss Anita Carrington and J. Benner by default; Mrs. C. Park and B. Poole defeated Miss Edith White and I. Walker, 6—2, 6—4; Miss Marion Vanderhoef and H. G. Farrington defeated Mr. and Mrs. George Wagner by default.

JUNIORS IN FINAL ROUND.

Garland and Banks Will Play for Title at Forest Hills.

Playing superior tennis, C. S. Garland, winner of the Yale interscholastic championship, and L. M. Banks, Adelphi Academy, Brooklyn, overwhelmed their opponents in the semi-final round of the Metropolitan junior championship tournament yesterday on the West Side Tennis Club clay courts at Forest Hills, L. I., and will decide the title round this afternoon.

Garland defeated H. P. Guiler, Captain of the West Side Club junior team, at 6—0, 6—2, and Banks scored a straight-set victory over E. Benjamin at 6—3, 6—3. Both victories were expected, as the survivors have shown excellent form during the tournament. Garland devoted himself to the serious side of the game, and displayed some of the best tennis of the tournament. He did not attempt to hold his opponent cheaply, and scored his winning points with skill and judgment.

Banks won largely because of poor judgment on the part of Benjamin. The latter did not possess the stamina of Banks, and made the mistake of remaining in the back court, even after he made frequent visits to the net, where he earned many points with his cross cut shots. After adding points by this method of play Benjamin dropped back, when he was an easy victim for young Banks. In addition, Benjamin made the mistake of playing to Banks's back hand, which is his strongest asset on the court.

In the round before the semi-final Garland won from B. Cohen at 6—1, 6—2, and Guiler triumphed over E. Binzin at 6—2, [illegible]—4. In the lower section of the draw Benjamin defeated E. L. Hopkins, 6—2, 6—3, and Banks scored over A. Healy at 6—4, 7—5. The latter missed several opportunities to win the second set. The summary:

Metropolitan Junior Championship Singles.—Fifth Round—C. S. Garland defeated B. Cohen, 6—1, 6—2; H. P. Guiler defeated E. Binzin, 6—2, 6—4; E. Benjamin defeated E. L. Hopkins, 6—2, 6—3; L. M. Banks defeated A. Healy, 6—4, 7—5.

Semi-Final Round—C. S. Garland defeated H. P. Guiler, 6—0, 6—2; L. M. Banks defeated E. Benjamin, 6—3, 6—3.

Metropolitan Junior Championship Doubles.—Fourth Round—George P. Throckmorton and Herbert W. Forster defeated L. M. Banks and H. P. Guiler, 6—2, 1—6, 6—4; L. Benjamin and W. Hammerslough defeated Goddard Saunders and Jabez Holmes, 6—4, 6—3.

Semi-Final Round—George P. Throckmorton and Herbert W. Forster versus L. Benjamin and W. Hammerslough, 6—2, 3—0, unfinished; C. S. Garland and W. I. Plitt versus E. Binzin and M. A. Taylor, 5—7, 6—4, unfinished.

Jim Sullivan Not Forgotten.

One year ago yesterday amateur sport circles were stirred by the announcement of the death of James E. Sullivan. After a short illness in a local hospital, he joined "Father Bill" Curtis and a number of others who had helped to raise amateur sport in this country to its highest plane. On the anniversary of the death of Mr. Sullivan yesterday more than twoscore of his associates in athletic and business visited his tomb in Calvary Cemetery. A floral wreath bearing an appropriate inscription was placed on his coffin, while short eulogies were spoken by Frederick W. Rubien, President of the Metropolitan Association of the Amateur Athletic Union, who succeeded to the position held for more than twenty years by the departed "Chief," and also by John Doyle, now President of the American Sports Publishing Company, who was associated in business with Mr. Sullivan for twenty-five years.

About the time the short ceremonies were taking place in Calvary, a message from the other side of the world was received from James E. McCabe of Boston, a former President of the Amateur Athletic Union, now located in Yokohama, Japan, offering his sympathies to Mrs. Sullivan and her family on the anniversary of her husband's death. This letter, mailed on Aug. 25, arrived here yesterday.

Among those who visited the tomb were Frederick W. Rubien, John T. Doyle, Terence Farley, John F. Boyle, Jacob W. Stumpf, John J. O'Brien, Arthur S. McAleenan, C. A. S. Hatfield, George P. Mathews, Daniel Ferris, F. G. Lawrance, Hugh Quinn, J. J. Deignan, M. Halpin, Fred J. V. Delany, Steve Byrne, Benjamin Levine, Andrew F. Tully, John McHugh, Robert Kennedy, Tim Sullivan, Chris J. Dalton, Thomas Cassidy, John N. Norton, Paul Pilgrim, C. A. Elbert, and Thomas Sproule.

Proper Time to Hunt.

Weather conditions have much to do with the success in hunting. It is just as hard to hunt on dry leaves as it is on crusty or frozen snow. The ideal conditions for still hunting are just after a rain when the leaves are wet, or, better still, after the first really good snow.

KATOURA HOME FIRST.

Commodore Tod's Schooner Wins Cape May Cup from Atlantic II.

Guided by the hand of her owner, former Commodore Robert E. Tod, the schooner yacht Katoura swept across the finish line off Ambrose Lightship at 6:10 last evening, just three minutes after sunset. She was the winner of the ocean race for the Cape May Challenge Cup, having defeated the Challenger, Atlantic II., owned by James and Nicholas F. Brady, by 3 hours 9 minutes and 40 seconds. Atlantic finished at 9:18 P. M.

The yachts started on Wednesday morning, Atlantic at 11:01:42 and Katoura at 11:03:22, so the winner covered the 214-mile course in 31 hours 6 minutes 38 seconds. The first half of the course having been a beat to windward, they both covered about 36 miles extra distance before reaching the turning point, Five-Fathom-Bank Lightship, off Cape May.

After rounding the lightship soon after daybreak, where Katoura led by several miles the schooners had a fair but extremely light wind for the return passage. Light sails were set on both yachts to woo the fickle southerly breezes, Katoura increasing her lead as both racers made their way up the coast. She caught the first of a stronger breeze during the afternoon, which brought her up to the finish many miles ahead of her rival.

This was Katoura's maiden ocean race. She was built by the Herreshoffs last year, and she became the defender of the Cape May Cup by reason of the fact that after Wilson Marshall won the trophy with his Atlantic II. in 1911 from Robert E. Tod's three-masted schooner Karina, he returned the cup to the New York Yacht Club.

Commodore Tod challenged for the cup last year with Katoura, and as no one accepted, the cup was forfeited. The Brady brothers—James Cox and Nicholas J.—have challenged Katoura for the Brenton Reef Cup, which was also forfeited to that yacht, and the race for that trophy will be started off Ambrose Lightship at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning.

HARVARD TO RETAIN TITLE.

Two Crimson Teams Win in Semi-Finals of Doubles.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 16.—Harvard will retain the intercollegiate lawn tennis doubles championship, as both Crimson teams won their semi-final matches at the Merion Cricket Club today, qualifying for the final tomorrow. The title holders, R. Norris Williams, 2d, and Richard Harte, defeated J. R. Rowland and Jack Disston, Jr., Pennsylvania, after on exciting and hard-fought match at 6—3, 5—7, 6—1, 6—4, and G. C. Caner and L. H. Curtis, Harvard, downed Jerry Weber and E. T. Hopkins, Yale, at 6—3, 4—6, 6—4, 6—2.

In the singles Princeton qualified two men for the semi-final, Leonard Beekman and Arthur Coffey; Harvard one, R. Norris Williams, 2d, and Yale one, in Jerry Weber, the Michigan State champion. In the semi-finals tomorrow the two Princeton men will be opponents, and Williams plays Weber. The summary:

CALIFORNIANS IN FINAL.

Fottrell or Griffin Will Play Tri-State Tennis Champion.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 16.—Ella Fottrell and Clarence Griffin, two San Francisco boys, will be opponents in the final round of the men's singles of the Tri-State Tennis Tournament tomorrow and decide which will play W. S. McElroy of Pittsburgh, the Tri-State champion, on Saturday.

Fottrell won his match in straight sets today from Irving Wright of Boston, the scores being 8—6, 6—0, 6—4. Griffin, however, had a harder time defeating Trux Emerson of Cincinnati. He won after five hard-fought sets, 4—6, 7—5, 4—6, 6—2, 6—2.

POLO AT RUMSON C. C.

Piping Rock Team Easily Defeats White Wings Quartet.

In the opening polo match, for the Monmouth County Cup, played yesterday at Rumson Country Club, the Piping Rock team defeated Rumson White Wings by the score of 13¼ to 5½ goals. This competition is open to teams of four whose aggregate handicap does not exceed sixteen goals. The trophy is presented by Felix M. Warburg and J. Horace Harding, and was won last year by the Great Neck team.

Rumson was allowed one goal by handicap, as its total was eight, against its opponents' nine. Both sides played hard polo from the opening period, and at half time the score stood 5½ to 4½ in favor of the Locust Valley combination.

H. East was again the mainstay of the team. He only tallied three times in the first four periods, but in the second half of the game his playing was sensational, as he not only kept his opponents from scoring, but he made six goals, and virtually won the match for his side. John O'Day at No. 1, as a result of East's fine team work, was able to score three times.

Walter C. McClure made the most points for Rumson. Line-up follows:

Piping Rock—John O'Day, 1; H. East, 5; Ralph Kirlin, 0; A. Nother, 3; total, 9.

Rumson White Wings—W. S. Jones, Jr., 2; Walter C. McClure, 3; C. L. A. Whitney, 2; W. Warren Barbour, 1; total, 8.

Piping Rock.—Individual goals: East, 9; O'Day, 3; A. Nother, 2; penalties, ¾ goal; net score, 13¼.

FARLEY QUITS ATHLETICS.

Will Not Be Candidate for Any Job at Metropolitan Meeting.

Terence Farley of the Irish-American A. C. and at present Vice President of the Metropolitan Association of the Amateur Athletic Union, is through with athletics. At the expiration of this year Mr. Farley, according to an announcement he made last night, will no longer be connected with the track and field sport in an active capacity. In his own words, he "has had enough."

Mr. Farley will not oppose Jacob W. Stumpf for the Vice Presidency at the Metropolitan Association meeting on Monday night; he will not seek the Chairmanship of the Registration Committee, as his friends desire; nor will he be a candidate for any position. If one is tendered to him it will be declined, Mr. Farley said.

A. A. U. Court in Session.

A. Meller, formerly one of the best high jumpers of the New York A. C., now competing unattached, last night was suspended by the Registration Committee of the A. A. U. at a meeting in the St. Bartholomew Club, for failing to appear to answer charges that he had raffled prizes he won in amateur competition. He will remain under the ban until he disproves the accusations in the hands of the Registration Board.

Charles Davis, track Captain of the Trinity Club, who had been suspended for some time for withholding information desired by the board, made a satisfactory statement of the case in which he was implicated and was restored to good standing. He admitted that he had entered an athlete in a road race and then permitted another man to run under his name.

The committee refused to reopen the case of Miss Agnes Ganzer of the National Women's Life Saving League, whose card was taken up after it had been proved that she competed in two unsanctioned meets under assumed names.

William Burkhardt, the Bronx Church House walker, who was accused of using abusive language to one of the walking judges in the junior championships, was ordered to apologize to this official in writing within ten days or stand suspended for thirty days.

LARGE FIELD IN PIPING ROCK GOLF

W. Parker Seeley of Brooklawn Leads in Qualifying Round with 79.

Leading a field of 115 starters, W. Parker Seeley of Brooklawn, former champion of Connecticut, won the medal in the qualifying round of the Piping Rock Club's annual invitation golf tournament yesterday. His score was 79, a stroke better than the effort of F. H. Hoyt of Siwanoy, the well-known Lesley Cup player, who recently took up his residence in this city.

It was a bad day for scoring. The Piping Rock Club is not easy, and although it would appear as if more than one player should get less than 80, such was not the case. The fact that the leaders were well bunched illustrated the fact that the links was a test of the game. E. Mortimer Barnes, Secretary of the Metropolitan Golf Association, mustered 81 strokes, while Francis R. Blossom of Yale, the new intercollegiate champion, and Percy R. Pyne, 2d, of the Princeton Golf Club, Treasurer of the United States Golf Association, were next in line with 82.

Seeley might have scored even better had the outward journey proved easier, for he came home in 36. He got away to a poor start through driving out of bounds and taking 6 for the hole. He also got into difficulty at the seventh hole and took 7 for the hole, so that he needed 43 to go out. He dropped strokes on the tenth and sixteenth holes, but finished with a 4, one under par, for a 36 and a 79 total. The scores:

First Sixteen.—W. Parker Seeley, Brooklawn, 79; F. H. Hoyt, Siwanoy, 80; E. Mortimer Barnes, Englewood, 81; Francis R. Blossom, Yale, 82; Percy R. Pyne, 2d, Princeton, 82; W. T. PLAY FOR EQUINOX CUP.

Oswald Kirkby Takes Medal in Test Round at Ekwanok.

MANCHESTER, Vt., Sept. 16.—Play for the Equinox Cup was carried through the qualifying round, in which seventy-six golfers started, and the first round of match play on the links of the Ekwanok Country Club today. Oswald Kirkby of Englewood had the low medal score of 75. In the match play Max R. Marston of Baltusrol won his way to the second round by negotiating a difficult stymie on the last green. The results:

First Sixteen for Equinox Cup.—Oswald Kirkby, Englewood, 75; Max R. Marston, Baltusrol, 80; Dumont Clarke, Ekwanok, 81; Dwight Partridge, Bedford, 83; H. K. Kerr, Greenwich, 84; R. M. Mixed Foursomes at Wykagyl.

Most of those who play golf at the Wykagyl Country Club gathered at the New Rochelle links yesterday in a mixed foursome handicap tournament. The best card was returned by Mrs. J. S. Thompson and J. B. Hunn, with 116, 40—76. Mrs. D. C. Catlin and H. V. Gaines, one of the Wykagyl leaders, got second prize, returning 108, 28—80, while Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Maltby received the third prize, their card reading 115, 34—81. The best gross score went to the credit of the scratch pair, Miss Sanford and T. V. Bermingham. They got around in 95. About fifty couples took part in the tournament, and in the evening nearly all remained for a dinner and dance. The best cards follow:

Mrs. E. Goodman a Golf Victor.

Mrs. E. Goodman won the golf championship of the Woodmere Club yesterday by defeating Mrs. L. Ansdacher in the final round. This match was carried to the nineteenth green. As the situation now stands both Mrs. Goodman and Mrs. Ansdacher have won legs on the trophy, which must be won three times for permanent possession. Mrs. Ansdacher was holder of the championship cup when she entered this tournament.

THE SPEEDWAY SHAPING UP.

First of the Fast Cars Arrives at Sheepshead Bay Track.

The first of the racing cars to arrive at the Sheepshead Bay Motordrome to practice for the Astor Cup race to take place on Oct. 2 is the Sebring, in which Joe Cooper was killed at Des Moines, Iowa, on Saturday, Aug. 7. The car will probably not be entered in the 350-mile Sheepshead race as a Sebring, but will be known as the Miles Special. The powerful green car will be driven by Bob Haibe, who finished fourth with the same car in the Minneapolis race last week. At the track yesterday the car was being taken down and overhauled by a mechanic, and will start tearing around the wooden track as soon as it is back in "racing shape."

Cooper was driving at about ninety-five miles an hour at Des Moines when he blew a tire and the car shot off the track and turned turtle, pinning the driver beneath, and killing him instantly. Haibe and other drivers who have visited the Sheepshead Bay track say the new track is the fastest and best in the world, and they expect that several records will be made during the Astor Cup race.

In preparation for the visit of hundreds of motor enthusiasts who will go to the track Saturday afternoon when the auto parade takes place, and in preparation for the speed trials of Dario Resta, who will "try out" the new track in his Peugeot, which won the Grand Prix at the Panama Exposition, work is being rushed twenty-four hours a day at the track. The parade, in which several hundred autos will participate, will start from the Motor Club of America tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock, and as soon as the procession arrives at the Speedway Resta will try for his records.

In addition to Resta, it is probable that George Robertson, who won the Vanderbilt Cup race on Long Island in 1908, will race against time on the new track in the same ninety horse power Locomobile in which he took first honors in the Vanderbilt classic in 1908. In that race, when the Locomobile won the cup for America for the first time, Robertson's average speed was 64.3 miles an hour. Resta's average speed in the Grand Prix was close to 100 miles an hour.

It was all hustle and bustle down at the new big track yesterday, and Manager Everard Thompson and Jim Nichols were there to see that everything was being done to put the new racing track in order for Saturday's guests.

New roads are being built throughout the former property of the Coney Island Jockey Club, and yesterday there were sprinkling carts and road rollers putting the new driveways in shape for Saturday. All the brush in the inclosure, where cars will be parked on the day of the race, has been cut down and the inclosure itself has been leveled off. The trees in front of the grand stand have been trimmed so that the view of the spectators will not be obstructed. The thirty-six auto pits have been completed and the twenty-five brick garages under the track are ready for occupancy.

N. Y. U. Teams Line Up for Play.

The New York University football squad of twenty husky candidates put in its hardest afternoon's work of practice yesterday in Ohio Field. Coaches Reilley and Gorsch devoted most of their attention to fundamental work, although a tentative line-up, which was chosen toward the close of the practice, furnished a more mature aspect. After an hour's work in running down under points, well directed by Cann, Egan, and Waters, the men were divided into two squads. Under the tutelage of Coach Reilley a group of candidates for the line positions had a varied drill in charging, breaking through a defensive line and in other elementary details. A second squad, working under the supervision of Assistant Coach "Rudie" Gorsch, and comprising promising material for the Violet backfield, engaged in fast starting.

Among those in yesterday's practice was Raschbaum, the regular 'Varsity centre; MacKenzie, who played end last season; Waters, who played on the 'Varsity nine, and McCusker, who played a star half-back game on the High School of Commerce eleven of 1912.

Yale Holds 7-Minute Scrimmage.

Special to The New York Times.

MADISON, Conn., Sept. 16.—Yale football practice today reached the scrimmage stage when the first and second elevens were lined up against each other. Because of the heat, the scrimmage lasted only seven minutes. A few single formations were handled and no scoring was attempted. Four of last year's 'Varsity players, including Legore, Scovil, Conroy and Walden, were on the second eleven. The scrimmaging closed the afternoon practice and followed an hour's signal drill. Individual practice in punting and handling the ball lasted two hours in the morning. The first eleven was as follows: Vorhees, centre; Way and Positsky, guards; Balbridge and Gates, tackles; Church and Allen, ends; Bentley, quarterback; Guernsey and Captain Wilson, halfback; Waite, fullback.

Drop-Kicking at Lafayette.

Special to The New York Times.

EASTON, Penn., Sept. 16.—Two of the new candidates for the Lafayette football team stepped into prominence at the practice this afternoon, when Scott, former star on the Exeter team, stepped to the twenty-five-yard line and dropped ten kicks in a row over the bar, immediately after Coach Crowell had performed this feat. A moment after, Lake, who was a teammate of Scott at Exeter, dropped nine over the rail. Much of the afternoon was devoted to kicking. Maxwell worked on the kick after touchdown, and through twenty or thirty tries he maintained an average of 1,000 per cent. The whole squad had short signal drill. Benfer, the famous Albright star, is expected to report to the squad tomorrow.

Two Teams Out at Lehigh.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Penn., Sept. 16.—Between fifty and sixty athletes were on Taylor Field at Lehigh today, and for the first time there were two teams in action, with many interchanges, but no scrimmage. There were half a dozen new men out, and among them McDonald, the Boston Latin High School man, and Sullivan, a quarterback from Codman Academy, have the marks of players. McDonald was placed at centre on the first team. MacGregor and Adams, also new men, were tackles on the second team. Hazleton, Bradley, Bigelow, and Betts were the other new men. It was officially announced today that Desmond, the Northeast High School lad, is lost to the team, he having decided to go to Harvard. To-day's practice was encouraging, considering the weather, but necessarily light. The line-up of the first and second teams follow:

First team.—Green and Maguinness, ends; Tate and Richards, tackles; Grumback and Pons, guards; McDonald, centre; Cahill and Keady, half backs; Chenoweth, quarter back; Halsted, full back.

Second team.—Kirkpatrick and Chapman, ends; Macgregor and Adams, tackles; Ostrum and Owens, guards; Scruggs, centre; Sullivan, quarter back; Boland and Lind, half backs, and Campbell, full back.

Union Ready for Scrimmaging.

Special to The New York Times.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Sept. 16.—Scrimmaging and dummy tackling begin tomorrow at Union College. A large squad has been working out morning and afternoon since last Monday, drilling in the fundamentals of football. Only four men are missing through graduation from Union's undefeated team of last season, and much promising freshman material has entered. Helping Coach Dawson whip the team into shape are Hartley Dewey, '13, former captain, and Stephen B. Stody, '14. Union plays its first game on Sept. 25, facing St. Lawrence here, and plays Williams the following Saturday at Williamstown.

Indians Primed for First Game.

Special to The New York Times.

CARLISLE, Penn., Sept. 16.—The Carlisle Indian School football candidates were this afternoon put through their last scrimmage before the Albright College game here on Saturday. After the usual rudimentary practice, Coach Kelley put the first and second team candidates through a stiff signal practice lasting forty-five minutes, in which several new formations were tried out. Kelley then took the 'Varsity backfield men and the second team line players and scrimmaged them against the 'Varsity line and the second eleven backfield. A fifteen-minute scrimmage with the 'Varsity in their regular positions concluded the afternoon practice.

Cornell Squad Split Into Teams.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 16.—The Cornell football coaches picked three teams today, and in spite of the heat, sent them through a lively signal practice. No scrimmaging will be attempted until the heat wave abates. On the first team Shelton, Eckley, Zander, Shiverick, and Ryerson were used at ends; Bailey, Jameson, Jewett, and Fisher, guards; Cool and Brown, centre; Anderson and Snyder, guards; Barrett, quarter back; Collins, Inscho, Benedict, and one or two others in the backfield. Most of the men who are expected to be the principal candidates for the team have reported.

YALE'S FASCINATING FOOTBALL PROBLEM

How Profit Can Be Made Out of Last Year's Mistakes.

Yale's football problem this season is as fascinating as the most ardent pursuer of the gridiron game could wish. Whether, under the coaching of Frank A. Hinkey and his aids, the Elis will continue to build along the lines laid down last year is to be doubted only by those who doubted the seriousness of the original plan. But, promising material aside, how far will the building go? Will Yale have a line? Will Yale have a defense? That Yale had practically no line last year will hardly be disputed. Nor that Yale had any practical defense. That Yale none the less had a plan of defense was evident. Just what this plan of defense was, and just how it will be worked out, this season may make clear.

From the Eastern point of view the Yale attack last season was distinctly novel. Also, as far as it went, it was good. It was not nearly as good as a first-class line can make it, and no man can tell whether the Eli coaches will spend all their time building a strong line into the attack and making that the entire defense, or will teach the new forward the special duties the novel Yale attack demands while reserving enough time for intsruction in something different from the "pitching in, head down" defense from tackle to tackle that was so much and so fatally in evidence last season.

No doubt Yale is in a better situation this season to attempt novelties in defense than any other Eastern institution. There is nothing to lose at New Haven and everything to gain along that line. And novelties will be looked for. It might almost be safe to say that novelties are almost a necessity. Will these be novelties only for Harvard's benefit, or for the rounding out of the entire Yale game? There are many reasons to believe that if novelties there be they will be staged, at least in crude form, at once, just as last year's new attack was there for all to see even in the earlier games of the schedule. Nothing that was used in the big games was hidden from the outside public, save perhaps small matters of detail. The Elis seemed to believe that their plan of attack, even when set before the scouts of opponents, was strong enough, if properly handled by the individuals behind, and not in the forward line, upon whom it was made to depend, to justify itself even in defeat. And that is exactly what it did.

It is fair to assume, then, that Yale may put on a defense this year that will justify itself just as did the attack last year, and such being the case, it will be interesting to see whether this will produce anything in the way of a revolution in field generalship. Whether the experimenting can go to that extent is a serious question, the more so as Yale has not had a really capable field general since the days of Arthur Howe.

The system of play of the Yale ends must mean something. It is almost impossible to believe that Hinkey would let them go through last season playing as they did, with the single exception of Carter, without having something of the nature of a long-distance project in mind. And this fits in with the idea that possibly Yale is this season beginning the building up of a game as different to diagnose in its entirety as was that of last year in the matter of attack alone.

Up to, and even since, the arrival of Hinkey Yale has played poorly against the remarkable kicking game it has taken Harvard so many years to develop. With a man like Mahan in Harvard's back field, it would seem to be suicidal to kick constantly to him, to kick in such a way that he had hardly to move to receive the ball, and so get away, and generally to the left, on a run that with almost no cost to Harvard moved the Crimson in a single sweep from a defensive to an offensive position. Yet this is exactly what Yale has been doing, with—to Yale men—pitiful results. And under the Harvard punting the Crimson has been allowed to go down the field almost as a platoon, the Yale attempts at checking apparently having had nothing to do with a consideration of the position of the Cambridge eleven with relation to the side line.

Perhaps the present Yale régime understands these mistakes. Perhaps it is part of the general plan to rectify them. And it is the rectification of just these mistakes that can be held back longest in a coaching policy that otherwise is apparently quite in the open.

One feature of the system that puzzled watchers of the Yale eleven last season may trouble them again this year in the early games. In working up the new attack it was used recklessly in situations that violated all accepted rules of generalship, not, as so many thought, without orders, but deliberately. Some of the passing was done under circumstances that were distinctly "raw." So, if there be novelties of as notable a character in the defense this season, they, too, may be displayed in circumstances that will make the old-timer, and even the broad-minded student of the newest form of football, groan.

Considering the big games, however, it is well to remember that what Yale did against Princeton last year it did as a team having the whip hand, and what it did against Harvard it did almost from the start in its capacity of sure-to-be-beaten eleven.

Yale has none too easy a schedule this year, opening on Sept. 25 with the University of Maine, a team coached by Hughitt, last year's Michigan quarter back and a favorite pupil of Fielding H. Yost. There will be need of a defense against this eleven, and Virginia puts in an appearance the following week. The Southerners this time probably will not make the mistake of a year ago—failure to turn the waiting Yale ends from kick formation—and there will be thus an early opportunity to see to some extent how the end problem is being worked out.

Fordham Eleven Progressing.

Rapid progress was shown among the Fordham football candidates yesterday, who were put through another two-hour drill on the Maroon gridiron. Harry Vaughn, the new coach, has shown so far more energy than any Fordham coach since Howard Gargan, who held sway in 1909, and he has already gained the support of the entire student body. The first half of yesterday's practice was devoted to running down punts. Capt. Dave Dunn, Phil Kerns, and Ferrick did all the kicking. Some of Ferrick's "boots" averaged over sixty yards. The new candidates who are out for the backfield were kept busy receiving the ball, Paul Conklin, a brother of the guards, Jack and Neil, showing the most accurate judgment. Just before the end of the second hour the entire squad of thirty men was lined out across the field and sent up and down five times in a series of running starts.

A welcome addition was made to the list of candidates yesterday when the entire Maroon relay team came out to try for the vacancies on the ends. McLoughlan and Ferrick, who ran third and anchor on the Maroon quartet last year, are both near the two-century mark and average about 6 feet in height. Ferrick showed an ability to kick yesterday, while McLoughlan had plenty of football experience in high school. Jake Weber, who has trained all Fordham's teams since 1913, showed up yesterday, and will be in charge for the rest of the season.

HARVARD TEAMS PICKED.

'Varsity and Second Squads Engage in Light Scrimmage.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 16.—Harvard's big collection of football players was broken up into 'Varsity and second-team squads this afternoon. The first-string men were taken in hand by Percy Haughton, who instructed them in some simple plays and then sent them out on the field to work in a very easy scrimmage, in which no tackling was allowed.

The first eleven, chosen from among the thirty-three players composing the 'Varsity squad, was made up about as was expected. Wallace, the veteran, was at centre, while Cowan of the 1913 team and Duncan of the 1917 freshmen are the guards, the latter being considered unusually promising. Two of last year's substitutes, Bigelow and R. Curtis, were at tackle, with the old centre, Soucy, at one end, and Charley Coolidge, a substitute last Fall, on the other.

Willcox, the former half back, was at quarter back in Watson's absence, while two first substitutes on Brickley's team, King and McKinlock, were in the back field with Captain Mahan. Gilman will go to tackle when in shape, but otherwise the first line-up is about as Harvard is likely to start its campaign against Colby a week from Saturday.

TIGERS DEVELOPING LINEMEN FOR ELEVEN

Indications Point to This Being Princeton's Weakest Part of Football Team.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 16.—Princeton coaches are concentrating most of their attention these days in developing the available line material, which is for the most part composed largely of inexperienced men. From all indications the line will be the weakest part of the tiger eleven this Fall and will need all the attention the coaches can give it.

Jim Cooney, who took charge of the tackles yesterday, had two lines placed against each other today and had them scrimmage for an hour. Cooney keeps his charges on the jump from the time they step out of the field house until Keene Fitzpatrick, the trainer, orders them in. He also manages to step as lively himself as any player on the field.

"Red" Gennert, a centre, and Bill McLean, a guard, are both giving evidence of their 'Varsity experience last year and there is a noticeable improvement in their work this year. These players have become accustomed to their positions and some things that are labor to the other players have become mere matters of intuition to them.

The freshman class of last year has supplied the coaches with some heavy material, but for the most part the sophomores are comparatively green and will need a great deal more tutoring before they will be prepared to play 'Varsity football. Halsey, Kaufman, and Smith are the most promising members of last year's freshman eleven who have reported for the line positions.

Contrary to expectation Paul Bigler, a tackle on last season's team, returned to college this afternoon. Bigler left college in January with the intention of entering business. He will not be eligible for football this season, but Princeton will probably be able to use him for the next two years.

Guy Nickalls Will Return to Yale.

NEW HAVEN, CONN., Sept. 16.—Guy Nickalls, the Yale crew coach, has written to friends here stating that he will return to Yale this Fall and take charge of the coaching of the Eli rowing squad again. Fear has been felt that Nickalls would be drawn into the war, especially in view of the fact that he told the Yale Rowing Committee when he left here in July that he would offer his services to his country on his arrival in England. As he is more than 50 years old and has suffered a broken arm several years ago, his offer to go to the front was declined. Nickalls, however, has held a responsible position in a cartridge factory during the Summer, and feels that he has contributed something to the cause of his nation. His letter states that he will arrive here soon after Oct. 1. He will immediately set the oarsmen to work.

SEE SMALL REVENUE IN PERSONALTY TAX

Past Experience Shows That Increased Assessments Do Not Solve the Problem.

MILLIONS NOT COLLECTED

Tax Reform Secretary Says Few but Executors and Trustees Are Caught for Large Amounts.

Whatever the increase in the personal tax valuations for the coming year—it has been said that the amount may be increased from $340,295,560 to $4,000,000,000 because of the enormous direct State tax and other necessary expenditures—little more revenue will be derived, according to A. C. Pleydell, Secretary of the New York Tax Reform Association. Furthermore, Mr. Pleydell said yesterday, even if more taxes can be collected from personal property, a rigid enforcement of the personalty law would act as a drag on industry and would tend to drive away capital.

"The reports that the Tax Department intends to vastly increase the assessment of personal property this year do not go into details," said Mr. Pleydell, "and it is difficult to comment on the probable results until the books are opened and the exact amount of the assessment is known. The estimate of a four-billion-dollar increase seems to be a wild guess. Years ago it was the custom to make enormous assessments, chiefly by assessing corporations at the amount of their authorized capital, regardless of how much was taxable, with the result that the greater part of these assessments were reduced on appeal.

Little More Revenue Expected.

"However, on the basis of past experience, it is fairly safe to predict that, whatever the increase in assessments, there will be little more revenue derived. The highest personal property assessment retained on the tax books since consolidation was in 1905, when the total assessment finally determined was $690,000,000 and the tax levied thereon was $10,354,000. Of this sum a little more than half was collected, leaving an uncollectable balance of about $4,500,000; whereas out of the total personal property taxes levied this year of $6,600,000, $4,000,000 had been collected up to July 31.

"But even if the assessment of personal property can be greatly increased and more taxes from that source collected, it does not follow that this will be a benefit to the owners of real estate, whose taxes might be slightly reduced. It is well known to all who have investigated the question that the States that are the most liberal in their treatment of personal property have thereby developed their resources, built up their cities, and greatly increased their real estate value. On the other hand, States which have the most rigid enforcement of the old personal property tax, without classification or exemption, are industrially the most backward, and their enterprising business men are seeking to change the system in order to relieve industry and attract capital.

"The New York Tax Reform Association has opposed the present personal property tax for years, and has endeavored to secure relief through the substitution of reasonable specific and enforceable taxes upon certain kinds of property, (like the bank tax and mortgage recording tax,) or such exemptions as would encourage business and investment.

Annoyances of the Tax.

"Much has been done, and the laws of New York are more attractive to capital and commercial enterprises than those of most States. But there is still an annoying remnant of the old personal property tax, affecting chiefly merchants and manufacturers or small investors who do not know the law or cannot easily readjust their affairs. It is not to be expected that the owners of investments that are yielding 4 or 5 per cent. interest will pay a tax of 2 per cent., or practically one-half the income, if they can possibly arrange their affairs or residence so as to avoid doing so, and about the only intangible property that is caught in large amounts under the general assessment is held by executors or trustees.

"An illustration of the results of rigid laws for personal property taxation comes from Ohio, where all personalty is taxable at full rates and where every once in a while a spasmodic effort is made at enforcement. Last year the assessment was made by State appointed assessors, and the outcry was so great that this year the law was amended so as to put this work back in the hands of local assessors. One small county reports that the personal property assessment this year will be reduced $1,600,000, individuals who were assessed last year at $530,000 having moved out of the State, while other individuals and corporations have been granted a reduction aggregating $1,000,000—possibly for the purpose of inducing them to remain."

Indication that the Long Island Railroad expects the city to use its line to Whitestone for the rapid transit system was given yesterday when the company took title to a plot adjoining the right of way in Flushing for the enlargement of the Bridge Street station.

Kells is instructor, teaches the arithmetic of electricity and gives instruction in all circuit work met in common practice.

The sum of $94.50 has been appropriated to pay the bills of the State Prison Superintendent for furnishing grates for Public School 12, the Bronx, and Public School 91, Queens.

The National Education Association will hold its next annual convention in this city in July or August.

SCHWAB CRITICISES MITCHEL'S PROGRAM

Says Many Persons Have Been Allowed to Swear Off Personal Taxes.

CHANGE IN LAW NEEDED

Ex-State Commissioner Raps Whitman and Reformers and Says City Is Extravagant.

The ideas of Governor Whitman and Mayor Mitchel on the subject of taxation were criticised yesterday by Joseph S. Schwab, who until last April was a State Tax Commission, in an address yesterday before the Rotary Club at its Thursday luncheon in the Hotel McAlpin. Mr. Schwab, who is permanent Chairman of the State Tax Conference, an organization made up of professors, tax officials, and students of political economy, asserted that the present city Government and that of the late Mayor Gaynor were the two most extravagant that New York ever had. He charged that New York's subway program had been the most stupendous robbery of the people that had ever happened.

"If the mass of honest taxpayers could ever be brought to a realization that the tax dodger and the undervaluer are actually defrauding them by forcing them to carry their burden," said Mr. Schwab, "we would soon see equity of burden by the reduction of the tax rate. The average citizen does not and will not pay taxes. We have the strange anomaly of the citizen perjuring himself to save paying $10 to the State for the protection of his life, liberty, and property in time of peace, and yet in war tendering to the State his very life.

"Publicity would be a great corrective for many of these evils, and if the tax returns were published in local newspapers every year, better results would follow in the way of fairer valuation and fuller returns.

$90,000,000 from Personal Tax.

"Because of the stand taken by the Tax Commissioners, by direction of Mayor Mitchel, it appears that a personal tax must be enforced. Ninety-five per cent. of the income now comes from real estate taxation and only 5 per cent. from personal property tax. Personal property in this city is five or ix times as valuable as the real estate.

"The people this year are confronted with a tax rate of 189, and Mayor Mitchel says the rate will be 215 next year. For one thing, this shows that the people responsible for the collection of taxes have been derelict in their duties in that they have allowed many persons to swear off their personal taxe. If you would change this condition of affairs you must insist upon having the laws changed so as to tax both tangible and intangible property; then you will be able to reduce the rate on real estate to 3 or 3½ mills. By placing proper taxes upon personal property you will be able to realize from $85,000,000 to $90,000,000 a year.

"A practical system of taxing personal property would have to allow the tax to bear equally upon all people in proportion to their incomes. If the rate is small the tax will be more cheerfully borne. High rates of taxation drive personal property into hiding. This is especially true in the case of intangible personal property. Five or 6 per cent. of the income from intangibles would be a reasonable amount to take. Pennsylvania and Maryland have found that 30 cents or 40 cents per $100 was a safe limit on intangible personal property. On tangible personal property 60 cents or 80 cents per $100 can reasonably be charged. Merchandise and manufacturing capital has been greatly undervalued in this country.

Robbery in Subway.

"As the present administration and the administration that immediately preceded have been the most extravagant in the history of New York City, unless you do something to bring about a change, God knows what will happen! The subway program has proven the most stupendous robbery of the people that has ever been put over. In Chicago, where the city turned over its subways to capitalists on a twenty-year franchise, the people are getting a universal transfer system for five-cent fares and 55 per cent. on every dollar of profit per annum.

"Here $168,000,000 was given as a donation inter venos to the railroad people under terms that are a cheat to our intelligence. New York City is in a damnable plight. Look at the Marginal Railroad proposition! Then to entrench, the administration is preparing to cut down the salaries of its employes. Perhaps some city employes are getting too much, but every man is worthy of his hire. Tirrell and Adamson of the Bureau of Standardization raised their own salaries $1,000 per annum since they took office. In order to save money the Board of Standardization was taken from the Finance Department and added to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, and this resulted in an increased expenditure of more than $300,000 a year.

"Talk of reformers! We know that things were bad before! Reformers are a most damnable lot of hypocrites and the sooner the city is rid of them the better.

Calls the State Rotten.

"While New York City is bad, the State is rotten, too. Governor Whitman has started on the wave of reform. He said he would sign a referendum which would remove all taxation from personal property and put it on the land. This is single tax. The introduction of such a system would upset the whole function of real estate as an income tax producer for the Government.

"Knowing nothing of finances, Governor Whitman caused a nineteen and one-half million dollar tax, based on a most unnatural proposition, to be levied. He desires to force a personal tax upon you, and Mr. Mitchel has announced that he will see that it is levied, and I hope he will. The only way to do away with it is to show the people by its enforcements that it is confiscatory."

Letters of Administration to Murdered Woman's Nephews.

Letters of administration for the estate of Mrs. Elizabeth G. Nichols, who was murdered at her home, 4 East Seventy-ninth Street, on Sept. 8 were given by Surrogate Fowler yesterday to the two nephews of the decedent, Maitland F. Griggs of Irvington and John D. Griggs of Hartford, Conn.

The petitioners said they were the only next of kin and heirs at law and that the estate left by Mrs. Nichols amounted to about $700,000, $500,000 personal and $200,000 realty. The attorney for the administrators is Harry M. Zuckert of 27 Cedar Street.

LEHIGH VALLEY MEN JOIN FREIGHT STRIKE

Central and West Shore Roads Get Help Needed and Work Goes On Uninterrupted.

GERMAN INFLUENCE DENIED

Demands of Employes Referred to Higher Officials—General Wage Advance Planned.

About 150 freight handlers employed in Communipaw, N. J., by the Lehigh Valley Railroad yesterday joined the strike of New York Central and West Shore freight handlers who struck on Wednesday in Weehawken and Manhattan. The original strikers remained away from work and there was no disorder. The police of the localities affected kept reserves at the railroad properties.

All the strike leaders insisted yesterday that, although many of the strikers were Austrians and Hungarians, the motive was a desire for more wages only. The men, for the most part, have been getting 20 cents an hour, and they want 25. Also they demand 30 cents an hour for overtime and 37½ cents an hour for Sunday and holiday work. The railroad officials have not flatly refused the demands, the authorities on the ground having referred the questions to their superior officers. The men seem to be waiting for their answer.

A. T. Hardin, Vice President of the New York Central, said last night that, according to official reports to him, 300 freight handlers in Manhattan and 400 in New Jersey were out, and about half the places had been filled.

"It's really not a strike," Mr. Hardin said, "but rather a cessation of work by some of our men while a question of wages is under discussion. The men have disagreed among themselves, some remaining at work in satisfaction while others are seeking more pay. The whole matter will doubtless be settled within a few days, and in the meantime there will be no delay in handling freight. We want our regular men back and will give them the preference, but we have already filled the places of as many of those who quit as we desire to fill, and we can get all of the labor we need."

Notwithstanding these reports, a representative of the New York Central telephoned yesterday afternoon to Sheriff Grifenhagen for special deputies to guard the yards at West Seventy-second Street. The Sheriff said he would appoint no special deputies, but would hold his staff ready to protect railroad property.

The strike is a matter of wages and not the result of pro-German agitation, Mr. Hardin said.

Richard J. Butler, President of the Longshoremen, said last night that the strike was only the initiation of a movement for more wages for 20,000 freight handlers in the Atlantic States. Mr. Butler admitted that he had called a meeting of the Executive Board of the Longshoremen, but he did not threaten a general strike. He hoped, rather, that the railroads might grant the demands of their men without a strike.

Mr. Butler was positive that the strike and the agitation were not the result of any German or Austrian propaganda.

The shops of the Jersey Central Railroad at Elizabeth were added to the list of places where workmen are on strike yesterday afternoon. About 200 men walked out.

CARTRIDGE PLANT IS CLOSED

Officials of Lowell Factory Take Action Because of a Strike.

LOWELL, Mass., Sept. 16.—Officials of the United States Cartridge Company ordered the local plant, employing 5,000 hands, closed at noon today on account of a strike. Thirty-five hundred workers have asked for an eight-hour day and a substantial wage increase, 1,000 others were forced into idleness by the strike, and only 500 were at work when the company decided to close the shops.

Charles G. Wood of the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration arrived in the city today and arranged for a conference with the strike leaders this afternoon.

Standard Oil Co. Strike of 200.

Employes of the Devoe Plant of the Standard Oil Company in Long Island City will decide today whether they will continue on strike for an eight-hour day with eight-ninths of the work they did under a nine-hour schedule. According to Charles W. Schaeffer, Superintendent of the plant, the company increased the wages of the men a month ago and reduced the hours from nine to eight, but on the understanding that the men were to do as much in eight hours as they did in nine. One hundred employes of the canning department went on strike, and that tied up the filling and boxing departments. The men say: "We want an eight-hour day with eight hours' work to do."

THIRD TRACKING IS COSTLY.

Thompson Committee Questions Maltbie About Contracts.

Ex-Public Service Commissioner Milo R. Maltbie was a witness yesterday before the Thompson Legislative Committee at 165 Broadway. More light was thrown upon the contracts for extending the Manhattan elevated lines.

Merton E. Lewis, counsel for the committee, asked Mr. Maltbie if he remembered the proposed form of contract between the Interborough Rapid Transit Company and John F. Stevens for the extension work on the elevated lines.

"It was up for approval in July, 1913, but as it presented some unusual features and involved considerable money, I asked that action on it be deferred," he said. "As I recall it, a majority of the members of the commission favored the approval of the contract, so that any position I took on the matter would not have affected the final vote."

"Who were they?" asked Mr. Lewis.

"Chairman McCall and Commissioners Williams and Cram."

"What did you find about the proposed form of contract to which you objected?"

"It provided," the witness replied, "for cost plus expense and a percentage of commission that I thought rather high."

The so-called Stevens contract, the Thompson committee believes, was almost identical in form with the contract as finally awarded by the Interborough Company to the T. A. Gillespie Company. This was let without the approval of the Public Service Commission. The Stevens contract was not approved owing largely to objections filed by Mr. Maltbie and George McAneny, then Borough President, and the Thompson committee hopes to find out just why the Interborough Company was permitted to enter into the contract with the Gillespie concern without the approval of the commission when such approval was required in the case of the proposed contract with Mr. Stevens. Mr. McAneny will be called today.

The sixty-third volume of the Trow New York Copartnership and Corporation Directory, for 1915, has just been issued by R. L. Polk & Co., after a lapse of eighteen months since the publication of the last issue, the date of publication having been changed from March to September. The new directory is the largest ever issued by the company. It contains 1,142 pages, and gives particulars regarding approximately 115,000 firms and corporations, representing an increase of 13,000 names over the preceding volume. In the current volume the nature of the business conducted by firms and corporations is given. Previously this feature was omitted.

LONDON WANTS DR. JOWETT.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Sept. 16.—The question of choosing a successor to the Rev. R. J. Campbell at the City Temple is being widely discussed in nonconformist circles.

There is no doubt a large majority of the people at the City Temple would be in favor of calling the Rev. Dr. J. H. Jowett of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, New York. Although he does not feel his work there is finished, his closest friends believe he would now be willing to return to England. It has always been understood that Dr. Jowett would one day return to London. When he left Carr's Lane, Birmingham, to go to New York his friend, the late Rev. C. Silvester Horne, playfully remarked that in going from Birmingham to London via Fifth Avenue he was taking an unnecessarily long route.

Dr. Jowett is now on his way to New York.

Passengers and Crew Are Taken Off by Passing Steamships.

MARSEILLES, France, Sept. 16.—The liner Euphrate, owned by the Messageries Maritimes, has gone ashore on the island of Socotra. Passengers and crew have been taken off by passing steamers. It is feared the Euphrate will be a total loss.

The Euphrate is a steamer of 6,876 tons gross, 447 feet long, with a beam of 52 feet. She was last reported to have sailed on Aug. 24 from China for Marseilles.

Socotra Island, on which the Euphrate is reported to have gone aground, is in the Indian Ocean near the entrance to the Gulf of Aden and 135 miles east-northeast of Cape Guardafui. It is about eighty miles in length, and the capital is Tamarida, on the north coast.

BRITISH MAILS DELAYED.

Since Arabic Sinking Postal Arrangements Are Changed.

Business men having trade with Great Britain expected the Saturday mail of Sept. 4 from Liverpool, which is usually from 3,000 to 4,000 sacks, to come to New York on the American liner St. Louis, as there was no Cunarder sailing from the other side on that date.

To the surprise of every one, including the officials of the Foreign Post Office at West and Morton Streets, when the St. Louis arrived Sunday morning she brought only thirty sacks of mail. Purser E. Slight said that was all the mail that had been sent on board at Liverpool, and he did not know where the big mail had gone.

Other officers on the St. Louis said that it had been rumored in Liverpool that the postal authorities had been so much upset by the loss of the big mail on the Arabic that they had decided to send the New York mail by different routes, even by freighters if necessary, so that the Germans would not know which steamer it was on.

WITCHES HELP ROB, IS CHARGE IN SUIT

LATTER WANTS $1,000 BACK

Alleged He Was Led to Confess Judgment by the Defendant's Exercise of the Black Arts.

A story of witchcraft alleged to have been practiced by Joseph Barbera, a real estate dealer, on Girolomo Perlongo, a prosaic shoe dealer, was told in a complaint filed by the latter in the Supreme Court yesterday. The suit was to obtain the cancellation of a judgment for $1,000 which Mr. Barbera is alleged to have wrung from Mr. Perlongo without consideration, but through the alleged use of spirits, incantations, and spells to play on the fears of Mr. Perlongo.

Early in October, 1910, so runs the complaint, Mr. Perlongo found himself in a weak and debilitated condition. He was nervous and overwrought, and was given to starting at shadows, of fearing concealed enemies, and of dodging without good reason. Describing his poor physical condition to Mr. Barbera, the latter instantly promised to cure him through the use of devils and spirits, according to Mr. Perlongo, who also alleges that Mr. Barbera claimed to have the power of exorcising the fiends that often crept into a man's body and made him sick of some dreadful disease.

"I will cure you," the defendant is said to have promised, "by certain ceremonies and incantations learned in Paris."

The plaintiff said he agreed to take a course of treatment, and that it was continued until February, 1911, when the defendant obtained absolute control over him. Mr. Perlongo does not explain in his complaint whether the treatment was successful in curing him, but he does charge that Mr. Barbera used his power over him, coupled with a promise that he could soon earn $200 a month, to get from him $1,000. The plan, as explained by Mr. Prolongo, was for Mr. Barbera to invest this money in some real estate. The lease was made, but it was in the name of Mr. Barbera, it is charged.

During this business venture, the plaintiff said, he was kept under "treatment" by Mr. Barbera, because the spirits and devils had not entirely left his body. Finally, the plaintiff said, the defendant wanted more money, and induced him to sign a confession of judgment for $1,000.

Since then, Mr. Perlongo naïvely said, he had learned that his body was not in the possession of evil spirits, and that even if it was Mr. Barbera had no control over them. The defendant threatened to begin proceedings to enforce the payment of the judgment for $1,000, and that is why the plaintiff asked the court to set the judgment aside.

DEAN THAYER A SUICIDE.

Head of Harvard Law School Had Suffered Nervous Breakdown.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Sept. 16.—The body of Professor Ezra Ripley Thayer, Dean of the Harvard Law School, was found at noon today in the Charles River Basin, not far from the Dean's home at 77 Bay State Road. A cursory examination by Medical Examiner George D. Magrath, who was a close friend of the distinguished lawyer and educator, indicated suicide, and this theory gained substantiation from the events attending Dean Thayer's disappearance two days ago.

The police theory is that the Dean walked directly from his home to the basin, leaping into the water there probably while in a state of mental aberration due to a complete nervous breakdown. Dr. Thayer's illness first became serious about two years ago. That was about three years after he had been made Dean of the Law School, to succeed the late James Barr Ames.

Although occasional improvements had been noted in the Dean's condition, he found it necessary last Fall to abandon an important series of lectures which he was to deliver. For several weeks he had been afflicted with insomnia, accompanied by acute depression.

Dean Thayer visited his family at Pomfret last week, returning to his home here on Monday. The house was being repaired in readiness for the return of the family. A painter saw Dr. Thayer leave the house on Tuesday afternoon. That was the last seen of him alive.

The Dean was in his fiftieth year, having been born in Milton on Feb. 21, 1866. He was graduated from Harvard College in 1888, and from the law school three years later

FINDS C. W. BROWN GUILTY.

Army and Navy Union Accused him of Disclosing Information.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 16.—The seventeenth biennial convention of the Army and Navy Union was thrown into a turmoil today when Charles W. Brown of Brooklyn, N. Y., was found guilty, on sixteen out of seventeen charges, of conduct unbecoming of an officer and of acts prejudicial to military discipline. Dishonorable discharge at court-martial in New York was recommended. Eight of the delegates objected and bolted, but most of them returned after a short time.

He was found guilty of disclosing confidential information of the executive officers of the association, and also of giving out information to the newspapers which the organization considered private.

A resolution was adopted declaring that if war was imminent it was "the most logical and practical plan to utilize the Army and Navy Union as a nucleus for a military reserve."

Ten delegates were appointed to join with the National Defense League, to meet in Washington this month.

POLK PARTS FROM MAYOR.

New Counsellor to State Department Resigns City Job.

Mayor Mitchel received yesterday the resignation of Frank L. Polk as Corporation Counsel. Mr. Polk was named by President Wilson as Counselor for the State Department at Washington. Mr. Polk in his letter said:

"I take this step with much regret, principally because I am severing my official relations with you, which have been so very pleasant and congenial. No one ever had a more considerate and loyal chief, and I take this opportunity of expressing my deep sense of obligation for the many evidences of your confidence and your good will. It is a pleasure to me to recall that there have been no differences to mar our intimate relations in any way."

In reply the Mayor said he accepted the resignation with the utmost regret, and added:

"Your resignation entails a severe loss to the city administration, a loss to which I could not and would not have given my consent had I not recognized that, under the existing conditions, your call to the service of the National Government laid upon you a duty higher than that which you owed to the city, and upon me the duty of acquiescence."

Bidding at the Wool Sale.

LONDON, Sept. 16.—The offerings at the wool auction sales today consisted of a moderate selection of 8,100 bales. Light American and French bidding against the home trade held good greasy crossbreds firm, and Russia supported scoured merinos.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—Barometric pressure continues high off the South Atlantic Coast and low in the region of the Great Lakes, and this distribution has resulted in a continuation of warm weather throughout the East and South, although readings are somewhat lower than on Wednesday in the Middle Atlantic States. The highest temperature reported from any point in these regions was 94 degrees at Boston.

Moderate temperature prevailed generally west of the Mississippi River and in the lake region. There have been showers and thunder storms within the last twenty-four hours in the South Atlantic and Gulf States, the Mississippi Valley, and the lake region. In other parts of the country the weather remained fair.

There are evidences of a disturbance of minor intensity over Western Cuba. There will be local showers and thunder storms in the South Atlantic and Gulf States and in the lower lake region, Northern New York, and Northern New England. Elsewhere east of the Mississippi River fair weather will prevail Friday and Saturday.

No important temperature changes are indicated for the East and South during the next forty-eight hours, although there will be a gradual reaction to somewhat lower temperature in the North Atlantic States, the lower lake region, and the Uper Ohio Valley.

Winds for Friday and Saturday along the North Atlantic Coast will be light to moderate south and southwest; Middle Atlantic Coast, light, variable, mostly south; South Atlantic Coast, fresh east, except strong off the South Florida Coast.

Scarcity of Serges.

Buyers in the men's wear piece goods market are having trouble in locating supplies of heavyweight serges. There seems to be a "hole" in the market in goods ranging in price from $1.17½ to $1.35 a yard. According to selling agents, serges around the $1.17½ mark are exceedingly difficult to find, and below that price it is practically impossible to buy anything in the serge line.

No Change in Wool Arrangement.

The Textile Alliance has been informed that there is no intention on the part of the British authorities to terminate the arrangement for the export of tops and yarns from the United States to the United Kingdom, at the expiration of three months from the inception of the plan. The arrangement was made on July 1 and should have terminated Sept. 1. The intention of the British authorities at present is to continue the arrangement subject to revision at any time.

⁂

The Spring Color Card.

The Spring Color Card of the Textile Color Card Association of the United States, Inc., shows forty shades for the coming Spring season. The card is designed chiefly for the use of the garment and millinery trades, and is the combined result of experienced fabric creators and color experts. The range of colors is not supplementary to the Fall card that was brought out by the association, but is complete in itself. Half the list of colors shown consist of evening shades. The numbering of the different colors is the same used in the Fall card, and affords a key to the constituent shades.

Was One Per Cent. Off.

Here is one that is told by a cotton goods salesman. A crafty buyer wanted to get some goods, and he wanted to get them from one of two houses. The salesmen from these houses came to see him, and when it came to selling terms the first salesman said that the best his house could do was 2 per cent., ten days. When the second salesman got his turn and the terms were asked, he answered that he could not do better than 3 per cent., ten days. At this the buyer said, "Why, you're a full per cent. away from the other fellow," to which the salesman is said to have answered hastily, "All right, then; we'll make it 4 per cent., ten days."

Discuss Dye Scarcity.

At the quarterly meeting of the managers of the Silk Association of America, held yesterday, the report of the dyestuffs committee, of which Dr. Hunziger is Chairman, was given. The findings of the committee were discussed informally. It was the prevailing opinion among the silk men present that too much confidence should not be placed in the recent announcements concerning important dyestuff discoveries that would relieve the scarcity of coloring material. The situation in the trade was admitted to be serious, and the committee was instructed to continue its investigations. Nineteen applicants were elected to membership in the association by the board of managers.

Manufacturers to Blame.

A large coat and suit retailer who hears many complaints over the small orders which his concern places has this to say on the matter: "The practice of placing small orders at frequent intervals has become almost general with the retailers. The manufacturers have only themselves to blame for this situation, which they have brought about through the rapid style changes they forced on the stores. Women used to buy more than one suit a season formerly, but now to protect themselves they purchase only one, so that if the fashions change before the season is over they may buy another suit to keep up with the style. If the manufacturers had not been so greedy there would have been no hand to mouth buying on the retailers' part."

⁂

Weather Has Hit Them Hard.

In spite of a training gained by wearing Summer furs, the extreme heat of the past few days has raised havoc among the models in the local garment showrooms, especially those who show the coats and suits. To march up and down a more or less crowded showroom, with the thermometer at 85 or thereabout and the humidity nearly out of sight, with a Fall suit beautifully decorated with heavy bands or other trimmings of fur, is a task to which many of them have proved unequal. As a result the sick list in the industry, so far as the models are concerned, is said to be larger now than for many years. Another duty of theirs is to move jauntily about in a voluminous, heavy coat that would defy the sharpest March winds, while the electric fans are blowing tepid September breezes across the room.

Credit Men's Officers.

W. F. H. Koelsch of the Bank of the United States was elected President of the New York Credit Men's Association at the annual meeting of that body at 320 Broadway yesterday. The following other officers were also elected: First Vice President, W. M. Kennard of Graupner, Love & Lamprecht; Second Vice President, Herman Uehlinger of Moller & Schumann, and Treasurer, Owen Shepherd of the International Paper Company. A. H. Alexander continues as Secretary. These members were elected to serve on the Executive Committee for the next two years: E. D. Flannery of A. Steinhardt & Bro., Edward Hiler of the Botany Worsted Mills, A. F. Maxwell of the National Bank of Commerce, W. M. Wust of Peierls, Buhler & Co., C. E. Thomas of the United States Steel Products Company, J. M. Roscoe of Colgate & Co., and E. H. Philips of Thomas A. Edison, Inc.

Printcloths Continue Active.

Buying of printcloths continued active here yesterday and prices were very firmly held. Most of the sales were for spot and near-by delivery, for, while the buyers were in many cases willing to pay an eighth above current figures for the goods they wanted for the later shipments, the mills, for the most part, were not willing to operate on that basis in view of the position of cotton. Further sales of 39-inch 68-72s were made at 4¾ cents, and additional business was done on 56-44s in that width at 3⅝ cents. On 38½-inch 64-60s it is now out of the question to get goods for any delivery for less than 4⅛ cents, while 60-52s and 60-48s in the same width now command 3¾ and 3⅝ cents, respectively. The narrower goods have also advanced in price. Sheetings and drills were in active demand, but business was limited somewhat by the unwillingness of the mills to accept buyers' bids. Fancies were still in demand. Spot printcloth prices were:

39-inch, 80-80s	5⅜c	38½-inch, 64-56s	4c
39-inch, 72-76s	5⅛c	38½-inch, 60-52s	3¾c
39-inch, 68-72s	4¾c	38½-inch, 60-48s	3⅝c
39-inch, 56-44s	3⅝c	27-inch, 64-60s	2⅞c
38½-inch, 64-60s	4⅛c	27-inch, 56-52s	2⅝c

SITES FOR NEW DYE PLANTS.

Many Cities Suggest Locations to Government Chemist.

A new phase of the dyestuff investigation being conducted by Dr. Thomas H. Norton, Government chemist, at the Custom House, developed yesterday when it became known that keen rivalry exists between several cities and towns as prospective locations for new American color and chemical plants. Yesterday Dr. Norton received a visit from a representative of the Board of Trade of Washington, Penn., who told the investigator of the advantages possessed by his city for the manufacture of chemicals or dyestuffs.

The presence of the raw material, the nearness to producers of important minerals, and the convenience for distribution of finished products to textile mills of the South, Pennsylvania, New York, and New England, are regarded by persons in Washington as desirable factors to bring before companies now studying the choice of location for new dyestuff industries. The commercial organizations of Norfolk, Va.; Richmond, Va., and various towns in Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois have also laid their respective claims for the location of dyestuff factories before Dr. Norton.

Considerable interest was evoked by the arrival at the Investigating Bureau of an extensive supply of what is regarded as a most important vegetable product susceptible of extensive use as a red coloring matter, but which has not heretofore been included in the tinctorial list of American manufacturers of natural dyestuffs. This new source of a bright red is now being submitted to an exhaustive test by Dr. Norton, who stated that it will be possible within a short time to give out further details regarding its availability for the different textile fibres as well as wool, paper, straw, &c.

Dr. Norton will be present today at a conference to be held at the Bankers' Club, where he will meet capitalists and others interested in developing an American potash industry commensurate with this country's requirements.

No Attention to Fabric Quality.

Tailoring occupies so much attention on the clothing buyer's part that questions are rarely asked concerning the value of the fabric of which the garments are made. As one mill man, whose favorite topic is that of cloth value, said yesterday: "The salesman argues on everything but the main thing, and that is the quality of the fabric. He will turn the coat inside out and dwell at length on the piping, the seams, the lining, but never a word about the cloth in the suit, whether it will wear or not. The design of the goods is remarked upon, but rarely what is behind the design, the wool the cloth is made of, the weave, its durability."

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Board of Appraisers Passes On the Protests of Importers.

Wheeler, Elder & Elder, Los Angeles, were sustained yesterday by the Board of General Appraisers in the claim that black dress fasteners or snaps were properly dutiable at 20 per cent. ad valorem under the general provision for manufactures of metal. The articles were covered with flax, and on this account the Collector exacted duty at 35 per cent. ad valorem, as manufactures in chief value of flax. This classification the board held was erroneous, a reliquidation being ordered.

Charles H. Wyman & Co. protested the Collector's assessment on dress goods as pile fabrics at the rate of 40 per cent. ad valorem and certain bead trimmings at 60 per cent. It was claimed that the dress goods should be allowed to enter as cotton cloth at the appropriate rate and the beaded trimmings as "articles composed wholly or in chief value of beads," at 50 per cent. Judge Cooper sustained the claim as to the beaded goods, but affirmed the Collector's tax on the dress goods owing to lack of evidence.

H. E. Lewis and Sun Soon Huie, Portland, Ore., were upheld in contentions that lower duty should be given on cotton table covers made by fastening together two or three strips of cloth by fancy cross stitches which left spaces of perhaps an eighth of an inch between the strips, making a sort of openwork effect. The goods were classified as openwork, and returned for duty at 60 per cent. ad valorem. The importers convinced the board that entry should be allowed at 30 per cent., as manufactures of cotton.

Several firms were overruled in protests claiming lower duty on dress goods returned at 40 per cent. ad valorem, as pile fabrics. The protestants asked for the appropriate rate as cotton cloth. They submitted the cases on samples and without testimony. The board held that an inspection of the samples failed to show that the Collector erred, and stated that it was incumbent upon the importers to maintain their claims by a preponderance of testimony. The protestants included Snow's U. S. Sample Express Company, J. D. Cohn & Co., Rusch & Co., and Gimbel Bros.

Marshall Field & Co., Chicago, lost in claims for lower duty on crocheted button covers. The merchandise was described as crocheted silk covers for round buttons. The Collector returned the goods at 40 per cent. ad valorem under the provision for "parts of buttons not specially provided for," whereas the importers claimed 10 per cent. duty as "button forms." The board held that the articles are not the button forms mentioned in the paragraph under which the claim was made.

F. A. Bernstein & Co. imported bumpers or fenders used for unloading beer barrels. Collector Malone classified the articles as manufactures of vegetable fibre and took duty at 35 per cent. ad valorem. The board denied the claim by the importers that the duty should be 10 per cent., as manufactures of grass.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Interest Centres in International Loan Negotiations —Stocks Irregular.

The events of real interest in financial circles yesterday occurred elsewhere than on the Stock Exchange. The chief of the things which the day brought forth was the fact that more progress was made toward a solution of the international exchange problem than had been made on any previous day since the arrival of the Anglo-French financial mission. The exchange market, very sensitive to developments of this kind, rose rapidly, indicating the belief of many in the financial district that the progress already made warranted the expectation that a few days more of the exchange of views would suffice to bring a definite understanding regarding the steps to be taken to right the international exchanges through providing a great fund out of which to care for commercial purchases in the United States.

What the financial community heard concerning the course which events were taking led it to believe that the way was being paved for the co-operation of practically all banking interests in carrying through this credit operation, the primary purpose of which, from the point of view of those who will supply the credits, is the safeguarding of American trade. Thus Wall Street began to feel that the loan to the Allies, which is coming to be more and more clearly recognized as a mere granting of credit for the benefit of American commercial interests, will be put through under conditions which will give fresh impetus to optimistic expectations regarding American trade and American finance. Important steps remain to be taken before the proposed loan can be announced, but in the best-informed quarters of the financial district the conviction was expressed that all doubt about the success of the loan had passed and that highly gratifying response will be made to the loan when it comes to be offered. The replies received from bankers throughout the country did much to contribute to yesterday's greatly increased optimism concerning the outcome of the negotiations which are now under way.

So much interest was taken in the course of the international loan negotiations that the stock market aroused little interest. Trading was lighter and the course of prices more irregular than on recent days. The opening was higher, but prices yielded rather easily, then rose again, only in many instances to react later on. There were a number of net gains in the final count, but probably a larger number of net declines. Such advances as took place, notwithstanding the widespread feeling that the market might as well mark time while the important matters now under negotiation are awaiting a determination, were symptomatic of the optimism which prevails regarding the future of American business. There can be no doubt that a favorable outcome of the present international negotiations will contribute very much to a continuance and to a broadening of the favorable tendencies now manifesting themselves in the economic position of the United States.

STATUS OF MIDWEST SUITS.

Oil Companies Only Accused of Taking Product to Save Wastage.

A dispatch from Denver, published in THE TIMES on Thursday, described a suit begun by the Government against several oil companies, to prevent them from operating certain claims in Wyoming. The Midwest Oil Company and the Midwest Refining Company were mentioned. In regard to their connection with the litigation Carl H. Pforzheimer, who was instrumental in bringing out securities of the companies, said yesterday that no land was claimed by either corporation.

Inquiry by Mr. Pforzheimer developed that two suits were recently brought by the Government, in one of which the companies were not referred to. In the other the companies were joined as defendants because they had received oil from the properties in question to prevent wastage.

LONDON MARKET STEADY.

Trading Continues Cheerful—Russian and Japanese Securities Dealt In.

LONDON, Sept. 16.—Money was in better supply and easy today. Discount rates declined early, but hardened in the afternoon on the bank return. American exchange remained uncertain, with a norrower movement. Cable transfers advanced to 4.68, but later reacted to 4.67⅝.

The stock market continued cheerful with most of the movement confined to Russian and Japanese secrities and gold mining shares. The latter were bought on African account. The war loan was steady at the recent setback.

American securities were idly steady awaiting a decided lead from Wall Street. The Erie issues were about the only lively shares. The closing was quiet and easy.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Traders Worry Over the Loan.

When two or three commission house traders gathered together over the ticker yesterday the first topic of conversation had to do with the supposition that negotiations over the foreign loan were affecting the market. It has been generally granted that the relatively quiet course of trading since the Anglo-French Commission arrived was a product of the conferences. As to the effect of the negotiations on prices, there have been two opinions. The man who has watched his Steel shrink under rather heavy selling has been firmly persuaded that short sellers were operating with the conviction that numerous hitches in the loan matter would react on stocks before the terms were arranged. A holder of Studebaker, say, has been convinced by the stability of his shares that the market's buying power was good and only held in check by the desire of traders to get some definite news regarding the loan. Yesterday's irregularity of quotations after rather a firm opening led many persons to chafe under the thought that a prolonged discussion of the loan might cause prices to droop.

Reading the Future in Exchange.

If these apprehensive traders had studied the foreign exchange market of the day with the view of obtaining instruction on future possibilities, they probably could have taken some heart. The determined rise of sterling and francs was generally considered in exchange circles to forecast an earlier end of the loan discussion than had been looked for. This opinion received its best support in the knowledge that the leading banks were not anxious to sell drafts at prevailing figures. The brokers decided early in the day that this indicated a belief among the bankers that some arrangement would be made shortly with the allied powers which would bring better rates for exchange.

Two Leaders in Retreat.

Steel and Westinghouse disappointed a great many followers on the bullish side yesterday. From high to low the latter moved down nearly two points under persistent selling and the former covered more than one point in seeking its minimum. The defection of these issues from the bullish cause was all the more pronounced because both started off with substantial overnight gains and displayed considerable vigor in the first quarter hour. There was some reason for traders to believe that sales for the short account had much to do with the decline. Gossip from the board room floor spoke of extensive short lines put out by certain of the larger professionals, while selling which appeared to be on out-of-town orders was translated into short sales. Neither stock showed any disposition to rally in a decided fashion, and the depression of the two important members of the active list appeared to cast a damper on the other standard shares.

A Steady Bid Price.

Steadfast among the rapidly changing scenes of the stock market drama is one factor of Stock Exchange affairs which changes not at all. That is the bid price for American Coal shares. Day after day and month after month it remains at 80 with no offering figure following it. It has been so long—several years at least—since there was a transaction in American Coal on the Exchange that, doubtless, many members do not know what the company is. The company mines and sells soft coal from extensive fields in West Virginia, pays dividends of 6 per cent. a year and has paid large extras. There are only 60,000 shares all told, all closely held, and it is not often that sales occur in the open market outside the Exchange.

Harkness in B. & O.

Charles W. Harkness has been elected a Director of the Baltimore & Ohio to succeed the late Norman B. Ream. His selection follows the announcement of a trackage agreement between the B. & O. and the Western Maryland, the latter a Rockefeller road, and it was intimated yesterday that Standard Oil had bought into the Baltimore & Ohio, but Daniel Willard, President of the B. & O., quickly dispelled that idea. He pointed out that Mr. Harkness and his family were among the oldest holders of Baltimore & Ohio stock. Mr. Harkness, it is understood, is one of the five largest holders of the stock and has been for many years. He took a ride over the road last Spring and remarked to a Baltimore & Ohio official who accompanied him that he was much impressed. Then Mr. Willard recalled that Mr. Harkness was a large stockholder and he asked him to serve on the board. After three months Mr. Harkness was persuaded to do so. "It is hard to find the right kind of men for Directors," said Mr. Willard yesterday. "The Clayton act, you know, has ruled out a great number of desirable men. I am delighted to have Mr. Harkness on the board. I wanted him because he was a stockholder."

Colorado Fuel and Iron.

For weeks the rumors went about that the Rockefeller interests had sold out their share of the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company. First it was stated that they had sold to Charles M. Schwab, but the stock refused to move. Then came rumors that the Morgan interests had purchased control. Still the stock refused to move. Yesterday some one thought the visit of J. P. Morgan to the office of J. D. Rockefeller, Jr., was significant, and the stock began to rise. At the same time there was another rumor of a change of ownership to the effect that the Du Ponts had bought the company. The stock gained 5⅞ points.

HOLDS UP A R. I. FUND.

Court Wants Majority of Interest Coupons Offered.

CHICAGO, Sept. 16.—Receivers of the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway are to ascertain whether a majority of all interest coupons on $20,000,000 of debenture bonds, the $500,000 interest on which was due July 15, 1915, are available for payment before paying the interest. This order was issued today by Judge George A. Carpenter in the United States District Court. On Wednesday he issued an order that the receivers be authorized to issue receivers' certificates to cover the interest, and the order today was supplementary thereto.

The Judge also ordered that the receivers, Jacob M. Dickinson and H. U. Mudge, ascertain whether payment on the coupons on the debentures will be accepted at face value. On ascertaining such facts it is ordered that $500,000 shall be utilized to pay interest on the face value of the coupons. The remainder of the fund not utilized in this manner is to be reserved for the payment of other interest demands on the debentures, due July 15.

Judge Carpenter of the United States District Court today authorized the receivers to purchase 4,000 steel frame box cars, to cost $2,000,000. Payment will be made by $320,580 in cash and the remainder in lease warrants, maturing semi-annually in series. Two thousand five hundred of the cars will be made at Pullman, Ill.; 1,000 at Davenport, Iowa, and 500 at Michigan City, Ind. The total cost will be $3,409,540.

Penn. R. R. Has 94,000 Stockholders

The Pennsylvania Railroad had on Sept. 1 and even 94,000 stockholders. This is an increase of 3,381 in a year, and is the largest number of shareholders ever reported by a railroad. The growth in the number of shareholders was due entirely to a wider distribution of the outstanding capital, no new stock having been issued. Each holder had on Sept. 1 an average of 106.2 shares, or 8.96 shares less than a year ago. In August transfers of stock increased 58 per cent. over a year ago.

COTTON DECLINES AS BULLS UNLOAD

NET LOSS 14 TO 17 POINTS

Egypt Sends News That Its Crop Is a Failure and Reports from South Are Unfavorable.

Profit taking on a large scale yesterday was responsible for the first reaction of importance that has occurred in cotton since it started on its remarkable rise nearly three weeks ago. Liverpool was not up to expectations, and the division of opinion regarding the success or failure of the loan to the Allies influenced a good deal of precautionary liquidation. At the close it was estimated that between 75,000 and 100,000 bales had been sold out. The maximum decline from the high level of Wednesday was about 28 points. The close showed a net loss of 14 to 17 points.

The factor that would be likely to have the most pronounced influence on the market would be the outcome of the loan negotiations. It is not probable, however, that the failure of the loan would have more than a temporary effect in view of the fact that sentiment is extremely bullish and a great many operators have liquidated and are waiting for a decline to restore their purchases.

One interesting bit of news which reached New York after the close of the market yesterday was a cablegram from a well-known operator in Alexandria, Egypt, stating that the Egyptian crop was practically a failure and that the out-turn promised to be fully 30 per cent. less than last season. This is the first definite news regarding the Egyptian crop which has reached New York, although there have been occasional complaints regarding the damage inflicted by the pink boll worm.

The crop report issued by the Watkins Bureau through H. F. Bachman & Co., puts the condition of the crop at 66.3 against 69.7 for the end of August. The report of Miss Giles for the middle of the month will be issued this morning.

A number of wires was received from Southern points yesterday stating that there was some disposition on the part of holders to sell and that demand from spinners was poor. These advices are hardly in keeping with the official quotations of Southern spot markets yesterday where advances of as much as ⅜c were recorded.

The market was very nervous during most of the day and showed continued scarcity of contracts. Buying orders of moderate size put prices up sharply.

The weather again turned unsettled in Texas and some heavy rains were reported from a number of stations throughout the central part of that State.

Southern spot markets as officially reported were quiet to 25 points advance. The local market for spot cotton was quiet, 5 points advance, 10.80 for middling. Futures closed steady.

To Holders of

Mexican Petroleum Company, Ltd., of Delaware:

The undersigned, stockholders of the Mexican Petroleum Company, Limited, of Delaware, and other stockholders, holding in the aggregate a majority of the outstanding capital stock, preferred and common, are of the opinion that it is for the best interest of all of the stockholders of the Company that the continuity of the present management of the Company be secured in order to carry on without risk of interruption the development of its properties and business along the lines now being followed. In view of the arrangements recently effected in England, which were outlined in the annual report, involving a great expansion of the Company's business, it is believed to be particularly desirable at this time that a continuous policy of management be secured, not only because the measures already adopted by the present management are expected to work great benefit to the Company and its stockholders, but because the management would feel better justified in inviting the co-operation of the English interests requiring large expenditures on their part, if the control of the Company is secured for the period during which the present policies are being developed.

It is therefore proposed to create a voting trust for a period of seven years, and the undersigned have consented to act as voting trustees provided the plan meets with the general approval and co-operation of the stockholders.

Preferred and common stockholders are invited to deposit their stock in negotiable form with the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, New York City, which will issue its temporary transferable receipts therefor. Such deposit will constitute an assent to the creation of the voting trust and an authorization to the undersigned to deposit such stock under the voting trust agreement if and when executed. Deposits of stock will be accepted only until the close of business on October 15, 1915, unless the time for deposit be further extended for thirty days by the undersigned in their discretion. Upon the expiration of the time for deposit the undersigned will determine whether in their opinion stockholders sufficient in number and interest have deposited their stock to justify the creation of the proposed voting trust. According to the determination then made the Guaranty Trust Company of New York in exchange for its temporary receipts will either, as agent for the voting trustees, issue to holders thereof voting trust certificates representing the deposited stock, or will return the stock without charge.

Copies of the proposed voting trust agreement may be obtained from the Guaranty Trust Company of New York upon request. Prompt application will be made to the New York Stock Exchange to list the temporary receipts.

$10,000,000 'MELON' BY GENERAL MOTORS

Automobile Concern Declares 50 Per Cent. Dividend on Its Common Stock.

TO HAVE NEW DIRECTORATE

It Will Include Men from Other Companies That Have Done Big Business in War Munitions.

The General Motors Company declared a 50 per cent. cash dividend on its common stock yesterday. The par value of the shares is $100, and the dividend is $50. There is about $20,000,000 common stock outstanding, and this dividend therefore calls for the distribution of $10,000,000.

A large distribution of this kind had been expected for some time, and the common stock, which sold as low as $82 a share last February, ruled around $170 yesterday, although it had not been paying any dividends.

The corporation is a holding company, and controls about thirty automobile and other companies. It has had a large and growing domestic business, and has also been benefited by the war demand for motors. In discusing the company's sales, the annual report, issued yesterday, says:

Gross sales of General Motors Companies in the year just closed amounted to $94,424,841.47, as compared with $85,373,302.96 for 1914. The number of cars sold, 76,068, compared with 58,987 during the preceding year. It will be noted that, owing to price reduction, the number of cars sold tends to increase considerably faster than the sales measured in dollars.

The outlook never was more promising than for the coming year. The models of all your companies are meeting with great favor in their respective classes, and sales so far in the new year—Aug. 1 to Sept. 14, 1915—amount to $16,176,761, compared with $7,585,739 for the corresponding period of last year.

A reorganization of the directorate was effected yesterday by naming a new board to be voted on Nov. 16. It will include men prominently connected with other large and successful corporations. The list includes Pierre du Pont, President of the du Pont de Nemours Powder Company; Lammot Belin, Director of the Aetna Explosives Company; L. G. Kaufman, President of the Chatham and Phoenix National Bank, of which the du Ponts are large stockholders; S. F. Pryor, General Manager of the Union Metallic Cartridge Company and the Remington Arms Company; Albert H. Wiggin, President of the Chase National Bank and Chairman of the Clearing House Committee; Charles H. Sabin, President of the Guaranty Trust Company; J. A. Haskell and J. A. Roskob.

Old Directors renominated are President C. W. Nash, Albert Straus of W. and J. Seligman & Co., J. J. Storrow of Lee, Higginson & Co., E. W. Clark, W. C. Durant, J. H. McClement, C. S. Mott, and Thomas Neal.

The Directors also declared the regular semi-annual dividend of 3½ per cent. on the preferred stock yesterday. It is payable Nov. 1 to shareholders of record Sept. 30. The board recommended the inauguration of regular quarterly common stock dividends, the rate to be determined by the incoming board.

FINDS A NEED OF SHIPS.

Commercial Envoy Says West Coast Wants Transportation.

Dr. L. S. Rowe, Secretary General of the Pan-American Conference, which met last May in Washington, returned yesterday from a three months' tour through the west coast of South America. The main purpose of the trip was to study the effect of the European war on the finances, industry, and commerce of the countries of South America.

At the same time Dr. Rowe was intrusted with a special mission by the Secretary of the Treasury to confer with the Finance Ministers of the countries which he visited, with a view to giving early effect to the resolutions of the Washington conference. When questioned regarding the results of his investigations Dr. Rowe said yesterday:

"Throughout South America, but particularly in Chile and Peru, there is a marked feeling of disappointment at the failure of American manufacturers and merchants to avail themselves of the extraordinary opportunity for the development of closer trade relations which the present European conflict has made possible. With the cutting off of European sources of supply, it was confidently expected that American manufacturers would step into the breach, offering the same service that was formerly performed by their European rivals.

"Along the entire west coast of South America there is one insistent, universal demand—more rapid communication with the United States. Before the opening of the Panama Canal the trip from New York to Chile was made in less time than it is today. It is true that this situation is due, in great part, to the effect of the European war in diminishing the shipping facilities on the west coast of South America. Nevertheless, the fact remains that communication today is less frequent and less rapid than prior to the opening of the canal. In Peru and Chile both the Governments and the leading merchants are prepared to co-operate in every possible way with the people of the United States in the establishment of improved transportation facilities. The steamship line owned by the Peruvian Government has already taken a step in this direction by establishing a direct service between Callao and Baltimore. What we need is a direct service, without transshipment between New York and Valparaiso. Sixteen-knot steamers can make this voyage in two weeks."

CANADA HAS AMPLE FUNDS.

Banks Reported in Good Position to Finance Grain Movement.

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, Sept. 16.—The Minister of Finance has satisfied himself that abundant facilities exist for the financing of the Western crop movement without undue acceleration. If the grain is hurried to market it will be for other reasons than lack of credit accommodation which would enable the grain to be held and gradually sold over a considerable period.

The banks are in a much stronger and more liquid position for the crop movement than they were a year ago. Their liquid assets according to the last return aggregate nearly $350,000,000, of which more than $50,000,000 is in gold and $90,000,000 in Dominion notes. They have an authorized but as yet unissued circulation of nearly $50,000,000. Should occasion require they may under the new bank act issue additional circulation against their gold. They may also under the finance act, 1914, obtain to any amount desired Dominion notes against grain bills, warehouse receipts, or other securities.

During the last few weeks exchange conditions have been such that it has not been possible for the Dominion to draw upon its sterling balances in London to meet the Government's heavy war expenditure in Canada. Should such conditions prevail in the future as will make transfers to Canada unduly expensive, it is officially stated it is probable that to meet the situation the Minister may issue Dominion notes against gold held for account of the Receiver General in London.

The question will not arise for some time yet, as, on account of the negotiations of the New York loan by the Government, ample funds have been provided to tide over the period of acute weakness in the sterling exchange situation.

Prices Heavy on Paris Bourse.

PARIS, Sept. 16.—Prices were heavy on the Bourse today. Three per cent. rentes, 67 francs 25 centimes for cash. Exchange on London, 27 francs 74 centimes.

REPORTS $331,765 DEFICIT.

Lake Superior Corporation Got No Profit from War Orders.

The Lake Superior Corporation reports net earnings for the past fiscal year of $1,366,210, and a net deficiency after the payment of bond interest, sinking fund charges, &c., of $331,765. The report says:

"It is impossible for the company in its present financial position to increase its steelmaking capacity to any appreciable extent. Through inability to raise money for this purpose the company has not been able to take advantage of the present opportunities from which other steel plants are deriving benefit.

"Certain war orders are now in hand. Shell steel is being made, and in conjunction with the Toronto Chemical Company, a benzol plant is in operation. Contracts have been secured for the sale of sufficient coke to warrant the full operation of all coke ovens. The outlook must of necessity remain uncertain. So long as the war lasts, the probability is that rail business from outside will be secured—it is impossible to expect any great consumption in Canada. All things considered, the Directors feel that there is cause for congratulation that the plant has been kept going and that the operating forces have been kept together. No opportunity is being lost of strengthening and improving the company's position in the matter of orders."

DON'T NEED FEDERAL FUNDS

Reserve Banks in Wheat Belt Decline McAdoo's Offer of Aid.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—Government money will probably not be needed to aid in the Fall crop movement in the territory from the Mississippi River to the Rocky Mountains, north of Texas, according to advices received today by Secretary McAdoo from Federal Reserve Agents of the Minneapolis and Kansas City Federal Reserve Banks.

Offers of the Secretary of the Treasury to deposit Government funds in these banks, in line with the policy which led to deposits of $15,000,000 in those of Richmond, Atlanta, and Dallas, were declined, for the present, at least, and the agents reported money plentiful and easy. A similar offer made to the St. Louis bank had not been answered tonight.

John H. Rich, Reserve Agent of the Minneapolis bank, wrote Mr. McAdoo in part:

"This bank has ample resources to meet the current demands upon it and still provide a very considerable reserve against any emergency that may arise before the crop has reached its markets."

Asa E. Ramsay of the Kansas City Bank, said:

"Beg to advise you that I do not anticipate we will need the assistance of Government funds this season. Our district has been full of money, so to speak, and while the general demand is increasing now, I do not think it will reach the point where we will be unable to handle it with our own resources."

MERCANTILE MARINE PLAN IS MODIFIED

Reorganization Scheme Without the Assessment of $2.50 Is Declared Operative.

NEW FIGHT HAS BEEN BEGUN

Faction Led by the Central Trust Company Proposes to Demand Greater Concessions.

The Reorganization Committee of the International Mercantile Marine Company, following the pressure brought upon it by stockholders who were dissatisfied with the plan of reorganization, changed the plan yesterday so as to eliminate the assessment of $2.50 a share on the stock, which saves the stockholders about $2,500,000, and the plan was declared operative.

While this concession was made ostensibly to appease the opposition represented by the de Forest Stockholders' Committee, it was learned last night that the fight against the Reorganization Committee was not yet over. The dissatisfied stockholders will insist on much greater concessions.

New and strong financial interests have become interested in the fight to upset the Bannard plan. Heading these interests is the Central Trust Company, of which James N. Wallace is the head. There will be a meeting today of these new interests, and a plan of procedure will be agreed upon.

"The de Forest Committee began the fight and has now yielded to the stronger forces," a protesting stockholder said. "Of course it will remain identified with the Central Trust in any action which may be taken. This will be a fight to the finish. The elimination of the assessment was not made until the Bannard Committee learned that the Central Trust Company was arrayed against it. Then the Bannard Committee acted quickly, but it acted too late. If it had done the same thing on Wednesday there might have been a reconciliation. The existing plan was prepared in the interests of the bondholders. The new plan will represent all the interests."

Otto T. Bannard, Chairman of the Bondholders' Protective Committee, admitted that he had heard of the Central Trust Company opposition. He said this new movement had nothing to do with the elimination of the assessment. That had been agreed upon before the new opposition had developed, he said. Mr. Bannard made this announcement:

The plan of reorganization of the International Mercantile Marine Company, dated Aug. 3, 1915, has been declared operative by the Reorganization Committee.

The continuing large earnings of the properties of the International Mercantile Marine Company now indicate that the assured cash resources of the new company makes it unnecessary to require holders of stock and stock trust certificates to subscribe to bonds of the new company at the rate of $2.50 per share, and the plan has been accordingly changed so that holders of stock and stock trust certificates may at their election deposit their certificates of stock and stock trust certificates without the payment of the subscription.

Mr. Bannard's announcement further stated that the time for depositing securities, bonds included, had been extended to Oct. 1. After that date, the announcement stated, no securities would be accepted except by special provision of the Reorganization Committee.

MAY BUY MIDVALE STEEL.

$19,000,000 Concern Said to be Subject of Negotiations.

The Midvale Steel Company, which has one of the largest armor manufacturing plants in the country at Nicetown, Penn., and which has consistently rejected orders from the Allies since the beginning of the war, will soon be purchased by a syndicate, according to Wall Street report yesterday, that will turn the productive capacity of the plant to the service of England, France, and Italy. The rumor of the purchase was practically confirmed by William A. Read of William A. Read & Co., bankers at 32 Nassau Street, who are said to be the intermediaries in the transaction.

"Nothing has been settled yet," Mr. Read said yesterday, "but I expect to have definite news within a few days. No money has changed hands between prospective buyer and seller, and no papers have been signed. I can say no more now."

The purchase price of the plant could not be learned, but the report fixed it at $19,000,000. Also, it could not be learned for whom Mr. Read's firm is acting. The report said that the Bethlehem Steel Company was interested in the purchase, and that it was the first step in a gigantic steel merger, but those apparently best advised did not accept this report.

The Midvale Steel Company is controlled by the Harrah & Sellers interests, its chief officers being Charles Jefferson Harrah, President, and Howard Sellers, a Director. According to report, Mr. Harrah has prevented the selling of armor plate to the Allies, his reason being, it is said, pro-German or pacifist sympathy.

The company has large contracts for goods to be delivered to the United States Government, but these are not expected to interfere with the expected orders from Europe.

FIGHT COTTON FUTURES TAX

Federal Judge Hears Arguments in Hubbard Brothers Co. Suit.

Judge Charles M. Hough, sitting in the Federal District Court, heard arguments yesterday on a demurrer interposed by the Government to the complaint in the suit brought by Hubbard Bros. & Co., cotton brokers, to recover $1,000 paid under protest as a cotton futures tax to Internal Revenue Collector John Z. Lowe.

The brokers allege that the act passed in August, 1914, which became operative on Feb. 18 last, is unconstitutional, and called the Court's attention to a section of it which specified various details which must be complied with in order that a broker may be exempt from the imposition of the tax on a transaction at a local exchange which does not contemplate any exportation. The tax was assessed against Hubbard Bros. & Co. on an arrangement made on May 28 with S. M. Weld & Co. for the delivery in October of 100 bales of cotton.

Attorney David Miller of Miller & Auchincloss, in the course of the argument against the demurrer, contended that the Cotton Futures act, being a revenue-raising measure, was unconstitutional because it originated in the Senate instead of the House of Representatives.

Assistant United States District Attorney Carl Barnes will make the argument in support of the demurrer at the continuation of the proceedings today.

Weld & Neville, cotton brokers, who paid a tax of $960 under protest on a transaction made on June 1 for the exportation of 100 bales of cotton, in another refund suit, also question the constitutionality of the Cotton Futures act.

STRONG IS IN WASHINGTON.

Head of New York Federal Bank Confers with Reserve Board.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 16.—Benjamin Strong, Jr., Governor of the New York Federal Reserve Bank, was in Washington today to confer with the Federal Reserve Board regarding the clearing of checks by Federal Reserve banks. The board proposes to extend the system's clearing operations.

Mr. Strong said that the proposed Anglo-French loan was not discussed.

WOMAN BANK DIRECTOR.

Mrs. Miriam L. Gerdine of Yonkers Wins a Rare Honor.

Mrs. Miriam L. Gerdine of 60 Post Street, Yonkers, is said to have the distinction of being the first woman bank Director in the vicinity of New York. Mrs. Gerdine, a widow, who has extensive realty interests, originated the movement, which culminated in the establishment of the Yonkers Trust Company.

The bank, the sixth in Yonkers, is to open in South Broadway, the exact place yet to be announced. It has a capital of $150,000 and a surplus of $75,000. The incorporators are William Forster, Arthur D. Ferguson, Eugene H. Gibson, Charles C. Hubbell, Frank Hudson, Robert Boetegger, and Bert L. Haskins.

Mr. Forster, a lawyer with an office at 59 Wall Street, probably will be President.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Pending further developments in the foreign loan situation, traders on the Consolidated Exchange were disinclined to operate largely and the market drifted into one of a waiting character. A heavy tone in the general list followed an opening period of strength. Some of the specialties were notably active with Colorado Fuel & Iron attracting most attention because of its sharp advance.

CHINESE BOYCOTT FAILS.

Japan Increases Exports to Orient While Other Nations Lose Trade.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16.—Notwithstanding the boycott against Japan which is said to be in force all over the world wherever Chinese buy goods, reports of the cotton goods trade do not indicate that serious inroads are being made on the use of Japanese cotton fabrics in China. The Department of Commerce received today a report from Consul General George H. Scidmore at Yokohama giving details of China's imports of cotton goods for the quarter from January to April this year, as compared with the same months last year. It appears that Japan is gaining against England and this country at a rapid pace.

In gray shirtings our exports to China fell off 73 per cent., Great Britain's 19 per cent., and China herself produced 9 per cent. less than in 1914. Japan's shipments to China in the same goods increased 24 per cent. In sheetings Japan had an increase of 26 per cent., and our trade fell off 57 per cent. and England's 71 per cent., while China produced 16 per cent. less than the year before. Japan shipped ten times more sheetings to China than all other countries together.

In drills Japan practically supplied the Chinese market, shipping there 2,704,468 pieces. Her trade, however, was 7 per cent. less in this line than the year before, while that of the United States was 56 per cent. less, that of England 36 per cent. less, and China's output was 5 per cent. below that of 1914.

In figured cloths Japan increased her trade by 64 per cent., while ours, always small, fell off 88 per cent., England's 26 per cent., and Holland's 64 per cent.

In cotton yarn Japan shipped to China 48,105,333 pounds and gained 20 per cent. over the trade of the previous year. India shipped in 36,783,733 pounds, which was 5,620,000 pounds less than the year before. Great Britain's shipment of cotton yarn to China fell off 88 per cent. China herself made 23,716,000 pounds, which was 4,117,467 pounds less than she produced the year before.

MAKE ADVERTISING HONEST.

Dinner to H. S. Houston Attended by 300 of His Colleagues.

Herbert S. Houston, newly elected President of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, said at a dinner in his honer at the Hotel McAlpin last night that the biggest job before the advertising clubs was to make all advertising honest.

"Our Vigilance Committee has an important task," he said, "to eradicate the dishonest advertisement. I believe from 85 to 90 per cent. of advertising is honest. The problem is to root out that other 10 or 15 per cent."

Mr. Houston praised the work done by newspapers to insure the honesty of advertisements appearing in their columns.

"The fundamental truth in advertising," the speaker said, "is that markets are in human minds. Because they are and because advertising is being demonstrated to be every day the most effective and most economical method of reaching these markets, advertising has come to be one of the greatest forces in modern commerce. And it is bound to survive and grow because it rests on an everlasting foundation—on the foundation of human minds which direct the supplying of human needs."

More than 300 advertising men attended the dinner. Harry Tipper, President of the Association of National Advertisers, presided. In a few days Mr. Houston will start on his first trip across the continent.

COMMODITIES MARKETS

WHEAT.

The wheat market was nervous and feverish during the early operations, but eventually developed renewed strength and at the close of the day prices were 2½c higher for September and 1¼ to 2½c higher for the later months. In the local cash market sales are being made on Western inspection, with No. 2 red and No. 2 hard quoted at $1.23⅞ c. i. f. New York, while No. 1 Northern Duluth was quoted at $1.04¼, and No. 1 Northern Manitoba at 98½c c. i. f. Buffalo.

CORN.

The corn market was firm, with the September position closing at an advance of 1¼c, while the distant months were ⅛c higher. The Liverpool market was easy, owing to prospects of large shipments from Argentina, and Argentine corn was being offered here at comparatively low prices. In the local cash market No. 2 yellow corn was quoted at 85½c, prompt shipment.

OATS.

Shorts in September were good buyers in the oats market, owing to light stocks, and prices for that month closed ⅞c net higher, while the later months were ⅛@¼c. The local cash market was firm; No. 3 white quoted at 40@41c; No. 4 white, 39@40c, all elevator.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market was inactive, but prices were weak under increased selling pressure owing to the adverse ruling by the English prize court, which directly affected a large amount of provisions which had been held for months in Great Britain. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 16,000; estimated for Friday, 15,000. Kansas City received 4,000 and Omaha 5,800.

COFFEE.

Trading in the coffee market yesterday was more active, total sales for the day amounting to 47,000 bags, but the increased volume of business was at the expense of prices. The September position, which had been showing relative strength recently and which closed on Wednesday at 2 points over December, declined 9 points under selling against moderate notices, while the later months were 2 to 6 points lower. SUGAR.

The market for sugar futures was easier, and after opening 2@6 points lower prices lost another point or two under general liquidation, prompted by the easier tone of the spot market and the poor demand for granulated. The market closed easy at 1@6 points net decline, with sales for the day of 6,100 tons. Range of prices:

BUTTER AND EGG MARKET.

BUTTER.—Receipts yesterday, 10,435 packages. The general trade was very quiet, and the tone of the market rather easy. There was not the speculative element present yesterday that was so strongly in evidence Wednesday, and the local jobbers bought very sparingly owing to the extreme heat. Current sales were about in line with quotations. EGGS.—Receipts yesterday, 12,129 cases. The tone of the market continues very firm. Fresh receipts are moderate, and demand closely absorbing the better grades. Continued hot weather interferes with a free movement of refrigerators; some speculative interest in these within the ranges quoted. Fancy near-by eggs very scarce. REORGANIZATION
International Mercantile Marine Company
Notice of Adoption and Change of Plan

The Plan of Reorganization of the International Mercantile Marine Company dated August 3, 1915, has been declared operative by the Reorganization Committee.

The continuing large earnings of the properties of the International Mercantile Marine Company now indicate that the assured cash resources of the New Company make it unnecessary to require Holders of Stock and Stock Trust Certificates to subscribe to bonds of the New Company at the rate of $2.50 per share, and the Plan has accordingly been changed so that holders of Stock and Stock Trust Certificates may at their election deposit their Certificates of Stock and Stock Trust Certificates without the payment of the subscription.

Holders of Certificates of Deposit for Stock and Stock Trust Certificates already deposited may, if they so desire, obtain a refund of the amounts paid by them upon surrender of their Certificates of Deposit to the Depositary or its Agents, on or before October 1, 1915, in exchange for new Certificates.

Certificates of Stock, Stock Trust Certificates, and Bonds must be deposited under the Plan on or before October 1, 1915, after which date no deposits will be accepted except in the entire discretion of the Committee and subject to such penalties and conditions as the Committee may see fit to impose.

Copies of this notice have been filed with the Depositaries and their Agents.

SAVE AND BE SAFE

For your savings the great consideration should be Safety First. The old reliable Franklin Society for Home Building and Savings operates under New York's revised Banking Law, which provides the strictest known system of supervision. Thrifty thousands have found the Society a help and a blessing during more than a quarter of a century. On sums of $10 or over (up to $5,000) the Society has always paid dividends as large, and usually larger, than are paid by the best savings banks. The usual rate has been 4½% per annum. Payments made before Oct. 1 earn from that date.

RAILWAY TO SETTLE WITH MRS. LAIMBEER

Reported That Long Island Co. Will Pay $50,000 for Death of Husband.

ENDS TWO $250,000 SUITS

Notice Given That Mrs. Pell's Verdict of $25,000 Will Be Appealed by Defendant.

Mrs. Natalie Schenck Laimbeer, whose husband, William S. Laimbeer, was mortally injured, and who was hurt herself when the automobile driven by S. Osgood Pell was struck by a Long Island Railroad train near Long Beach on Aug. 3, 1913, and Mr. Pell was killed, is about to settle two suits of $250,000 each against the railroad company for $50,000, according to opinions expressed in the Supreme Court in Long Island City yesterday, when counsel for Mrs. Laimbeer withdrew her suits. This action was taken after a conference with counsel for the railroad and with Justice Manning.

Mrs. Pell recently got an award of $25,000 for her husband's death, and there was concluded yesterday before Justice Manning a suit for $40,000 by Dominick Gambino, father of Charles Gambino, Pell's chauffeur, who lost his life. The jury did not bring in a verdict, and Justice Manning finally ordered a sealed verdict to be delivered on Monday.

Mrs. Laimbeer was a witness for Gambino last Tuesday, when she told of the amount of champagne consumed by the motor party at dinner with W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., at the Trouville Inn in Long Beach just before the accident. Mrs. Laimbeer is said to have been in poor health since the accident and to have dreaded further court experiences. It is understood that counsel for her suggested a settlement at $70,000, while the railroad offered $20,000, the $50,000 finally being fixed on as a basis for further negotiation between counsel.

The railroad served notice yesterday of its intention to appeal from the verdict won by Mrs. Pell on the ground that contributory negligence on the part of Mr. Pell was shown in the trial, and the verdict, accordingly, was against the weight of the evidence.

$9,000 U. S. PLACE TO FILL.

President to Name Successor to General Appraiser Somerville.

The death on Wednesday of Henderson M. Somerville, a member of the Board of United States General Appraisers since its organization twenty-five years ago, creates a $9,000 position to be filled by President Wilson. The board is charged with the adjudication of disputes between the Government and importers regarding questions of value and classification.

The tenure of office of the nine General Appraisers is practically for life. A member can be removed from office only after a hearing by the President himself. The board is clothed under the law with all the powers of Federal Circuit Courts.

William B. Howell of New Jersey becomes senior member of the board by the death of Mr. Somerville. The other members are Israel F. Fischer, and Charles P. McClelland of New York, Byron S. Waite of Michigan, Eugene G. Hay of Minnesota, Jeremiah B. Sullivan of Iowa, Sam Cooper of Texas, and ex-Judge Brown of Maryland. Mr. Sullivan succeeded Mr. Somerville as President two years ago.

Hearings before the sub-boards of the General Appraisers were suspended yesterday. Assistant Attorney General Bert Hanson for the Government, and Thomas M. Lane, representing the bar, paid tributes to the late General Appraiser. A committee was appointed to draw up suitable resolutions. Judge Somerville's body was taken yesterday afternoon to Tuscaloosa, Ala., his old home, for burial.

NEW JERSEY—Atlantic City.

TRAYMORE FRIDAY CHATS

THE SUMMIT OF ATLANTIC CITY

The Traymore is the largest fireproof resort hotel in the world. Most people think of the Jersey coast as flat, but since the Traymore was built, a man-made mountain dominates the ocean. It is a huge monolith, of concrete and steel, eighteen stories high, with a capacity of 1400 guests. The Traymore is different from every other hotel; it was designed and furnished to harmonize absolutely with the atmosphere of the seashore. It is a majestic expression of the life of Atlantic City. Some of its unique features are the vast marble Exchange, flanked with flowers and sheltered angles, the Restaurant, the Submarine Grill, the Belvedere, the Rose Hall, the Library Tower, the Cloister Garden, the Rotunda, the Fountain of Fate, the three Decks fronting the Boardwalk and the sea, and last but not least, the superb orchestra of musicians.

"Speaking of the concrete construction of the Blenheim, Thomas A. Edison said, "It is the coming construction for all great buildings. It won't bend, it won't break, and you couldn't burn it if you tried."

Marlborough-Blenheim,
ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.
THE LEADING RESORT HOUSE OF THE WORLD
Capacity 1100 — American and European Plans

The great essential of a resort hotel, as distinguished from a city hotel, is ample public space devoted to the use of its guests, in the form of bright and airy Exchanges, Lobbies, Parlors, Galleries and Solariums, affording pleasing vistas and beautiful promenades, the whole combining into an harmonious vision of grandeur and beauty, which, while replete with the cozy group seclusions of home, afford full view of the pleasing panorama of the resort life. In this essential the Marlborough-Blenheim stands without an equal in Atlantic City or elsewhere.

Its "Ownership Management," while accounting for its unique reputation, is a guaranty of the high character of its patronage and the unexcelled quality of its service and cuisine. It employs only white service in both its American and a la carte dining rooms.

It makes a specialty of its high-class music every evening throughout the year, with special Sunday night solo features, which, this year, with such artists as Romani, Manolito, Rose and Glanville, have been most successful.

Atlantic City, with its only real competitor (Europe) this year impossible, is offering unusual attractions and entertainments. Two flying boats are daily sources of interest. Two golf courses, the Yacht Club, the fishing fleet and the wonderful bathing beach attract their respective devotees, while the pier amusements, the theatres, the Boardwalk, the fine motor roads and the splendid hotels and restaurants, afford enjoyment to all. There is only one Atlantic City, and this year it is particularly attractive. Write for illustrated booklet and rates.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD.

Fifty-fifth Street House Near Fifth Avenue Leased to Dressmaker—Sailors' Lodging House in Brooklyn Sold—Two Large Queens Deals—Active Renting Market.

Almost the low ebb in lack of activity was reached in the realty market yesterday. In Brooklyn the sale of three old buildings at Atlantic Avenue and Furman Street, formerly used as a sailors' lodging house, was reported.

In Manhattan the leasing market contributed about all the interest of the day. In West Fifty-fifth Street, near Fifth Avenue, the five-story American basement house at No. 10 was leased for the Misses Kendall to Mrs. R. L. Allebone, who will alter it for dressmaking purposes. Royal Scott Gulden was the broker in the lease, the owners being represented by Horace S. Ely & Co.

In the automobile section of Broadway the five-story structure at 1,934, adjoining the southeast corner of Sixty-fifth Street, was leased by Samuel H. Martin in conjunction with William A. Cruikshank's Sons to the Astor Automobile Company.

Bronx Sales.

The five-story new-law tenement at 780 Prospect Avenue, on a lot 37.6 by 100, has been purchased by the Nason Realty Company for investment from David Bloom.

Important Bronx Deal.

The Tremont Fireproof Storage and Refrigerating Company has acquired title to the Liberty Brewing Company's plant at 170th Street and Third Avenue. The property has an average frontage of 280 feet, and is 180 feet on 170th Street. There are four or five brewery buildings and a number of smaller buildings on the plot.

The plan of the new company, which is capitalized at $500,000 and just incorporated, is the combining under one roof a fireproof warehouse, a cold storage plant, and an ice plant.

The incorporators of the new company are John H. Ronner, former Register of New York County; Nelson C. Roberts, Otto A. Deffas, Henry F. J. Minderman, and Grover Cleveland Bates.

Old Sailors' Lodging House Sold.

William A. White & Sons have sold for the Seaman's Church Institute the three buildings at the corner of Atlantic Avenue and Furman Street, Brooklyn, covering a plot 60 by 75. This property was purchased by the Seaman's Institute several years ago as a lodging house for sailors, but was abandoned when the new building on Coenties Slip, New York was completed.

After extensive alterations the property will be occupied by the Johanns Steamship Provision Company.

Brooklyn.

The Minold Realty Company, Abraham Benedict, President, has sold to Aniello Massa a three-story six-family building on lot 25 by 90, at 268 Elton Street. It was purchased from the Kips Bay Brewing Company in June.

Peter A. H. Jackson's Sons have sold the five-story dwelling at 127 Lefferts Place, corner of Classon Avenue, fronting 36 feet.

Good Sales in Queens.

R. A. Armstrong, as executor, has sold to Mandel Pressberger of Manhattan a tract of eleven and one-half acres at the southeast corner of Cherry and New York Avenues, in the Springfield section of Queens. The price is said to have been $15,250. Mr. Pressberger has transferred a plot 75 by 441 feet, commencing at the corner, to the Franklin Home Company, which is planning to erect several dwellings.

T. Keindl has sold to G. O. Van Orden, a builder, fifteen lots in the Woodhaven section, adjoining the Brooklyn Borough line and adjacent to Liberty Avenue.

Long Island.

In the Fourth Ward, Borough of Queens, the New York Suburban Land Company sold a plot 20 by 100 on Oxford Place to K. Reilly, and a plot 40 by 100 on President Avenue to H. Gorey.

New Jersey.

At Garwood, N. J., the New York Suburban Land Company has sold for improvement, with private dwellings, a plot 60 by 100 on Hickory Avenue to C. A. Gomperson, and a plot 40 by 100 on Hazel Avenue to I. Allen.

Sale at Dobbs Ferry.

Kenneth Ives & Son have sold for Charles L. Van Fossen a house under construction in Riverview Manor, Dobbs Ferry-on-Hudson, to Franklin F. Lewis. It was held at $10,000.

Advertising League Leases Rooms.

The Advertising Men's League of New York has leased for its quarters the rooms formerly used by the old Midtown Club, in the Madison Square Hotel, at 37 Madison Avenue, near Twenty-sixth Street. The lease has been taken for five years at $12,000 per year.

Commercial Leases.

Pease & Elliman have leased for a term of years for Mrs. Isidor Wormser the three-story stable, 25 by 100, at 103 East Sixty-third Street, to Victor Grimwood, who will alter the property and use it as a riding academy.

The Cross & Brown Company has leased the store and basement at 22 East Forty-first Street, to the Defiance Manufacturing Company, architects' supplies, for the Rivoli Realty Company.

Goodale, Perry & Dwight have leased the three-story business building at 330 West Twenty-fifth Street for a term of years to Ridley & Ottinger, who were represented by David Cohn.

S. Osgood Pell & Co. has completed the renting of the building owned by the Motoaka Realty Company at the southeast corner of Broadway and Fifty-seventh Street, by leasing the fifth floor to the Gadabout Motor Company, the eighth floor to Freeman & Brady, the ninth floor to Holden One Man Top Company, and the United Auto Company.

Private Dwellings Leased.

Pease & Elliman have rented for Mrs. Walter C. Hubbard to Miss Emma Loeffler the four-story dwelling at 313 West Seventy-seventh Street and for R. Stuyvesant Pierrepont to Richard Levering, the five-story dwelling at 120 East Seventy-ninth Street.

Goodale, Perry & Dwight, Inc., have rented a private house at 871 West End Avenue for Mrs. V. L. Forrest to Mark Emanuel.

Porter & Co. have leased for Eva Phipps to Anna Macready the three-story dwelling at 220 West 122d Street.

Douglas L. Elliman & Co. have leased for a term of years 45 East Fifty-first Street, a 5½-story American basement dwelling, for Julien A. Ripley to Henry P. Perry.

Shaw & Co. have leased for F. M. & M. A. Taylor the three-story dwelling 59 West 126th Street to Kate Quinn.

The Houghton Company has leased the three-story dwelling 40 West 106th Street for George E. Stuckey to Elizabeth Giles.

Bergen County Brokers Unite.

The real estate brokers of Bergen County are arranging a "get-together" supper at the Union League Club, Hackensack, Monday evening, Oct. 4, under the auspices of the Realty Men's Protective Agency.

In addition to the formation of a local association several matters of special interest in business will be discussed. An examination will be made into the New Jersey laws affecting real estate brokers and the protection they afford for claiming commissions. There is a law that no real estate broker in New Jersey can legally collect his commission unless the owner or seller of the property has given said broker the authority to sell and the promise to pay the commission in writing duly signed. This law has worked a hardship to many brokers, particularly when clients prove unscrupulous in their dealings, and it materially differs from the laws of other States.

Realty Notes.

Plans have been filed in the Bronx Building Bureau for a two-story clubhouse to be erected on the south side of 166th Street, 97.6 feet east of Park Avenue, for the United Society of Bohemians, of which Frank Sladek is President. Anthony M. Colucci, the architect, places the cost at $18,000. The club's plot there is 50 by 263.

The Mott Foundry property on the Harlem River and the Mott Haven Canal has not been rented or sold. The fact that three of the low buildings on the canal have been leased by a motor company led to the report that work was to be resumed in the whole place and that the big foundry and factory buildings would be occupied.

$9,000 BRIBERY FUND TO SAVE ROFRANO

Grand Jury Examines Little Red Book of Names and Indicts Porcaro.

MURDER SUSPECT HIDES

Police Watch Steamers, Fearing Ex-Deputy Street Cleaning Commissioner Will Flee Country.

In its inquiry into Michael A. Rofrano's connection with the murder of Mike Gaimari, the Grand Jury yesterday discovered that a perjury fund of $9,000 had been collected for the purchase of false testimony at the trials of Gaetano Montimagno and "Rocks" Cornell, who were convicted of killing Tom Foley's lieutenant. Of this amount $6,000 had actually been paid out, one witness at Cornell's trial receiving $300 for saying on the stand that Gaimari's slayer wore a black coat and a derby hat. Montimagno, who killed Gaimari, wore a light coat and a cap at the time.

The Grand Jury believed these revelations pointed to the complicity of other persons in the Gaimari plot. An adjournment was taken until next Thursday in order to give District Attorney Perkins time to check up evidence which may result in the indictment of another prominent politician. This person, an intimate friend of Rofrano, is said to have been present at conferences where Rofrano, according to Frank Fennimore's confession, paid over certain sums of money for the slaying of Gaimari.

When it reconvenes, the Grand Jury will also examine a lawyer identified with the Montimagno defense who has visited Fennimore in the Tombs on frequent occasions, with the purpose of having him sign affidavits which would exonerate Rofrano from all connection with the crime. Fennimore said yesterday that he drove the man away because he had determined to make a confession, despite the orders from Rofrano to keep his mouth shut and "sit tight."

Rofrano is still in hiding, though friends of the ex-Deputy Street Cleaning Commissioner insist he will surrender himself as soon as he has arranged his business affairs. Detectives are watching all the steamship lines to prevent Rofrano's escape from America. The police yesterday sent through the country a circular with a portrait and detailed description of the fugitive.

Frank Fennimore told Assistant District Attorney Brothers yesterday that he had tried to induce "Rocks" Cornell to make a complete confession of Rofano's part in the Gaimari murder when he and "Rocks" were locked up in adjoining cells in the Tombs. But outside influences emenating, according to Fennimore, from Rofrano, defeated his plan and "Rocks" was transferred to a remote cell so that further intercourse between the two prisoners would be impossible.

That part of Fennimore's confession which told of the perjury committed by Tomasso Porcaro and Joseph Brondini at the Montimagno and Cornell trials was verified in the Grand Jury room yesterday. Both Porcaro and Brondini were indicted; Porcaro for perjury and Brondini for subornation of perjury. They will be arraigned before Judge Malone in General Sessions today.

The Grand Jury examined a little red notebook which was found on Porcaro when he was arrested in his office at 11 Broadway, where he is alleged to have conducted a perjury school, with a fund supplied by Rofrano and others. The book contained the names of witnesses who appeared at the Montimagno and Carnivale trials. It also contained the names of persons whom the police said they recognized as professional witnesses who had appeared in many civil and criminal cases.

Among the important witnesses examined by Assistant District Attorney Brothers yesterday was Napoleono Gennaro, who was brought over from the penitentiary, where he is serving time for extortion. He said he was in Porcaro's office when conferences were held for the "framing up" of witnesses. He said the name of the man who really superintended the perjury scheme has not as yet been mentioned in connection with the Gaimari plot.

Ralph De Marto, alias Filsey, and a close personal friend of Fennimore's, confronted the latter in Assistant District Attorney Brothers's office yesterday. De Marto is serving time in the penitentiary for selling cocaine. Mr. Brothers allowed the two men five minutes' conversation with each other and then separated them. As Fennimore was led away, he remarked to De Marto:

"I want you to tell Mr. Brothers all you know about this matter, Filsey."

"Filsey" told all he knew. He had not seen Fennimore since March 7 last, but he corroborated in every essential detail Fennimore's confession. He told of meetings between Fennimore and Rofrano, of visits made by Fennimore to Rofrano's house and to his office in the Street Cleaning Department. In December, 1913, he said he saw Fennimore receive from Rofrano $200 for the payment of the funeral expenses of Vincenzo Cardillo, a murdered henchman, who, previous to his death, had been hired to kill Mike Gaimari. De Marto's story implicated Rofrano in a plot to kill Gaimari as far back as 1913.

HOPE FOR NEWMAN ERB.

But Condition of Poisoned Railroad Man Is Admittedly Critical.

Newman Erb, the railroad man, who took bichloride of mercury by mistake last Tuesday, was reported last night at his Summer home in Deal Beach, N. J., to be "doing as favorably as could be expected." This meant, it was explained, that Mr. Erb's condition was such as to warrant hope for his recovery, though the chances were still against him.

Mr. Erb is under the constant care of Drs. Leo Kessel, Robert Offenbach, and Edwin Sternberger. Dr. Kessel, who is considered one of the most skillful practitioners in New York in cases of bichloride poisoning, is in charge of the treatment. Every effort to remove the poison from Mr. Erb's system has been made, the latest having been through the process of sweating.

At almost the same time that Mr. Erb swallowed the poison, under the impression that he was taking bicarbonate of soda, the Health and Sanitation Committee of the Safety First Federation of America, in session in New York, adopted recommendations urging the enactment of laws for the dispensing of poisons in receptacles distinguishable from all others by form and color. While Mr. Erb took the bichloride tablets from a bicarbonate of soda bottle in which he had placed them for convenience, it has been pointed out that, if he had bought the poison in a bottle that would have impressed him with the nature of its contents, he would have seen the danger of having the drug in any other container. The committee would have poisons sold only in "serrated or porcupine" bottles of irregular size and emphatic color.

Fire Prevention Day Oct. 9.

Fire Commissioner Adamson issued a circular yesterday on "Fire Prevention Day," Oct. 9. There will be a parade of fire apparatus, drills in schools and factories, and other observances. The Commissioner says that of 14,425 fires, with $8,217,811 loss, last year, three-fourths could have been avoided.

INDICT B.R.T. OFFICER FOR IGNORING ORDER

J. J. Dempsey Accused of Failure to Obey Service Board in Operating 5th Av. Line.

HAYWARD PUSHES CASE

Grand Jury Action Follows Dismissal of Complaint Against Superintendent by Magistrate.

After the same complaint against him had been dismissed by a City Magistrate, John J. Dempsey, Superintendent of Transportation of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, was indicted yesterday by the Kings County Grand Jury on a misdemeanor charge for his alleged failure to obey an order of the Public Service Commission respecting the operation of express trains on the Fifth Avenue elevated line. Before County Judge Lewis, Mr. Dempsey entered a plea of not guilty, and was released in $1,000 bail to await trial.

On complaint of Public Service Commissioner William Hayward, Mr. Dempsey was brought into court before Magistrate Dodd last May. Several hearings were held, and on Friday last Magistrate Dodd, in the Adams Street Court, dismissed the complaint against the railroad man on a technicality. It was charged that Dempsey had failed to comply with an order issued by the Publice Service Commission in February, 1912, requiring that certain express trains on the Fifth Avenue elevated make stops at the Third Street station.

The order was served upon the railroad company, but Magistrate Dodd said that the Public Service Commission law provided that "every order of a commission shall be served upon every person or corporation to be affected thereby." The court said that there was no proof, and, in fact, it had not been contended, that the order had ever been served upon Dempsey. Because the commission had failed to serve Dempsey with a copy the proceedings were dismissed.

Commissioner Hayward did not agree with the Magistrate in the latter's interpretation of the law, and Assistant District Attorney Albert Conway laid the matter before the Grand Jury.

Waiving immunity from prosecution, Mr. Dempsey appeared before the Grand Jury. Among the witnesses called were Chairman Edward E. McCall of the commission, Commissioner Hayward, Secretary Travis H. Whitney of the commission, and Joseph Johnson, chief of the transit bureau of the commission.

When the indictment was returned yesterday, a telephone message brought Dempsey to the County Court at once. He was accompanied by Attorney D. A. Marsh of the legal department of the railroad company. After he had entered his plea of not guilty, ten days were allowed to Dempsey in which to change the plea or demur to the indictment. It is expected that a demurrer will be interposed. Mr. Dempsey seemed anxious that the trial go on at once, as he had planned to leave next week for a trip to the Pacific Coast. It is likely that if the case is not called within a week, he will ask to have the trial put off for a month.
